PREFACE

THE plan to publish the original of the Short Journal of George Fox as an appropriate commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of his birth had its origin in Philadelphia. The idea was brought before the Friends' Historical Association, and at once aroused interest and approval. A Committee was appointed to mature the project, and the plan gradually expanded to include the Itinerary Journal and finally the Haistwell Diary. This has made it possible to bring together in one volume the important documents which underlie the Great Journal. The present volume will thus be an admirable supplement to the two volumes which gave to the world George Fox's Journal (Cambridge Edition) in its original form. Norman Penny LL.D., F.S.A., Consulting Librarian of Friends' Reference Library at Devonshire House, Bishopsgate London and Editor of the above mentioned Cambridge Edition of the Journal was asked by the Philadelphia Committee to do the editorial work now happily brought to completion.

There have been many fitting commemorative events and activities during this tercentenary year but it is safe to predict that nothing has been done which will give more satisfaction to those who come after us than will the publication of these quaint narratives of travels and sufferings.

On behalf of the Committee

INTRODUCTION

THE student who is engaged upon the study of the life of George Fox must be grateful to the Friends Historical Association of America, for making available the new material which Dr Norman Pennay has edited and that the task has been entrusted to one so uniquely qualified for it.

The original documents now for the first time printed form part of the manuscript treasures of the Friends' Reference Library at Devonshire House, Bishopsgate, and have been consulted occasionally by Quaker historians, but with the publication of this volume a wider world has now access to information which adds to our knowledge of Fox and helps to complete the record given in the Cambridge Journal.

The Short Journal has a special interest of its own as being a sort of preliminary draft of the greater work, made under difficult conditions, since, as the writer tells, it was written during his long imprisonment in Lancaster Gaol (in 1663—64). The original faded manuscript is a frayed oblong volume, once a child's copy book, the first four pages of which had been filled by copies of texts from the first chapter of the Gospel of John. George Fox usually preferred to dictate, as we know, rather than to write himself, and only a few lines on the manuscript are in his own hand, but this little volume must be either the original Journal dictated by him in prison, or a copy made later under his care at Swarthmoor Hall, the child's writing being probably that of one of Margaret Fell's younger daughters.

The Short Journal is much less full than the Great Journal, and shows less attention to chronology, but here and there it supplies details and little touches which we are glad to have. Fox's opening words explain that it is a record of "some of his sufferings for preaching the truth," and the narrative commences abruptly with an incident at Mansfield not recorded in the Great Journal, and then passes to his first imprisonment at Nottingham (in 1549) and thereafter tells the story of his missionary wanderings and the hardships and persecutions which he had to face up to his imprisonment at Lancaster in 1658.

Among the new material we may note the opening narrative, the account of the healing of a woman who was believed to be possessed, and a number of brief summaries of Fox's addresses in the various churches in which he spoke. We note that on two occasions before a message of protest he speaks of something 'striking at his life', in one case the sight of the great steeplehouse at Nottingham ('when I spied it a great Idol and Idolatrous Temple') and in another the sound of a church bell has the same effect. At other times he tells how, when bruised and bleeding from the blows of his assailants, his spirit was "revived again by the power of God."

When his companion Thomas Aldam is arrested and a warrant against himself is not delivered by the friendly constable, he quaintly records: 'And I saw a vision a man and two Mastiffe doggs and a Bear, and I passed by them and they smiled upon mee.' We get a vivid picture of him at Mansfield Woodhouse, seated in the stocks while the people threw stones at him, bruising head and arms and body, till he is "Mazed and dazled with the blowes." Then he is liberated amid the threats of the people and we cannot wonder that when taken to a friendly house he tells us "I was so bruised when I was cold that I could not turn mee in my bed, and bruised inwardly att my heart, but," he adds, "after a while the power of the Lord went through mee and healed mee, that I was well. Glory to the lord for ever!" Once again he is stoned through the streets of Bosworth, and in several other passages we are given details of hard usage that are not recorded elsewhere.

Amidst this suffering there came moments of exaltation. "In Warwickshire in Adderstone when I was two miles of it the Bell rung upon a Market day for a lecture, and it strunk at my life, and I was moved to go to the steeple house, and when I came unto it I found a man speaking and when as I stood among the people the glory and life shined over all, and with it I was crowned, and when the priest had done I spake to him and the people the truth and the light which lett them see all that ever they had done, and of their teacher within them and how the lord was come to teach them himself, and of the seed Christ in them, how they were to mind that, and the promise that was to the seed of God within man, which is Christ and it set them in a Hurry and under a rage and some said I was madd, and spoke to my outward Relations to tye mee upp, and sett them in a rage but the truth came over all and I passed away in peace in the power of the lord God, and the truth came over all and reached the hearts of many people."

As we read this narrative we can picture the scene in the church the rapt look on the young stranger's face as he felt the reality of that Light of God within the soul whose messenger he was, and we can understand how some of the scandalized onlookers took him for a madman.

Two other passages may be set beside the narrative of Fox's examination at Lancaster Sessions in the Cambridge Journal, as an instance of the use of a phrase which must have deeply offended the orthodox of the day. He had been speaking words of warning to some fellows drinking in an ale-house in one of the North Yorkshire dales, and adds "And the next morning I was moved to tell the man of the house that I was the sonne of God and was come to declare the Everlasting Truth of God, and did declare the truth to him and them."

The second passage relates his examination before the magistrates, previous to his being committed to prison at Chesham and explains the reference in the Great Journal to his being generally supposed to be about to suffer the death penalty, doubtless on the charge of blasphemy.

"And they asked mee if I were the sonne of God, I said yee. They asked mee if I had seen Gods face, I said yee. They asked mee whether I had the spirit of discerning, I said yee. I discerned him that spoke to mee. They asked mee whether the Scripture was the word of God, I said God was the word, and the Scriptures were writings and the word was before writings were which word did fulfill them."

In one other passage somewhat earlier in Fox's narrative he records an incident at Hendal where we may feel the prophetic exaltation of spirit is very marked. "And I went into Hendale Markett and spoke to the People at the Markett time. I had silver in my pockett and I was moved to throw it out amongst the people as I was going up the street before I spoke, and my life was offer'd upp amongst them and the mighty power of the lord was seen in preserving, and the power of the lord was so mighty and so strong, that people flew before and runne into the shoppes, for fear and terror took hold upon them, I was moved to open my mouth and lift upp my voyce aloud in the mighty power of the lord and to tell them the mighty day of the lord was coming upon all deceitfull Merchaundize and wayes, and to call them all to repentance and a turning to the lord God and his spirit within them for it to teach them and lead them."

Other passages shew Fox, in calmer mood, with spirit sensitive to the inward condition of those amongst whom he passed. "And then I was moved to passe towards the South, and go through many townes and I felt I answered the writings of God in all people though I spoke not a word." He frankly notes in one place that his mission found far less response in the South of England than in the North.

"I passed into ~~sussex~~ and surrey and Hampshire and Dorsetshire when there were but few convicts and some place none at all," while he speaks of Cornwall as "a dark country"

There are one or two interesting cases of premonition of impending danger, as when he avoids an ambush of armed men near Sedbergh being "Moved to passe over another way over a water, not knowing outwardly of them, and when the day before his arrest by the constables at Swarthmoor in 1550 he tells us that he felt 'something of darkness in the house before they came in of something of a great darkness."

[In the Great Journal he simply says "And I had a sense of the thing before hands ')]

In surling out these passages we must not forget the rest of the amazing narrative of hardship, toil and suffering, borne without flinching. We see him again and again beaten, stoned and thrown to earth "mudded and bloodied," as he says in another place, suffering repeated imprisonments in crowded, dark and verminous dungeons, loathsome with unspeakable filth and if there are sometimes touches of hardness as he writes of some of his persecutors, we have to remember that he is writing in prison, the darkness of the future lit up only by the light of his unconquerable faith.

A little before the close of the narrative we have a vivid picture of Fox's appearance at Lancaster Sessions greeting his judges as he is called to the bar by an unwonted benediction of peace, but declining to remove his hat, which the Chairman bids the officers remove. "And so a pretty space wee looked att one another till the power of the lord God arose over all." And so the trial commences and Fox is committed to prison, "where now I am with 8 more."

The Itinerary Journal brings us into a different atmosphere and almost into another world.

Less than twenty years separate the narratives but in that time England has changed, the tense religious fervour of the Commonwealth has given place to the reaction of the Restoration. The Conventicle Acts have filled the gaols with Quaker prisoners, and the long years of persecution have steadied and sifted the Quaker fellowship which has now a definite Church organization of its own, linking together hitherto isolated meetings in groups, and these groups in yet wider ones, with a yearly meeting for the whole country. George Fox too has changed with the years. We see him active still, despite failing strength, but moving over a more limited area, and engaged largely in building up existing Quaker meetings, in visiting the sick, advising on matters of Church organization and in other ways fulfilling many of the functions of a bishop of the primitive Church. Here unfortunately we are dealing, not with George Fox's own detailed narrative but with a bare summary, of which the first few pages only appear to have been actually dictated by Fox himself. The reader must fill in by the light of other material the scanty outline in order that it may be properly understood. At first sight the long list of places and persons visited and of meetings held seems unattractive, but it throws light at many points on the activities of Fox's closing years. The Itinerary Journals were made full use of by Thomas Ellwood in editing the Great Journal but while throwing the narrative into the first person he omitted many details and these we are now able to have before us.

Once or twice in later pages the first person singular recurs, a noteworthy case being the vivid picture of George Fox speaking at the Savoy meeting in 1683. 'And as I was speaking in the power of the Lord the people were transported and the Lord's power was over all, and of a sudden the Constables and the people came in like a Sea. In Ellwood's edition of the Journal there is a characteristic modification of this passage, which there reads "Now as I was speaking in the power of the Lord, and the people were greatly affected therewith, on a sudden the constables, with the rude people came in like a sea. "

We find Fox's time now occupied not only with religious meetings, or with the business of the Quaker Church, and important colonial matters like the affairs of New Jersey, but with visits to individual Friends: he goes one day to visit "a woman at Ellington not well in her mind, another day to Jane Bullock's school. He goes to talk over difficulties about a broken marriage engagement, and at another time settles a quarrel between servants. Visits are recorded to an old Quaker gardener 92 years of age, to old Mary Strut who was muddled in mind and to an old man who had broken his leg. His interest in education is seen by repeated visits to different schools: he goes to view a house at Chiswick where it is proposed to start a women's school, and later twice revisits the school itself. We see him several times meeting with Friends from Holland and on another occasion going to see 'some German friends that were going to penal vania. Much time is given to the business of the Society of Friends both in the meetings at 'the Chamber, the central office of the Society at the Meeting for Sufferings and in less formal gatherings of leading Friends. He even finds time to go to see a passage by the meetinghouse in Long Acre about which there is some dispute with a neighbour and on another occasion he goes to visit the young Quaker innkeeper at the White Lion Tavern: he being but a new beginner, to Advise him," following up his good counsel by dining at the inn. Later we see him conferring with some peer or member of parliament, or going over to Westminster to help the efforts made by his fellow Quakers to obtain effective legislative safeguards for liberty of conscience.

Those wonderful piercing eyes of his were now it seems less strong than of old, for we find him going on one occasion "to the spectacle makers." He moves about repeatedly from house to house, as he visits different meetings, now and then going for much longer visits to the Essex country house of William Mead the son in law of his wife and sometimes for similar but shorter visits to Kingston where lived another stepdaughter Margaret Rous. We see him light out of the Coach at the shop of the seedsman in Bishopsgate St, whose place of business must have been a Quaker house of call.

His physical strength was failing for most of his many journeyings are now made by coach and often a coach is used when quite short distances of under a mile have to be covered. But occasionally he is able still to ride on horse back though not as of old. Thus in 1686 occurs the entry he went from thence to Ed Mans at Ford Green miles 9 on horse back & with him Mercy Bentall & Walther her husband & prisela Heart went on foot from which we may picture the slow pace at which he rode. At intervals he is able to go short distances also on foot though the fact that a journey of as much as a mile on foot is once or twice recorded in the Journal shews how great an effort it must have been. Exposure to wind and weather and ill usage at the hands of the angry mob and those long years of hard imprisonment were now making their effects felt. But still he continues to move about upon his work. Only as time passes the entries become more frequent which tell of his having to lie down upon a couch or a bed to rest in the course of the days labours.

In 1687 on one occasion we find him attending the early morning meeting of ministering Friends at the Chamber and staying on there instead of proceeding to the neighbouring meeting for worship while William Penn and George Whitehead come in to visit him after the meeting in Gracechurch Street is over.

In 1688 we find him having to leave a First day meeting for worship before the close on account of increasing weak ness and at the general meeting of Friends in 1690 he leaves the meeting after speaking and has to be down at a Friends house

In the winter and spring of 1689—90 we find him spending over five months with his son in law William Mead in Essex but during the whole time out of the nineteen meetings he attends sixteen are in William Mead's house where he is visited by many friends and we may picture him busy as so often in dictating letters and messages to Friends near and far his correspondence going out to the Quaker colonists in America and to the groups of Friends in Holland and in other parts of the Continent of Europe Many of these writings of his later years were printed after his death in the two folio volumes of Epistles and Doctrinals

The later pages of the Itinerary Journal give us now and then brief headings of the subject matter of George Fox's sermons but even a full transcript would hardly convey to us the message as it must have come from that patriarchal figure to the friends who loved and revered him To realize this we need to read William Penn's picture of Fox's ministry recorded in the Preface to the first edition of the Journal Very often though by no means always he seems to have been the only speaker on such occasions we read repeatedly of his going to prayer after preaching and then before the close of the meeting speaking a few words to the people by way of dismissal

Another and more intimate type of meeting is represented in such a record as that at the beginning of the 1686 Journal

The 7th of the 1st mo being the 1st day of the week he had a meeting att Edw Manna with some friends that were come to see him & after some time sitting in Silence he went to prayer and soe Concluded the meeting

The Journal records Fox's presence also at the great gatherings of Friends held at longer intervals like the yearly meetings in 1687 we find him attending a "generall meeting of men friends in the Ministry at the Bull and Mouth," which lasted "from Early in the morning till towards the 12th hour," Penn, Barclay and other eminent Ministers taking part, besides Fox "all that declared & prayed were said to be 28" so that we cannot wonder that he left the meeting "being weary" and lay down upon a bed, before going to a business meeting later in the afternoon. Until the accession of James II, all these meetings were held under the shadow of the danger of arrest, and the frequent entry that the meeting was held "within doors" recalls the fact that often the authorities closed the meetinghouses and posted constables to guard them.

Frequent as the entries in the Journal are, they omit some material dictated or written by Fox himself which Ellwood has made use of: an instance of this is to be found in a folio page preserved at Devonshire House amongst the few leaves known as the 'foul copy' of the Journal. The whole of one side of this page is a journal narrative, entirely in Fox's writing, describing vividly a meeting held in 1683 in the yard of Gracechurch Street meetinghouse, when the constables had closed the meetinghouse and hindered 'john tins'" from speaking, but when Fox himself intervenes most effectually and after his words of exhortation and prayer the constable cannot refrain from expressing his approval and even praying for a blessing upon Fox and his people.

Public opinion was doubtless slowly changing towards a friendlier attitude, which prepared the way for the coming of the Act of Toleration a few years later.

During all these years Fox is living for his work, moving from house to house continually, with no permanent resting place, and only at long intervals able to be with his wife, but the record makes us realize the wealth of friendship that was his, as we read of the many homes thrown open to him, and the way in which his presence is sought, whether it be when he is called out into the country, a ten miles' journey, to visit a sick woman and bring her refreshment of spirit, or to pass the night at the house of another Friend on her deathbed or when his help is needed in lesser cares and troubles

We get but the briefest glimpses of Fox's family life but we can see what a welcome guest he was in the homes of his wife's married daughters, and note how he is called from London to Hingston on several occasions to the sick beds of his wife's grandchildren, to whom he was deeply attached

The intense affection which Fox inspired may be seen again and again in letters and documents written by his contemporaries, though he himself is so reserved in expressing his personal feelings that we do not at first realize this tenderer side of his nature to which the devotion of his friends bears witness

The last of the three documents now printed we owe to the care of Fox's faithful attendant Edward Haistwell a young Friend who writes of him as ' my dear master ' He gives us detailed notes of the long journey made by Fox in 1677 across England from Swarthmoor Hall to the South, holding meetings as he went, and of his missionary voyage in company with William Penn, Robert Barclay, George Keith and a group of other Friends to Holland and North Germany This narrative has been made full use of by Ellwood in preparing the first edition of Fox's Journal, but it is satisfactory to have it as it was actually written, rather than in the form in which it hitherto was known to us, where the account has been put by Ellwood into Fox's own mouth

Some day perhaps similar manuscript volumes to these may come to light giving us itinary notes for the years 1678—1681, and for the year 1682, but the material here available helps us, in a way that has never before been possible, to fill in the background of that inimitable picture of George Fox which William Peun has drawn, which, better than any modern writer's words, reveals to us the man himself as his friends beheld him, and the love that he inspired in others and still inspires to-day

EDITOR'S INTRODUCTION

THE volume now in the hands of the reader consists of three sections —I The Short Journal II The Itinerary Journal III The Haistwell Diary

I THE SHORT JOURNAL

This is a manuscript of 126 oblong pages measuring 8 inches by $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches (see illustration). It is endorsed on the last leaf a short jorvall of giff never war printd of some short thinge from abt y^e year 1548 to King Charles y^e 2^d Dayee, the first eight words being written by George Fox. Below is the following "N^o (g) n^o 1 13, A 1648" which was doubtless some guide to the use of the manuscript in the preparation of the first edition of the Journal of George Fox shortly after Fox's death¹. The handwriting is believed to be that of Henry Fell who though probably not a relative of Judge Fell, was 'Judge Falls clerk, according to a paper, in D, written by Richard Richardson second clerk to Friends from 1681 to 1689. In volume 1 of the Cambridge Journal, page 459 it is stated that Fell frequently wrote letters for Margaret (Fell) Fox, some of which, with some of his own letters, preserved in D, bear a close resemblance to the style of writing of the Short Journal. Fell was a preacher as well as a scrivener, and when in Norfolk he was arrested as a "vagrant, and sent home with the following pass

Barrow of Thetford

Henry Fell an Idle vagrant person & a scurviour of the people, a very suspicious Jesuited deluder & one who denyeth y^e Death of Adversaries & Supremacy, a man of middle stature of some thirty yeares of Age, with browne Curled haire, was this 28 day of May in y^e twelth yeare of his Ma^{ties} reigne of England &c openly whipped in Thetford aforesd^d according to Law, for a wandering Beggar, &c fell 1680 Norfolk See note 48 B

There is no indication, in this section of the book, of the personality of the writer. There are signs of the Journal having been written up at various times: the whole bears evidence of having been copied from other papers. The pages have headings: The Commonwealths Dayes, In the Protector's dayes, In Oliver's Time, In the Kings Time. There are very few corrections. W. C. Braithwaite writes: 'The Short Journal is defective in chronological sequence in some details though the general arrangement of the sections follows the order of Fox's travels. It has the appearance of being an abridgment for the purpose of bringing all his sufferings together (Beginnings of Quakerism, 1912, page 536). Reference to pages 10—13, 24—26, 47, 60 will indicate sufferings described in greater length than before printed. Other variations from the hitherto published Journals of George Fox include: more detailed reports of sermons (pages 1, 3, 6, 9, 12, 13, 17—20, 30, 34, 41); some excess in record of numbers (pages 18, 35, 51, 54, 62, see note 45, 2), and many statements and incidents of interest (pages 2, 11, 13, 14, 17, 20, 21, 23, 27—29, 31, 32, 36, 37, 39, 42, 43, 58, 60, 64, 65, 68, see Introduction). It is not known when this manuscript first became part of the Friends Reference Library (D).

There is also in D another seventeenth century writing covering the same ground as the Short Journal and following it closely. It is comprised in seventy six folios, enclosed in a much soiled paper cover overrun with figures, and is entitled "This is a Book of some of the Travells and passages of G^o ff. It is represented by the letter A. See footnotes. In D are modern copies of the Short Journal—B is a copy made by Emily Jarmyn about 1868, and C is a copy made by Ellen M. Dawes in 1905. Another Jarmyn copy is in the Library of Haverford College, Pennsylvania.

II THE ITINERARY JOURNAL

This is contained in two small books, each measuring 6 inches by 3½ inches. The first book bound in vellum with metal fastener on side has 468 pages and book two bound in rough leather with clasps has 191 pages, through the whole of which runs a worm hole. These are doubtless the 'Little Journall Books, mentioned by Fox as available for a Journal of his life and sufferings. The first volume is prefaced as follows: 'A Journall of {Some of} y^e Meetings and Travells of G^o ff & other passages Beginning 1581 & Continued to y^e 28th 6 mo 1587. The year 1582 is wanting. The title of the second volume runs: 'A Journall of the Travells of G^o ff and the Meetings hee hath been att & {from y^e 23rd 4 mo } in y^e Year 1588 {to y^e 13th of y^e 11 mo 1590 on w^{ch} hee Dyed}. Attached to a blank leaf is the following: 'Having Read G^o ff Journall from the 23rd $\frac{1}{2}$ 1588 To the 13th $\frac{1}{2}$ 1590 on which day he dyed finde it mentioend y^e severall places where he lay, & severall meetings he had bin att & hints of his declaring severall docktrins & exhortations & passages betweene friends to be mentioned in a generall way. BENJ. ANTROBUS.

Between the two books there is a break of nearly ten months: the movements of George Fox during this time are outlined in note 182.2. These little books have been in the Reference Library for many years. Extracts from them appeared in Friends' Quarterly Examiner, January,

1918, under the heading "George Fox as Home Mission Worker" See Second Period of Quakerism, by W C Braithwaite, 1919, p 433

Though in diary form these books were composed from earlier documents and notes of travel, and not by daily or regular entry of events. A document of eleven pages, brown with age, is in D, endorsed "A Journall y^e foul Copy 1682 $\frac{u}{m}$ 14. The substance in y^e Journall, laid by" From the 11th of the First Month, 1682/3 (see page 77), to the end of the first paragraph of page 81, the "foul Journall" and the Itinerary Journal follow one another closely. Matter not in the latter appears in the first six pages of the former. On the last page of the former is the account of the Ringwood incident, given on pages 79 and 80, its presence here serves to explain its inclusion in the Itinerary Journal, the copyist having included the last page without consideration of the nature of its contents. See note 79 7

The writer of the Itinerary Journal, or perhaps it would be better to describe him as copyist, was, in all probability, John Field of London (see note 112 3), the handwriting closely resembling Field's autograph in letters and other documents in D (see illustration). We are told in The First Publishers of Truth that Field "seems to have assisted in some way with the entry of Sufferings on the official records" (page 157 n). Endorsements to a letter in D dated 1693, were made by Benjamin Bealing (Recording Clerk) and John Field. It may be that about this time Field wrote the two little books. It is to be feared that we must remain in ignorance of the personality of the annalist if we regard John Field as the copyist only. The original writer associates himself at times with the events recorded by the use of the word "we" (pages 87, 100, 105, 115, 188 ("our")). Other appearances of the first person are "I think" (page 152), "as I take it" (page 155), "my Master" (page 181, and compare "my dear Master" of the Hautwell Diary, page 278), and "that Night my father Came to visit us at Hartford" (page 216)

This Journal supplies many dates omitted from the Journal of George Fox as first published—the sneer of Thomas Carlyle is not applicable to the Itinerary Journal 'George dates nothing and his facts everywhere lie around him like the leather parings of his old shop' (Cromwell's Letters and Speeches part x) Yet the writer has not been very successful with his dates, as may be seen by reference to the following pages 97 143, 165 185, 187, 204, 209, 216 220 302, 303, 305 308, 311 316, 342

These books throw a flood of light upon the last few years of the life of George Fox spent principally in and near London. The change from the work of the evangelist in earlier years (often viewed as the work of his life time), to that of the pastor or bishop of an active settled Church is noteworthy, and is pictorially portrayed in the difference between the mystic of thirty represented in the frontispiece to vol. I. of the Cambridge Journal and the Lely portrait of Fox as a statesman some 25 years later reproduced in vol. II. The reader will find evidence of this change by reference to notes 80 & 100 5, 201 1

Though far away from his northern home at Swarthmoor, and seeing his wife only twice (page 313) George Fox was within reach of two homes of his wife's children, Rous at Hington and Meade at Gooseyase, and at these homes he was a frequent and welcome visitor. He had no home of his own in the London area (page 295) there is an inserted reference to "his house" on page 174, but this statement is balanced by that on page 87 where, "'being a Lodger,' said Justice Guy, 'I cannot come by his fire'". However, many houses were opened to him and a warm welcome extended. Rebecca Travers expressed the feelings of many when she wrote "I was never better pleased with my house than when hee was in It" (page 312). There are records in the Itinerary Journal of some sixty of the houses of his friends where he was entertained over night more or less frequently and on one occasion he 'lodged at one of y^e worlds house" (page 208) One wonders how arrangements beforehand for nights at so many different homes could have been made, but probably such were not required by either visitor or visited. In Tudor times night garments were not worn and the custom of "the naked bed" referred to by Pepys, May 21, 1660, and explained by his editor H. B. Wheatley 'It was formerly the custom for both sexes to sleep in bed without any night linen," still lingered throughout the seventeenth century. (In The Yea and Nay Academy of Compliments, 1770, a scurrilous piece aimed at early Friends page 80 we read 'We were conducted to our lodging, caps and neck-cloths being brought into the chamber perhaps the other wise uncovered parts only being provided with night-wear. In his Christian Progress 1725, page 393, George Whitehead tells us "On 1st days I took my night caps in my pocket when I went to meetings') Fox also frequently dropped in to a midday dinner, which was the only meal eaten in common during the day (Supper is mentioned only twice in this volume (pages 110 238) and breakfast not at all.) Dinners were important functions—Pepys's menu, on one occasion consisted of "oysters a hash of rabbits, a lamb, a chine of beef a dish of roasted fowl, tart, fruit and cheese," which he considered "noble and enough" (Diary January 13 1662/3, Wheatley Pepyniana, 1899, page 95) But Fox was too busy at times, to undertake a full meal, and would merely "Eat Something" (pages 133, 137, 143) and pass away. In any case he was 'very temperate, eating little and sleeping less, though a bulky person.

Though constantly speaking in the meetings he attended, Fox was thoughtful for the service of others and frequently gave an opportunity for his companions to speak before he rose (see pages 106, 114, 120, 127, 139, 145, 153, 171, 185, 195, 215 and elsewhere) Occasionally he spoke first (pages 95, 98) The statement in an early letter could only have referred to the beginnings of his work in London "Hare are in the City many precious Friends and they begin to know George and one thing they all take notice of that if George be in the company all the rest are for the most part silent" His frequent procedure was to "Declare a pritty long time & go to prayer & after a short testimony conclude the Meeting" We read of nothing to justify the statement of ex-Quaker Francis Bugg (1640—1727) "We have for many years observed, unless it be very lately amended, that when G F is minded to speak first in a Meeting he will soon begin, and when he hath ended his speech though the Meeting be not half spent, yet he goes out likewise if he intend to speak last, he very seldom comes into a Meeting until it be half spent as if he was above the state of waiting or receiving Benefit by others Preaching which manifests his Singularity" (The Painted Harlot Both Stript and Whipt, 1683, preface, p 3) We read little of silence in the meetings At the Sunday Morning Meeting of Ministers, there was a period of silence (pages 143, 170, 174) before a vocal prayer and before Ministers took thier Motions to y^e severall meetings" (page 175), and also at private gatherings (pages 132, 137, 159)

George Fox served the metropolitan Church with ceaseless energy, but the terrible sufferings of his earlier life, added to the constant activity of later days, wore him out, and he died, at the age of sixty-six, a few days after attending at Gracechurch Street Meetinghouse, where he 'Declared a Long time very pretiously & very audably & went to prayer' (page 222) His remains were laid to rest in Bunhill Fields Friends' Burialground in the presence of some four thousand Friends, amid "many tender hearts and watery eyes and contrite spirits."

III THE HAISTWELL DIARY

The third manuscript has only recently been acquired by the Reference Library. The little volume was in the possession of the Forster family for many years and came into possession of Friends from the library of William Edward Forster (1815—1886) on its dissolution in 1922. It has been thought well to add it to the two Journals though somewhat out of order in point of time. It is known as the Haistwell Diary (though coming under the general term of Itinerary Journals, as on the title page of this volume) having been written out fair from earlier documents, by Edward Haistwell (c 1558—1708/9 see note 116 2 and Index) who was George Fox's amanuensis and who recorded the movements of "his Esteemed and welbeloved Friend (and Master) from early in 1677 to the middle of 1678 during a part of which time they travelled together in Holland. This Diary is written in an excellent hand in an oblong book of 150 pages measuring $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches by 8 inches (see illustration), the cover having once been a portion of an illuminated missal for the service of the Mass, words and music, doubtless of much earlier date than the book.

The Diary was in the hands of the committee (see note 222 4) appointed to prepare the Journal of George Fox first published in 1594 corrections being made (see pages 229, 238, 236, 241, 244, 250, 251, 259) and passages crossed through (see pages 241 243 244, 247 256 257 and notes 243 2 257 4) while in the hands of this committee. The period covered is represented in the Journal of George Fox bi-centenary edition, 1891 volume II pages 255—330, for which it serves as a valuable background but many more dates are given and some incidents described more fully, as for example, the visit to Worminghurst the work of Fox in London, and his visit to Lady Conway. There are some seventy-seven names which have not before appeared in the various texts of the Journal. At the close of the Diary occur the words in another hand 'See large Journal p 821 — a reference not now understood. At intervals in the Diary there are lines of shorthand and at the end of the manuscript apart from the conclusion of the narrative, there is a page of shorthand. Attempts have been made at the British Museum in London to decipher this and the Keeper of Manuscripts having very kindly given attention to the matter expresses the view that with time and patience it might be read, despite the use of many arbitrary abbreviations.

For an article on the Diary see volume xix of The Journal of the Friends Historical Society

Edward Haistwell tells us (page 273) that he left his dear Master on Midsummer Day 24th of the Fourth Month (June) 1678 and went to London his Master passing to Ford Green to the house of his friend Edward Mann. Original records for the next three years are at present lacking but from the Journal bi centenary edition we may fill in the blank. For after spending some time in London (volume ii page 326) went to Hertford and there wrote letters dated 10th and 11th of the Fifth Month. Thence he visited many Meetings in the Midlands. George Whitehead sharing in the service a few days on his way to Westmorland. By stages including a visit to John Gratton in Derbyshire he arrived at Swarthmoor Hall in the Seventh Month and remained there till early in the First Month (March) 1679/80. Being moved of the Lord to travel into the South again (volume ii page 343) he left his retreat at Swarthmoor and journeyed through the counties to London arriving in time for the Yearly Meeting of 1680. This annual gathering over and a few weeks spent in London he turned southward into Surrey and Sussex and undertook other southern towns till the winter of 1680—81 which was spent in London. Short visits into Essex and North Middlesex occupied his time till the Yearly Meeting of 1681, and not long after that event the record of his stay at Worminghurst in Sussex with William Penn (volume II. page 358) links the story of his life with the opening of the Itinerary Journal (page 75)

THE EDITOR desires to express his appreciation of the courtesy of the Royal Insurance Company, Limited, of London also of the Guild hall Librarian, in giving permission to reproduce the block printed as frontispiece to this volume

He also wishes to acknowledge the frequent and valuable assistance of the Librarians of the Friends Reference Library Bishopsgate, London, during a period of many months.

THE SHORT JOURNAL

¹GEORGE FOX So Called of the World but the world knows neither him nor his {new} name, Here are some of his sufferings y^t hee hath suffered by the world and their Professors Priests & Teachers For preaching the truth Christ y^t never ffall nor will fall nor chang but ends all the changing figures and Types and shadows in Adam in the fall, Christ y^t never fall nor Never will fall.

[In Mansfield there came a Priest who was looked upon to bee above others and all y^t profest themselves above the priests went to hear him and cryed him upp I was against their going and spoke to them ag^t their going and asked them if they had not a Teacher w^hin them The Annoynting to teach them, And why would they go out to man

And then when they were gone to hear him I was in a sore travell and it came upon mee that I was Moved to go to the steple house to tell the people and y^e priest and to bid them to cease from man whose breath was in their Nostrils, and to tell them where their Teacher was, w^hin them the spirit and y^e light of Jesus, And that How God y^t made the world doth not dwell in Temples made w^h hands and many other things concerning the truth I spake to them * they were pretty Moderate to hear y^e truth, whereby after * wrought upon.

First I was imprisond in Nottingham for speaking to a priest in y^e Steeplehouse for] as I passed to Nottingham as I looked upon y^e Town The great steeplehouse [struck att my life when I spyed it a great Idol and Idolatrous Temple] And so I went to the Meeting and after a while I went to the Steeplehouse¹ as I was Moved I spake to the priest, and y^e priest said y^t the Scriptures were the touchstone and Judg and were to try all doctrines and appease and to end

* Edge of first leaf worn away A has end

* Edge of first leaf worn away A has many more

Controversies att which sayings of his I said y^t the Scriptures were not y^e Judg but y^e holy ghost y^t gave them forth was the Judg and Touchstone for the pharisees had the Scriptures and y^e Jewes and professors, but the Controversies are not ended then after they had mee before the Maior and Aldermen who sent mee to prison, a pittifull stinking place, [where the wind brought all the stench^a of the house of office in y^e place]where y^e stench^a of y^e place was in my throat and had many dayes after and then in y^e Evening I was brought to the Sheriffs¹ house, and the sheriffs wife said y^t salvation was comed to her house and all their family was wrought upon by y^e power of y^e lord, And they beleaved in the truth and this being y^e first day of y^e week, the next Seaventh day y^e Sheriffs himself spake the truth in a paire of slippers in y^e market amongst the people and his family very many others being wrought upon

The Maior and some of y^e Aldermen caused mee to be sent to another prison where I was kept till I was sett^b Liberty [when I was a prisoner in the same place there came a woman to the prison and two wth her and said y^t shee had been possessed two and thirty years² And the priests had kept her and had kept fasting dayes about her, and could not do her any good and shee said the lord said unto her arise for I have a Sanctified people hast and go to them for thy redemption draweth nigh, and when I came out of prison I had friends have her to mansfield, and at that time our meetings were disturbed by wild people and both them and the Professors and priests said y^t wee were false prophets and deceivers and y^t there was witchcraft amongst us, and the poor woman would make such a noyce in roaring and Sometimes lying along upon her belly upon the ground and wth her spirit and roaring and voyce, and would set all friends in a heat and sweat And I said all friends keepe to y^e owne, lest y^t which is in her gett into y^e and so she affrightend the world from our meetings and then they said if that were cast out of her while shee were wth us, and were made well then they would say y^t wee were of God, thus said the world and I had said before y^t shee should be set free, and then it was upon mee that wee should have a meeting at Skekby at Elizabeth Huttons¹ house, where was had her there and there were many friends almost overcome by her wth y^e stunk y^e came out of her roaring and tumbling on the ground, and y^e same day shee was worse then ever shee was, and then another day wee mett about her, and about y^e first hour y^e life rose in friends, and said it was done, and shee rose upp & her Countenance changed and became white and before it was wanne and earthly, and she sat down at my thigh as I was sitting and lift up her hands and said ten thousand praise the lord and did not know where shee was and so shee was well² and wee kept her about a fortnight in y^e sight of y^e world and shew wrought and did thinges, and * sent her away to her friends, And then the worlds professors, priests & Teachers never could call us any more false prophette deceivers or witches after but it did a great deal of good in y^e Countrey among people in relacon to y^e truth and to y^e Stopping the mouths of y^e world and their slanderous Aspersions]

2th And in Lecestershire as I was passing thorow the fields I was moved to go to Lester and when I came there I heard y^t there were many to preach and it was so and I was moved to go among them and after I had heard severall speak, and at last a woman asked a question And the priest in y^e pulpit said I permitt not a woman to speak in y^e church, though hee had before given liberty for any to speak and then I stood upp and spake and said dost thou call this mixt multitude a Church, [and then I spoke how y^e the Church was in God the father of our lord Jesus Christ and what the woman was y^t was not to speak, and w^t the woman was y^t might prophecy and speak, and it broke them all to peeces and confused them, and they all turned ag^t mee into Jangling and they broke upp and came to a house from the steeple house, & y^e truth set them all in a heat and scattered them from the house and steeple house and the power of y^e lord came over them all, and the truth]

3th In Darbyshire at Chesterfield where I was moved of the lord by his power to go to y^e steeplehouse and when I had spoken w^t was upon mee to speak they put mee forth of y^e steeple house and y^e Maior sent for mee [and after some speech wth mee about coming to y^e steeple house and when it was said to him whether was it better to obey god or man

 Judg yae, and y^e Apostles sufferred for declareing ag^t y^e Temple, and did bring people to Christ from y^e Traditions] and so hee caused y^e watchmen to put us out of y^e Town about y^e eleventh hour of y^e night

And the priest¹ preached of mae y^t I was taken up into y^e clouds wth a whirlewind and I was found full of gold & silver, upon which my outward friends sent for mee and I wrote to them and they shewed it to y^e priest, and hee said any man might write but where is y^e man And they sent to mee agⁿ and I went and when I came into Darbyshire I had a discourse of the thinges of God wth them, and they acknowledged y^e truth most of them and one said hee had been a professor forty years & hee had not tasted of y^e love of God So much for his heart was opened wth it

Then wee passed through friends to Darby Town, and after I had visited friends, The next morning the Bell did ring, and I asked y^m what it rung for and they said it was for a Sermon, and it struck at my life and then I was moved to go and two others wth mee to y^e steeple house and when y^e priest had done I spoke to him and the people [of the truth and the day of y^e lord and the light wthin them and the spirit to teach and lead them to God] and after a while they haled mee out and had mee before Collonels and Justices and Priests, and the Examination held from y^e first houre until the Ninth houre And I told them y^t God was power and a Consuming fire and not for them to dispute of him for all their preaching sprinkling, sacraments would never sanctifie a man nor their readings or expoundings, And they said was I sanctified, and I said yee And they said had I no sin I said no Christ had taken away my sin And then they made a Mittimus, and sent mee and another^a to y^e house of Correction, and the other did not prove faithfull but made for his liberty and gotte out of prison and then the priests, Justices, professors, and people were in a rage and said y^t I was a deceiver and a false prophet and a seducer, And then the lord open to mee if all forsook mee my spirit doubled to mee^a, and y^t I was a king sett for y^e defiance of y^e faith y^t giveth victory, and y^e hope y^t purifieth as hee was pure, and y^e beleefe y^t passed from death to life in wth

condemnacon is not And all other hopes, faiths, beleefa, y^t doe not give victory and punieth and passeth out of death to life Judg and deny And great disputes I had wth all sorts of people, and as I preached down sin the priests raged^a and preached up sin And the Goaler and y^e Justices were in a rage ag^t mee and y^e lord smote y^e Justices and y^e Goaler That the Goaler came trembling up to mee, and said y^t hee had done mee wrong and had spoken ag^t mee and hee would speak to them¹

And hee told his wife y^t hee saw the day of Judgment & hee saw mee there and was afraid of mee, for hee had done mee wronge And so hee was like the Goaler in y^e Acts y^t came to the Apostles and he must lye wth mee hee said, and hee went to y^e Justice y^t first called us Quakers whose name was Bennet^a and told him y^t hee was willing to keep mee, but not as a prisoner for hee did beleefe y^t the plagues would never depart from his house as long as hee kept mee a prisoner, and the Justice said hee beleefed the same, and y^t I was the honestest man amongst them all and hee y^t had got his liberty y^t was Imprisoned wth mee, they said hee was a knave and they wandred at him y^t hee did not stand to his principle [and the poor man was in trouble a great while before hee returned to y^e power of God againe]

Then they gave mee liberty more then I had and y^t I might walk a little upp and down, and then they thought I would have gone away, and then one night they had mee before the Commisaioners and would have had mee to take upp Arms and to bee a Soldiour and I told them I stood in that which took away the ocation of warre and fightings, and They in a rage sent mee away wth the Goaler and bid him put mee in the dungeon, where hee did in a low place in the ground and lousey and there I was kept a great while, [and then I was taken out and put in y^e high Goale, and there I was kept till I was sett freely at liberty, who had been kept a year wthun three weeks, in four prisons and the house of Correction, and at y^e Town prison house and the Countrey Goale and dungeon and this was in 1550 in the 30th of y^e moneth called October^a in the Common wealths dayes and then the light and truth and glory of y^e lord flowed & spread abroad]

4th In yorkshire I was moved to go to Beverley and upon the 7th day at night I came to an Inne very wett, and the next day being y^e first day I went to y^e steeple house as I was moved of y^e lord and when the priest had done I spake to him, and the people [of y^e truth of God and the day of y^e lord and the light of Christ within them and of y^e spirit and of Gods teaching by the spirit and y^t God y^t made y^e world did not dwell in temples made wth hands,] and the Major came to mee, [and took mee by the hand] and reasond moderately wth mee and so after a while I passed away and they reported y^t a spirit had been there for they were in an amazement I came suddenly and so passed away suddenly, y^t when I came a great way off y^t was y^e report amongst y^e great ones

And in the afternoon I went about 3 miles off Beverley and there went into y^e steeple house and when the priest had done I spake to him & y^e People largely and they were moderate and many heard the truth gladly and desired mee to give them another meeting, and so y^e truth had its passage

And then I was moved towards y^e lands end in Holderness and as I went I spake thorow the townes and by y^e sea side, and to people in y^e fields of y^e day of y^e lord y^t was coming upon all ungodlynesse and unrighteousnesse, and how y^t Christ was come to teach his people himself and as I was preaching and speaking through a town called Patrington And as I passed down the town I was moved to bidd people to repent & fear the lord and come off all their false Teachers for y^e day of y^e lord was coming upon all sin and wickednes and the priest being in y^e town street and hearing mee and as I went down y^e street I spake to y^e people and some heard and others said y^t I was madd, and it began to be dark, and I being thirsty I desired drink or milk and meat & saying y^t I would pay them for it and they would not, and then I passed out of y^e Town, & some followed mee, and asked mee "some questions about outward things", and I had them fear the lord [and prize thair time for I saw thair question was tempting,] and they left mee and so I passed on and lay out all y^e night

way and passed towards a Town and in y^e way there came a man after mee wth a great staffe when it was hardly light and hee went wth mee to y^e town and raised the town and the Constables upon mee hee having a warrant y^t they had made at Patrington and the Constables brought mee wth staves to Patrington where I had a great service wth priest and people the whole town in a manner being upp & they sent mee to a Justice, and when I came near the Justices house, there came a man to mee and asked mee if I were y^e man y^t was apprehended and I said I was, and he said for my sake hee was there and went before mee to y^e Justice and when I came to y^e Justice he bid mee put off my hat, and I said did it trouble him and y^e man y^t spake to mee on y^e way told him it was tenderness^a. And I took it of in my hand and said to him doth this trouble thee and I put it on again and bid him mind the witness of Christ the light in him y^t sheewed him his sunns and his evill deeds y^t hee had done and he confessed to y^e truth and I was sett at liberty, and I went back wth y^e man y^t said hee was there for my sake to Patrington for hee lived there and the next first day I had a great meeting at his house in y^e after noone where many of y^e Countrey was gathered and many were convinced, and in y^e forenoons I went to y^e steeplehouse and spake to y^e priest and people and they were pretty moderate and a great many were convinced in y^e Countrey

And I was moved to go to y^e formost town in Holdernesse and spake through the Town three times, and then the officers put mee forth of y^e Town and People had a report y^t I would never come into ~~Hold~~ nor Towns and as I passed out of that Countrey I came to an Ale house and I desired Lodging and other necessary things and they would not Except I would go to y^e Constable^d and I passed away and lay out all y^e night

^aAnd from the forementioned Town wth I had passed through in Holdernesse 3 times I was moved to go to a steeplehouse in Yorkshire^b and when the priest had done I spake to him and the people, and they were all light, and after I had spoken to them the truth I sleighted their light spirits and there came at night the heads of y^e Town where I lay and was convinced of y^e truth and there was a priest

convinced¹ and after there was a Rantor² that was to dispute wth mee who was mightily looked upon by y^e People in the Countrey and when he came he said it was shewed to him y^t I should bee sitting in a chayre and it was so and y^t he should bow down to the ground before mee and hee did so before y^e people and priests and the first words I was moved to say to him was repent thou [Swine and] Beast and he said it was Jealousie and I asked him what was the ground of Jealousie and the ground of a heathen in man and gave mee account of thinges in the body before wee discourse of thinges out of the body and they were all amazed and astonished and the truth came over all and the witness of God answered and their wadome confounded.

And when the meeting was broken upp the next morning one Priest Levens³ that was there desired mee to go alone wth him for hee had some questions to aske mee So I took his Brother [William Radcliffe]⁴ wth mee, and so he asked mee somethings and I answered him but his intent was to have taken away my life and have murdered mee alone for after he had parted wth mee hee met wth a priest in a rage and broke his cane upon the ground in madnesse and said if ever hee mett mee hee would have my life and hee would give his head if I were not knocked down within a moneth but truth came over all and there was another priest sent to dispute wth me under a cover hearing I was to go out of y^e Countrey and when I came he got away and would not be seen and so truth came over his head and the people came to see it and his folly.

In Yorkshire there was a Justice⁵ very loving and said his house was myne and I was moved to go to the steeplehouse and hee went wth mee in the fields and he said in himself If I spoke they would put mee to him and there came a Captaine⁶ a friend and went wth mee and y^e Justice went back and I had a brave service wth y^e priest and people and the truth came over all in laying open the false Teachers and priests and the truth and the true Teachers and the light and the spirit of Christ in them and y^e God y^t made y^e world dwell not in temples made wth hands but their bodyes was the temples of y^e holy ghost

And in the afternoon I was moved to go to another

steeplehouse and there when I came y^e Priest was preaching and was bidding y^e People to come without money and without price, and hee had three hundred pounds a year of them and so I said to him did hee bid them come without price and had hee so much a year and took tyth of them come down thou hyreling and hee fled away, and I had a fine time to speak y^e truth to y^e People and they received it and did not oppose but it came over all and I passed away

And I was moved to go to [Stokslye]¹ steeplehouse, and when y^e priest had done I spoke to him as I was moved and to y^e people the truth of God and they were moderate and I lett them see their true Teacher, [and how that their Teacher was found in the steppes of the false teachers, and how y^e lord was comd to teach his people himselfe, and y^e light which Christ did enlighten w^hall they might come to in y^e selves and so by it come to Christ, so when wee were gone out of the steeplehouse into y^e street, the priest sent for mee to his house and I sent to him and had him to come into y^e street among y^e People to try his ministry and himself and it was in the snow in the winter, and hee did not come] and so I passed away in y^e truth y^e reacheth in all hearts

And I was moved to a steeple house which James Nayler was a member of² and when I came into it the priest was preaching and when hee had done, I spake to him, and hee and the people had mee come up to him, and I went up to y^e pulpit, and beganne to speak to him and y^e People thrust mee out of y^e doore and chancery and haled and pulled mee upp and down and cryed for y^e stocks and threatened mee w^h them and this was y^e greatest professor in y^eshire³, but y^e truth came over all and a great service was y^e day of the truth there and at a meeting not farre off

I was moved to go to Moten⁴ steeple house in y^eshire upon a lecture day the day when y^e Markett was and y^e priest was preaching to about a dozen people and when hee had done there came another priest and would have had mee to go upp into y^e pulpit and I denied it, and this priest went to y^e other priest & asked him for my going upp into y^e pulpit and he said yes I might and then the priest came to mee ag⁵ and would have had mee to go into y^e pulpit, and

because I would not some of the people beganne to call mee a deceiver and then began to bee a Tumult, I stood upon a seat and cryed for Audiance and spake to them freely many hundreds of people there was and a great service for y^e truth there was of opening the truth and speaking it to them and largely and letting them see the true teacher the spirit of God and the light in them selves, and the false teachers w^hout them for their ends meanes, and money and the truth came over all, and wee passed away peaceably in the truth of God answereing the witness of God in all

And then I was moved to go to Doncaster steeplehouse and was moved to speak the truth both to y^e priest and people where they plucked mee out beating mee and throwing mee down and bruised mee sore & then had mee before y^e Maior and other officers and after they had threatned mee they sett mee at liberty, and said If I came againe my blood bee upon my owne head and turned mee amongst y^e rude multitude who stoned us and there was a Bayliffe y^e took mee into his house, & y^e rude people broke his head y^e y^e blood runne down his face and about his house the rude people waited [and hee was lett I told him y^e ventured himselfe and took us into his house from y^e rude multitude] And when wee went out of y^e Town they stoned us a great way out of y^e Town some friends being w^h me

And I was moved to go to Tickell in Yorkshire and when friends was in y^e meeting and fresh and full of y^e life and power of God I was moved to go to y^e steeplehouse and y^e priest had done & I went upp among them in the chancery, and was beginning to speak and they beat mee about y^e head, y^e I was all bloody, and it runne of mee in the steeple house, and then they cryed take him out of the Church and they punched mee and thrust mee out and beat mee sore w^h Books fists and sticks and threw mee over a Hedge into a close and there beat mee, and then threw mee over agⁿ and then beat mee into a house punching mee into a house, and through the entry, and there I lost my hatt and never had it agⁿ there they ston'd and beat mee along sorely Blooded and bruised and then I went into a friends house, and y^e priest beheld a great part of this his peoples doings, and then in o^r friends yard I spake the truth to them priest and people [they being in the street and I in y^e friends yard on a wall my spirit being revived agⁿ by the power of God, for through their bruising beating bleeding stoning and throwing mee down I was almost mazed, and my body sore bruised but by y^e power of the lord I was refreshed agⁿ to him be y^e glory and so I passed away]

And after I had been at Tickell steeple already spoken of I was moved to go to warnsworth steeplehouse, & some friends followed mee, and they went into y^e steeple house And Thomas Aldam² went in to his seat and y^e Priest said hee would catechuse him and beganne to speak to him, and they shutt the door and kept mee out and then they open'd the doore and I went in, and y^e Priest lost his matter and said what come you hither for and hee asked agⁿ the same question And then hee said hee would prove us false prophete in the 7^o of Mathew, and 24^o of Mathew, and hee could not go on but asked agⁿ what came wee thither for, and all this time I was silent and said y^e a question being asked it might be answered, [and he said did I come to catch and then I beganne to speak forth the truth amongst y^m and of y^e false prophette & how hee was in y^e stepps of them, & I held forth Christ,] and they thrust mee out and shutt y^e steeplehouse door [and I staid in y^e steeplehouse yard till they came forth and then I beganne to speak to y^e priest and people the truth and how hee was in the footsteps of y^e pharisees] & y^e priest shook mee & y^e people beat mee, and threw clods at mee and struck mee wth their crabb tree staves, and threw mee about and the Justice gave forth a warrant for mee & Thomas Aldam And they took Thomas their towns man and I saw a vision [a man and] two Mastiffe doggs and a Bear and I passed by them and they [smiled upon mee*]

And the warrant was for all wstrydsing to take mee and the Constable saw mee and did not take mee, and hee went wth Thomas to york prison and as they went they came to a place where I was and staid y^e night & y^e next dayes meeting, and after I passed wth the Constable and Thomas towards the prison and the Constable said hee had a warrant for mee to take mee and hee had seen mee before and did not take mee For hee was loath to trouble honest men, [and hee had y^e warrant in his pocket and desired mee y^e I should not tell any one y^t he saw mee, and I told him I could not lie and so wee parted] And hee went wth Thomas Aldam to y^{ork} prison [where they kept him two years, and this was in the Common wealths dayes.]

And I was moved to go to Mansfield wood house steeple house on a first day out of y^e meeting in Mansfield in Nottinghamshire and when the priest had done I began to speak the truth to them in the steeple house of Mansfield woodhouse a mile from Mansfield and y^e People fell upon mee wth their fists Books and w^{thout} Compassion or mercy beat mee down in y^e steeplehouse and almost smothered mee in it being under them and sorely I was bruised in y^e steeplehouse & threw mee ag^t y^e walls and when y^t they had thrust and throwen mee out of y^e steeple house when I came into y^e yard I fell down being so sorely bruised and beat among them and I got up agⁿ and then they punched and thrust and struck mee upp and down and they set mee in y^e stocks & brought a whipp to whipp mee but did not, [and as I satt in y^e stocks they threw stones at mee and my head Armes Breast and shoulders and Back and sides were so bruised Mazed and dazled wth y^e Blowes, and I was hote when they put me in y^e stocks,] and then they came and took mee out to a great mans house [and Examined mee and I reasoned wth them of y^e thinges of God and of God and his teachings, and Christs and how y^t God y^t made the world did not dwell in Temples made wth hands, and of divers thinges of the truth I spake to them] and then they set mee at liberty, and a great deale of rude people was ready to fall upon mee [wth staves but y^e Constable kept them of, and when they had set mee at liberty they threatned mee wth pistols, if ever I came againe they would kill mee and shoutt mee and that they would carry their pistols to y^e steeple house and wth threatning I was freed & when I was passing along y^e fields friends mett mee, and I was so bruised when I was cold y^t I could not turn mee in my bed, and bruised inwardly att my heart, but after a while the power of y^e lord went through mee and healed mee, y^t I was well Glory to y^e lord for ever, and this was in Nottinghamshire in the Common wealths days]

And in Lecestershire I was moved to go from a meeting and other friends to Bagath steeple house and some they

lett in, and mee they kept out, and they shutt the doors and shut others out besides many of their owne people and when they had their sermon as they called it they opened the door and I went in and began to speak y^e truth to them, and they heard mee a while and then after a while they rushed mee out, and I spoke to them in y^e steeple house yard the truth of God and they had much ado to hold their hands off mee and us, and there wee had good service and the truth came over all and so wee passed away]

[And I was moved to go to Boseth¹ steeplehouse in Leicester shire on a lecture day being y^e market day and I spake to the priest and people [in y^e steeple house and yard of y^e truth and light w^hun them to guide them to Christ from sinne, and the Clerk bid us go out of y^e steeple house for hee was to locke y^e door and when wee were in the Markett friends asked where was y^e place to try the ministers but in y^e steeplehouse and bid them to come forth and prove their call and ministry, and the people of the town and Markett fall upon us and stoned us very sore and abused us hundreds of them w^h stoned a great way out of the town that it was a wonder y^t wee escaped w^h our lives and so passed away in the truth of God to the shame of both priests and professors for there were many their,] and friends had but litle harme

And in Warwickshire in Adderstonne [when I was two miles of it the Bell rung upon a Market day for a lecture, and it struck at my life and] I was moved to go to y^e steeple house [and when I came into it I found a man speaking and when as I stood among y^e people the glory and life shined over all, and w^h it I was crowned and when the priest had done I spake to him and y^e people the truth and y^e light w^h lett them see all y^t ever they had done, and of their teacher w^hun them and how the lord was come to teach them himself, and of y^e good Christ in them how they were to mind that, and y^e promise y^t was to y^e seed of God w^hun them w^h is Christ and it set them in a Hurry and under a rage and some said I was madd, and spoke to my outward Relations to tye mee upp, and sett them in a rage but the truth came over all, and I passed away in peace in y^e power of the lord God, and the truth came over all and reached in y^e hearts of many people.

And in Darbyshire] I was moved to go to a steeplehouse on a markett day being y^e lecture day, and when the priest had done I spake to him and the people [of y^e truth and the light and] of y^e day of y^e lord, [and of Gods work in them, and the truth in them and the spirit] and the teacher w^{thin} them and of their teachers w^{thout} them And how y^t the priest had said that the people loved to have it so In Jeremy the 5^o but he left out the priests preached for Hire and bear rule by their meanes and y^e People love to have it so [and when I told the priest of his wronging the Scriptures and y^t hee did not speak it all, for if hee had, it had been his own Condi^{ti}on and he fled away and y^e people fell upon us and put us out and so wee passed away in the truth

And at a Sessions in Yorkshire¹ held in y^e steeple house, there being a great free School house hard by it And in it wee had a meeting where there were many priests and professors, and many of them disputing and reasoning wth mee and the truth came over all & answered all and there was an Old man a priest² convinced y^t when the people came to him and told him to take his Tyth he denied it and said he had enough and there were four chiefe Constables convinced then and there the priests and people were very loving, and I was desired of them to many places and y^e Old man y^e priest went upp and down wth mee to many steeple houses and the people would ring the Bells when wee came into a town thinking I would speak and the truth spread and I spoke in many steeplehouses, but I did not come into their pulpitts [and some places where the priests were paid, they fled away from the town when as I came to it and the people would break open the doors If I would go into y^e steeplehouse if y^e Churchwardens would not open it, but I would not let y^m but spake to y^m in y^e yards or any where the truth of God and in love it was received and many Justices were loving in Yorkshire, and the truth

¹ And in Yorkshire there I had a meeting in a place called Hightown² which the next day there plotted together a Company of people to destroy mee, and they y^t were wth mee, and there came the next day a man wth a Pike and sword and a Pistol and a crook to have plucked us out of y^e meeting house where wee had been to have destroyed us but

wes were gone hardly a quarter of an hour before away out of the house before they came rageing, and y^e man y^t had y^e sword y^t should have murdered us hee had kild one man before, but wes were gone, I lay out all y^e night, and in a wood & it being a great rains, wes were very wet, [but there were few friends but y^e truth got over all, & by y^e power of y^e lord wes escaped, out of y^e martherous hands, glory to y^e lord god for ever]

At Twicrosse in Lecestershire I was moved to go to see a great man y^t was sicke & after I had spokt to him in his bed, and y^e power of y^e lord entered him that hee was loving and tender and I left him and came down among the family in the house and spake a few words to y^e people [y^t they should fear the lord and repent and prize their time & the like words] and there came one of his servants wth a naked sword and runne at mee ere I was aware of him, and sett it to my side and there held it and I looked up at him in his face and said to him alack for thee its no more to mee then a straw and then hee went away in a rage wth threatening words and I passed away, and y^e power of the lord came over all & his master manded [according to my beliefs and faith y^t I had seen before] and he then turned this man away that runne at me wth y^e sword

[I was moved to go from a Meeting in Nottinghamshire to a steeplehouse, and when y^e priest had done I spake to him & y^e People and the priest went away but y^e people staid and heard y^e truth declared to them till it was wthin the night and I was moved to kneele down in y^e steeple house and pray among y^e people and there came a woman and kissed the crown of my head when I was praying in the dark behind mee and shee was one of y^e world and there combined together a Company of men to hale mee out, and they did for there were many then y^t had a love to the truth, but it was wall and the truth came over all, and it made them to love it the more, and wes had a meeting in y^e town, and so I passed away in the truth of God and y^t was over all

I was moved to a steeplehouse on a lecture day at Nottingham, where there were many priests, and when hee y^t was speaking had done, I spake to them and the people, and called them off their worshippes and temples and teachers to y^e Annoynting whin them, and to look at the temple of God in themselves and to worship God in the spirit and had a great reasoning wth the people and passed away and the truth came over all and went to y^e priests house, where there was another priest and had a great dispute wth them about sprinkling children & other thinges concerning the truth, w^{ch} came over all their heads and so I passed away]

There being warrante all over y^e west Hydeing to take mee and the Constable having the warrant in his pockett told mee of it, and said y^t hee could take mee but hee was loath to trouble mee, and hee stayed wth mee at a meeting, and after I passed away Northwards, and there were no friends and sometimes I laid out all night though in y^e winter season, and I came in my travels to a house being weary, and bid the woman bring mee some meat & milke or cream if shee had any and shee said shee had none I was moved to seke her for it though I did not matter for it, and there was a litle child laid his hands on a churme in which there was a great deale of cream, and plucked it down before my face and it runne like a poole in the floore of y^e house and y^e woman fell a Blessing her and beating the child¹, and so I passed away being at night in y^e winter three or four dayes before y^t time called Christmas when it did snow and blow and so was out all y^e cold night, and this was in Yorkshire And thus the truth brought y^e truth to light

And I was moved to go into y^e North and as I passed through y^e towne I bid the People repent for the mighty day of y^e lord was coming upon all sin and wickedness and so I passed on and came to an ale house where I staid all night, and y^e lord opened to mee that hee had a great people in y^e north, w^{ch} I saw by a river [y^t parted two Counties¹], how they came forth in shineing white rayment and so I gave forth pap^r to that Countrey for the Ale wife woman to disperse which shee did which astonished people and admired them, and shewed them to people in the Markett, which made them to beleave the truth, and then I passed away, and came to a house, and the man would have given mee money, [and I was moved to shake my hand at it and bidd him mind the lord, and Christ the teacher in him, for hee was coming to bring them off of all y^e worlds teachers, and the lord would teach his people himselfe]

And so I passed away being among y^e fell Countreys, and lay out all night, and a stranger, and so y^e next day I passed upp to a Market town¹ upon a Markett day, and spake to y^e people and bid them repent [and take heed of deceitfull merchandize] and worshipp God in the spirit and truth and so I passed away upp winsadayle, and declared the truth through all y^e townes as I went, and people took mee for a madd man and distracted and some followed mee and questioned wth mee and was astonished & there followed mee a Schoolemaster and gotte mee into a house and thought I had been a young man y^e was gone away distracted y^e was gone away from my parents and thought to have kept mee but they being astonished at my answers and the truth I spake to them they could not tell what to say, and would have had mee to have staid all night but I was not to stay but passed away [and wandred in y^e night]

And at last I came to an alehouse where there was some fellows drinking [and I walked up and down in y^e house and after a tyme they boganne to drink to mee and then I spake to them the truth and warning them of y^e mighty day of y^e lord y^e was comeing and bid them take heed to that wth shrewed them sin and evill in their hearts upon wth one rose ag^t mee wth a clubb and so they held one another and then they were quiet] I walking out as to have gone to have lyeen all night at doores and hee y^e would have strucks mee followed mee [and so I was moved to come into y^e house ag^t and so staid there all night and the next morning I was moved to tell y^e man of y^e house y^e I was y^e sonne of God² and was come to declare y^e Everlasting Truth of God, and did declare the truth to him and them and so hee had mee down amongst some professors who after I had declared truth to them and they received it, and they directed mee to other professors.]

And then I came to one Bousfields [in Gaudaile]³ where there were many convinced, and from thence I was directed to Gervase Bensons⁴ where there was a meeting of professing people, and I lay at Richard Robinsons⁵ and speaking to him hee was convinced, and y^e next day being the first day of y^e week⁶ I went down to y^e meeting where they were generally convinced y^e day and generally received Truth, and came to y^e teacher w^hin them Christ Jesus

Presently after there was a great fair to be at Sedbury¹, near Gervase Bensons where many young people came to be hyred and I went through the fair and spake and then went unto y^e steeple house yard [and gotte upp by a tree] and spoke to y^e people largely, many Professors and priests being there and to bring them off of their teachers to Christ their Teacher and to come off, of their worshippes to worship God in the spirit and to come off of their Churches to the Church in God, and had no opposition but only one Cap^t which said the steeple house was the Church which I told him y^e was a place of lme and stone and wood, [for the Church was in God as in Thess 1 and 1 *] and so after had some few words hee passed away and the truth came over all, and many were satisfied concerning it and when I was passing away, one priest said to y^e people I was distracted his mouth being stopped by y^e power of God for opposing y^e was onely his over to y^e People and so I passed away and had some other meetings upp and down in that Countrey where divers were Convinced and received the Truth

And then I came to Fforbank Chappel² where there was a great meeting of y^e sober people of y^e Countrey and severall speakers where some moderate people desired mee not to speak unto y^e speakers because they were something contrary to y^e world and there were many sorts of people there and so not to speak to them in y^e steeplehouse and indeed there was nothing upon mee to speak to them and so afterward when y^e meeting was done in the forenoone I went upon the hill in the afternoone and y^e people came to mee for the steeplehouse would not hold them in y^e morning & someould men went unto y^e steeplehouse as being a strang thing for a man to speak out of y^e steeplehouse, and so after a while I beguane to speak to y^e People and all quiet, and y^e greatest part of a thousand people [were convinced] that day

So I passed away and y^e week following I had a meeting at Preston Chappell³ where there were many convinced and so I went unto y^e steeplehouse and I told them I did not hold up those places, but to bring off of such thinges [to the church in god, and to worshupp God, in the spirit and truth, y^e people might come off, of their false worshippes and off of their false teachers, and teachers to y^e church in God, and to bee taught of Christ, and to come off of their days and tymes & sprinkling infants and their other ceremonies, to Christ the light and spirit w^hin them, and so after the truth was fully declared to them I passed away, and there was a generall Convincement]

And then I passed to Hendall¹ where I had a meeting in the Mout hall peaceably and quiet where the truth was received by many and then I passed to underbarrow² where there were many professing people

And the word of the Lord came to mee y^t I might appoynt a meeting in the steeplehouse at underbarrow and some was for it and some was ag^t it but at last I prevailed to have a meeting there and had a large meeting and the priest came and all was quiet and truth received in love by many And from thence I passed to Newton³ where there were many professors which received truth

And then I was moved to go to [Stable⁴] steeple house, and after when the priest had done I spoke and they hurried mee out all was on a fire and they took mee and threw mee over a grave yard wall, but I received no harm and there I spoke the truth to them

And from thence I came to Swarthmoore⁵ which when I came there the priest of ulverston⁶ followed and said as I said deceitfully which was a Ranter, and had liberty to do any thing, who professed Christ highly in words but was neither comed unto y^e law nor John and could witnesse neither in the truth, nor as being in either of them

And then I passed to ulverston steeple house in y^e week day and spoke when the priest was silent, how hee was a Jew y^t was one inward and hee was not a Jew y^t was one outward, but hee was one y^t was one inward that was of y^e spirit, and so how they might come out of their outward Ordinaunces and traditions of men to y^e light of Christ Jesus, which hee had enlightned them and they plucked mee out of their steeplehouse, and so after a time when they had thrust mee out I passed away

The next first day I went to Aldingham steeplehouse, and after y^e priest had done, I spoke to y^e People [the Goeple, y^e truth y^e light of Jesus Christ in their owne hearts, which he had enlighthned y^m y^t they might all come to, y^t lett y^m see, all y^t ever they had done and said and acted, and y^t would bee their teacher when they were about their labours.] The priest told mee Mathew, Mark, Luke and John was y^e Gosple, I told him y^e Gosple was the power of God.

And then I passed the afternoons to Ramside¹, where y^e priest of y^e parish had given notice of my coming there and a Commendation of y^e truth, which after he received, and forsook his place, and there was a great meeting abundance of people and heard truth willingly

Then I came to Swarthmoore agⁿ And from thence to Dalton steeplehouse another first day when the priest had done, I spoke y^e truth to y^e people largely [and the people grew Brutish and fell of ringing the Bells, but the truth came over all.]

And I went after to Wany's steeplehouse, an Island² when the priest had done I spoke [the truth] to y^e People to come off all false teachers to Christ Jesus whin them, y^e light the true teacher And so people being rude after a while wee passed away and in y^e afternoon wee went up agⁿ and y^e Priest hid himself in a corn land hearing wee were coming and so wee passed away in the truth over all

And a meeting was appoynted at a Chappell a little beyond Gleanston³ where there was never priest preached in it, where wee had a brave meeting where there were many convinced

Then I was moved to go to [Cartnell steeplehouse⁴, when the priest had done] I spake to [him and] the People largely of y^e light and truth and truth in their own hearts to mind and there they might find their teacher to come out of all the teachers of y^e world for the lord was comed to teach people himselfe

And then I was moved to go to Lyndell⁵ steeple house w^h when the priest had done I spake to him and the people [the truth and the spirit and y^e word of God was in their hearts that they might all come to and that they might know the lord God at hand and so to come out of all y^e false Teachers & Hyrelings y^t sought for their gains & means from their quarter.]

Then I was moved to appoynt a meeting in a steeple house yard beyond y^t where there was a great meeting and severall contenders and one of y^e priests convinced, and many contenders there were, but truth came over all, and the Contenders mouths stopped

And then I was moved to go to [Hawton¹] steeplehouse upon a first day and after y^e priest had done I spoke to him and the people the truth [and how they might come out of all their false wayes worshippe & teachers for the lord was coming to teach his people himself by his spirit and by the word in their hearts]

And then I was moved to Lancaster to speak in y^e Markett att y^e Cross y^e truth in all peoples hearts to come off all deceitfull wayes and merchandize & to come to that in their hearts y^t brought them to speak truth and do truth one to another and to lay asyde all deceitful merchaundize for y^e day of y^e lord was coming upon all ungodlynnesse and wickednesse of men And then upon the first day I went to y^e steeple house and spoke to y^e priest & people when hee had done And then I had a meeting in y^e street afterward and truth was largely spoken forth that day to y^e people where they might find their teacher w^hin them and not to go to the hyrelings and false teachers w^hout y^m which taught for the fleaze and the woole and made a prey upon them.

And then I was moved to go againe into Westmerland [where I had several larg meetings abundance convinced] And I went into Kendal Markett and spoke to y^e People at y^e Markett tyme [I had silver in my pockett and I was moved to throw it out amongst y^e People as I was going up the street before I spoke, and my life was offer d upp amongst them and the mighty power of y^e lord was seen in p^reserving] and the power of y^e lord was so mighty and so strong, y^t people flew before* [and runne into y^e shoppes for fear and terror took hold upon them, I was moved to open my mouth and lift upp my voyce aloud in the mighty power of the lord, and to tell y^m the mighty day of y^e lord was coming upon all deceitfull Merchaundize and wayes, and to call y^m all to repentance and a turning to the lord God, and his spirit w^hin them for it to teach them and lead them and tremple[†] before y^e mighty God of heaven and earth, for his mighty day was coming and so passed through the streets, and when I came to y^e townes end, I gate upon a stump]

and spok to y^e people, and so y^e People begane to fight some for mee, and some against mee, and so after a while I passed away w^hout any harme

And then I came to Lancashire agⁿ and the priest¹ of Cartmell had sent mee a challandg And so I went into his steeplehouse and when hee had done I spok to him but hee got away And they took mee and drew mee out of y^e steeplehouse after I had spok a few words to them and when I was furth they took mee and threw mee down, and many wranglings and Contendings they had I went upp to the priests house and would have had him come out, but hee would not and so I spok to y^e people the truth of God and so passed away [letting y^m see where there teacher was and how they might know the power of y^e lord in their hearts to cease from men whose breath was in their nostrils and to looke unto the lord Jesus Christ their teacher and salvation and so passed away]

Then I passed to [Silverdale²] and had a meetting of friends in the Evening where there came a priest w^h a pustell [and other men w^h Armes] and so y^e priest intending^{*} in tending to come into y^e house in the night, to light a pipe of Tobacco, [but his intend was to have done Mischeifs w^h his pustell to mee he being a desperate fellow] but y^e man of y^e house kept him out

Then I came to [Ratenborough³] where there was a meetting of friends in the Evening [which I felt the tunc of the meetting swords and pistols about mee and all y^e meetting while looking when as they should come in, they lying in waite not farre off which I felt] So after when the meetting was done and friends almost gone away and past, I passed away from the house to another friends house, I was no soon^r gone out of the house but p^rsently they came in w^h naked swords, disguised men which cutt and hacked at [friends w^h] naked swords and put the candles forth and friends was faine to take upp stools [and chairs] to defend themselves and plucking friends that were there forth of the house and abusing y^m and cutt the chairs and stoolles which friends held up to defend and save themselves w^hall they lying in waite in y^e way w^h way I might passe but I was moved to passe another way So they missed of mee,

^{*} This apparent duplication appears in B but A has intending only both in the house and in y^e way through the hand of y^e lord.

And when I was passing away att [halton] steeplehouse aforesaid, after I spoke to y^e people and priest there came a man^a to mee and said hee would runne mee thorow wth his rapier if hee were hanged for it w^{thin} an houre, yet the mighty hand of y^e lord god delivered mee from them all, and the truth came over the heads of y^m all.

And then I went upp to Swarthmoore agⁿ over y^e sands¹ and went to ulverston Steeplehouse as I had done severall times and so upon a lecture day I went into y^e steeplehouse it being y^e Markett day and when the priest had done I spoke and there were many priests there [and one^b was bitter and spoke to mee and asked mee If I had the spirit of discerning I told him I had, w^h made him to tremble] the power of y^e lord God being so mighty and powerful amongst them which made him so to tremble that hee confessed y^t hee was afraid, y^t the steeple house should have fallen upon his head and so y^e mighty power and dread of y^e lord God came over all [y^t answered the witness in many, and y^e graves opened and y^e dead heard the voyce of God].

And then another Lecture day I was moved to go upon a Markett day to Ulverston steeplehouse againe upon a Lecture day and many people resorting thither and professors and friendly people [to heare mee and Queried if I would bee there] and so when the priest had done I beganne to speak as at other times. And there was one Sawrey^c called a Justice came to mee [and took mee by the hand and asked mee if I would speak and I said yes] and he said If I would speak according to scripture I should speak and I told him I would and give him Scripture for what I said and I had something upon mee to y^t the man had been speaking to viz^t the priest of the town called Lampett^d and he told mee I should not speak, and then y^e rude people [said to y^e Justice, give him us, and hee did, and they] fell upon mee wth staves and fiste and Bookes, and fell upon mee and knocked mee down and tumbled mee over their sides and many people was tumbled down [and knocked down and the Justice and the priests among them].

^a Vol i p 64 priest Bennett A better

^c Vol i p 67 & people tumbled over there mates for fears

And then the Justice said among y^e rude people give him mee and then hee took mee from amongst them and lett mee out of y^e steeple house, and four Officers and Constables hee gave mee to them, to have mee to y^e town to whipp mee so some ladd mee by the shoulders and some by y^e hands, and some by y^e Armes and shooke mee by y^e head and ladd mee through mire and dirt and water and some gote staves and some gote hollow bushes and some gote willowes, and some gote hedg stakes and so they ladd mee till they came to a Common and many friandly people their heads were broken that day & the blood runne down their faces, and then the constables took mee and gave mee a wisk over the shoulders wth their willow rods, and thrust mee amongst abundance of rude people which fell upon mee wth their hedg stakes and batts and staves, and struck at mee as hard as ever they could stricke, my head, my armes, my back, [and it was a great while before they beat mee down upon the wett common wth was a great while before I fell, and there I lay a pretty space upon the wett beat and bruised] and then the power of the lord went thorow mee and refreshed mee and healed mee and strengthened mee and I was moved to stand up in it in y^e mighty power of y^e lord God among all y^e rude multitude, and stretched out my armes over them in the power of the lord God and bid them stricke agⁿ and there came a man wth a Ruler and gave mee a blow over my hand, y^t I could not stirre it no manner of way but it stand out as it was and the people cryed hee hath spoyld his hand for ever, for having any use of it, [and the skyn was struck of my hand and a litle blood came,] and I looked at it, and a love went towards it, and so afterward the power of y^e lord passed through it, and it was as well as it was before and I had never another blow afterward and others came to mee and said if I would give them money, they would preserv mee from the multitude, but I denyed them, [And they said If I came into the town agⁿ they would kill mee]

So I was moved to passe upp into y^e town, and through the Markett, and there mett mee a man wth a rapyer and told mee he was my servant, and was grieved to see y^e abuse

y^t was offered to mee and of their bad behaviour to mee. So hee passed upp the street wth mee and as I was going some of y^e Market people was strikeing up of friends heeles. And so I turned mee about and y^e man had drawn his naked rapier and was running at them y^t abused the friendly men so I stepped to y^e man and clapped my hand upon the rapier and bad him put upp his rapier if hee went along wth mee and so not long after seven men set upon y^t man and beat him cruelly for drawing his rapier.

So this Justice Sawrey and Lampett was the beginning of all y^e persecution in the north of England, and raising & casting of false reports and reproaches upon honest people, and casting all manner of evill reports upon truth. And then I went up to Swarthmoore hall where they were dressing of many friendly peoples heads who had their blood drawn of them y^t day through the persecution.

And then I was moved to go at this side of Wanney where wee had a meeting and in the evening there came a man who bound himselfe wth an Oth y^t hee would shoot mee wth a pistol, many people being in the fold and the people of y^e house went forth and after a while I walked forth. The power of y^e lord was so mighty to y^e chaining of them in y^e yard, y^t y^e man of y^e house being a professor was so tormented and terrified y^t hee went into a Cellar [to his prayers and after I went into y^e house when truth was come over them, and there was a Rawe man of y^e house seeing the truth had come over hee fell to speaking and lett upp their spirits. And so I walked out of y^e house into y^e yard agⁿ and fell a speaking and then the fellow drew his pistoll, and some held him and some carried mee away, and so through the power of y^e lord God I escaped.]

And the next day I went over unto the Isle of Wanney, to James Lancasters¹, [hee being a friand and his wife being an Enemy to truth had gathered a Company of rude fellows^a as fishermen & y^e like,] wth their fishing poles and the like fall upon mee, as soon as I was com d to land and beat mee down to y^e ground, [and bruised my body and head sad all over my shoulders and back.] y^t when I was sensible againe, I looked up and a man was lying over my shoulders and a woman was throwing stones at my face, and so I got up

^a Vol 1 p 80 there rushd out about 40 men

[and I could hardly tell whether my head was cloven to peeces it was so bruised, nevertheless I was raysed upp by y^e power of God] and they beat mee wth their fishing poles into y^e sea and thrust mee into y^e sea [a great depth And thought to have sunke mee down into y^e water, and so I thrust up amongst y^m agⁿ

And then they tumbled mee in a boat,] and James Lancaster went wth mee and carryed mee over the water and when I came to y^e town where the man had bound himself wth an Oath to shoot mee all y^e town rose upp ag^t mee Some wth muck forks, and some wth flayles and forks and cryed knocke him in y^e head I should not go through y^e town, and they called for a Cart, to carry mee to y^e grave yard, and cryed knock him in the head, but they did not but guarded mee a great way wth their weapons but did not much abuse mee and after a while left mee so when I came to some water I washed mee I was very dirty and much bruised and then came to a friends house about three miles from y^e place¹ [where I washed mee they call the place Ramside where the friend lives and I desired to have a litle bear^e I should go to bed and when I was in bed I could turn mee no more then a sucking child I was so bruised,] and so then they sent for mee wth a horse to Swarthmoore and the stumbling of y^e horse in giving mee a litle shake did mee more hurt then all y^e blowes

So I came to Swarthmoore at Judg ffells² who was mighty serviceable to truth, & so warrants was graunted out for mee by Sarrew when Judg fell came home for his Cruelty I appeared before him and the Justices at Lancaster where ³two priests and a schoolmaster⁴ had sworned falsly ag^t mee which appeared ag^t mee before y^e Justice and another priest one Marshall⁵ which was their Orator and so when they were Confounded and their lies brought to nought and truth cleared itselfe, and abundance of y^e sober people of y^e Countrey were gathered there and they heard my accusers and they heard mee make a defence, and answered my accusation, and cleared myself from them all, and so when all was cleared one of y^e Justices said I might speak to y^e people and so I began to speak of y^e spirit of God y^t it should be y^e leader of all people into all truth, according to Christs promise and doctrines, & priest Jacou¹ said the letter and the spirit was inseparable then answere was made to him then every one y^t had y^e letter had y^e spirit and so y^e truth came over all, and the priests fled away and it was a day of Joy and rejoycing to his people and one of y^e Justices² s^d hee never saw such a day in his life for hee had been sick, and y^t day hee was made whole [and Judy fell was made vary service able to truth for his understanding being open and most of his family came into truth]

The Priest of Lancaster did write a petition ag^t mee to y^e parham³ [and one had said hee had been in heaven and was dead and was alive and hee had heard the voyse of God and thus their Ignorance of the Scriptures appeard which speaks of such thynges of y^e saintes and the Sonne of God and such as sett in heavenly places in Christ Jesus and such as had been dead, and were made alive in Christ Jesus and wers perfect in Christ Jesus, and so wee gotte y^e petition and answered it, and sent it to y^e parliament, before theirs was sent up and the Priests when they should have sent it upp, it would coest y^m so much money when the time came of sending it upp, that they did not send it upp because it would coest so much money]

Then I was moved of y^e lord to go into Cumberland [where I saw the sparkes of life rose before I came into it, and a Multitude of people the lord had there,] so I went to Boutle steeplehouse upon a first day the priest of the parish hearing of my Coming hee had gott another to help him [and so I was moved to speak in his time⁴ he uttered such wicked thinges and therefore for y^e truths sake I was moved to speak to him If I had been Imprison d for it] and so they halld mee out and People was mighty rude, and one gave mee a blow upon the wrist [wth a great Hedg stake yet I felt no harme,] hee might have broken my wrist to peeces but y^e power of y^e lord bare all off, and so the Constable being a sober man, he rescued mee out of their hands, and would have sett a fellow y^t struck [unto the stocks, but y^e rude people rescued him out of his hands,] and so hee went a hille way wth us, and so I told him hee might go a little way on wth us, to y^e house where wee lodged⁵, and there lay a Company of rude people in y^e way to have done us a mischief

And in y^e afternoone I was moved to Come up ag^d to y^e Market Crosse, and there satt mee down wth my friends about mee and so at last friends were all moved to go into y^e steeplehouse and then it came to mee y^t I might go in, and so when I came in, the Priest was preaching, and all y^e Scriptures y^t hee spake was of false Prophetts and deceivers and Anti Christs, hee brought them and threw them upon us I satt mee down and heard till hee had done [though several friends spoke to him in his time] so when he had done I beganne to speak to him and hee and the people beganne to bee rude, and the Constable stood upp and charged peace amongst them [in y^e name of y^e Commonwealth] and all was quiet, and I took his Scriptures that hee spoke of false Prophetts and Anti Christs and deceivers and threw them back upon him and lett him see y^t hee was in the very stepps of them and hee beganne to oppose mee I told him his glasse was gone his time was out the place was as free for mee as for him, [and hee accused mee y^t I had broken y^e law in speaking to him in his tyme in the Morning, and I told him hee had broken y^e law then in speaking in my tyme] And so I called all people to y^e true teacher out of the hyrelings such as teach for y^e fleece and makes a prey upon the people for y^e lord was com'd to teach his people himself by his spirit & Christ saith learn of mee, I am y^e way which doth enlighten every man y^t cometh into y^e world, y^t all through him might beleeve and so to learn of him who had enlightned them who was y^e light, and so had a brave meeting in y^e steeplehouse, and the priest of y^e parish fomed [like a pigg] through rage and madness, but y^e truth and the power of y^e lord God came over all their heads

A day or two after they had a plott ag^t mee, a Company came wth swords, and a litle boy wth a rapour and came into y^e house where I was, I was just gone out of it into y^e fields, though I saw them when I was in the fields but they came not to mee and they had intended to have sett y^e Boy on to have done Mischiefs, & to have murdered, but y^e lords hand prevented them and stopped them, and though others came to do us a Mischiefe but one held another, and so through the power of y^e lord wee passed over them

And then I passed away to another steeplehouse neere Cockermouth where I had appoynted a meeting where people having notice of it, and had not seen mee before, y^t there came above a thousand people which was like a horse faire, and they were gote into a Tree to heare and see and so a Professor asked mee If I would go into y^e Church as hee called it, and I said yee, and so I went in & people was gote up into y^e pulpitt when I was gote in, though I told him I denyed all such places, but denyed them all for y^e Church was in God, and so let y^m see and so lett y^m see^t all their temples, and all their Rudiments and their Teachers, and then opened the parables which Christ spoke unto y^e world, & brought them to y^e light which Christ had en lightned them wthall wthun themselves wth y^t they might see his parables and Christ y^t spoke y^m forth, and to w^t nature they were spoken in man, and brought y^m to y^e true teacher in y^m selves for the lord was come to teach his people himselfe Which generally they received this doctrine and most was there convinced that day, y^e meeting very peaceable and so I spoke about three hours and broke up the meeting in peace

And there followed mee an old professor praying mee and the doctrine [though his spirit was like a steeple] And so I turned to him and bid him fear the lord and there was a priest^t said I should not Judge, and there were 4 priests came when the meeting was done, and one of them fell into dispute and one of their mouthes was quickly stepped after hee was proved by Scripture y^t hee was found in y^e steppe of y^e false Prophetts and shuit out from the true hee was quickly gone And then there was another who had three steeplehouses^t, who was of y^t parish hee fell to disputing & wrangling and contrary to y^e witness of God in his own conscience, in so much as his own people rose ag^t him his own hearers, but at last they fled and people passed away greatly satisfied and rejoyced in it

And the first day after I passed to Cockermouth steeple house in y^e forenoone, and when y^e priest^t had done being a great parish I spoke to him & the people and proved him in y^e steppe of all y^e false Prophetts and hyrehngs, and so hee said y^t I said hee was an Hyrehng, and so fled his way, and left his flock, and severall soldier^m were wth mee, w^h were convinced at y^e meeting before, and y^e people was rude and they cryed they had y^e law on their side, w^h silenced y^e people & so truth was declared to y^e people, and all was quiet, and one man said there was no learned man to dispute wth mee there, I told him I came not to dispute but to declare truth to them, [that they might come out of all the false Teachers, Shepherds wayes and to bee taught of god who was come to teach his people himselfe and to bring them out of all false wayes and teachers and that they might come off all false wayes and worshippes and to bee guided by the spirit of God in themselves to God who was a spirit, for y^e mighty day of the lord was Comming upon all sin and wicked nesse, and so had a larg time to declare the truth and the light of Christ in their hearts and the word that lets them see their thoughts and their words that Divides asunder y^e p^rious from the vile.]

And so past away in peace to another steeplehouse some two miles off from the Town and being a thirsty I spied a Brooke I went down to drinke and being hote as I came back I mett y^e priest of y^e parish hee asked mee whether I had any thing to say to y^e people that day and If I had hee would neither oppose mee in word nor thought, so I told him oppose if hee would I had something to speak to y^e people and how hee had made a foole of himselfe and had spoken contrary to y^e witness of God in his Conscience two or three dayes before, [for hee being the same priest of that steeplehouse where I had spoken before the other day and also in this, and hee knew that the people was taken wth truth in the Countrey and they would have come to have heard mee rather then him.]

And so I went upp to the steeplehouse, [being a great place and a great people.] And a professor came to mee and asked mee if I could go into y^e Church as he cald it and I said yes, it being hote wthout there being no place to Command a people therabouts, I went into y^e steeplehouse, and the priest did not go into his pulitt, and when the people was gathered I beganne to speak, I had free liberty to speak the truth to them all, [and all was quiet and peaceable not a word was uttered neither in nor out of the steeplehouse in opposition.] I spoke the truth to them some houses, and brought them to see where the rest was and the first stepp of peace every one being enlightned wth Christ, the peace, the rest, being turned every man and woman by the light, from the sun and from the evill wth the light w^{ch} comes from Christ they standing still in it and beleeveing in it, they come to Christ from whence the light comes there rest and their peace and they receiving y^e light they receive Christ, and hee gives them power to become the sonnes of God and this would bring them into unity wth y^e sonne and wth y^e father, and beleeveing in the light wherewth Christ hath enlightned them, wthall they would become children of y^e light and y^e day, and so opened the earthly parables w^{ch} Christ had spoken in y^e Earthly nature in man, and lett y^m see all their traditions & their false wayes and worshippes and their false teachers together wth their Maintenance, w^{ch} was Contrary to Christ and the Scriptures and so brought them all to the true teacher the lord and Christ who was come to teach his people himselfe and his great day was coming and how they might find their teacher wthun, [when they were in their labours and in their beds] and their was a generall Convincement that day many hundreds of people, and so I passed away in peace, and truth came over all deceit and wickednesse

And I had some other meetings in the Countrey and had one at [Wiggin] Crosse¹ where there were many convinced and some disputes there were but truth came over all

And I poynted another meeting in y^e steeplehouse yard² where there were some disputes but truth came over all

And so I passed to Carlisle Citty, which upon the seventh day I went into y^e Markett which some had fellows had Combined together to do mee a Mischeife, but I stood a topp of y^e Crosse in the middle of y^e Markett and said y^e mighty day of y^e lord was upon all deceit & ungodlinesse and wickednesse, and lay away all their deceiptfull Merchandize, and keepe to yea and Nay in their Communications & spoke the truth to them as I passed along the streets, and so a Multitude of people followed mee, [and so there was a friend led mee to his owne house]

And so I went into the castle & spoke amongst the soldier^s the truth, and at a Meeting at the same friends house where many soldiers were Convinced, Baptized & others and great disputes I had wth some of them and there was one Old Man which was the great opposer which was called a Deacon amongst y^e Baptists, and hee desired mee not to pierce him wth my eyes full hee was full of deceit, and I fastned myne eyes upon him and another lieutenant a Baptist came [wth a rapour in his hand] hee came in hast, and hee asked mee w^h must hee damned, and I told him that was spoke in him, and so I oppend to him y^e Election and reprobation [wth stood in two seeds and two Births & it astonished him] and said y^e they never heard y^e like before in their lives and they received truth gladly

Then the next first day I went into y^e steeple house, and when y^e priest had done I began to speak and y^e Magistrates desired mee to go my ways, and desired mee not to speak, and so I spoke on a few words to y^e People and a great tumult there was in the steeple house after a while and a mighty power of y^e lord god there was y^e made people to Quiver & Tremble, y^e it shooke them againe, that some thought the very steeple house had shaken, and an uproar there was in the City, y^e soldiours came into y^e steeple house y^e fetched y^e other soldiours out of y^e steeplehouse y^e was wth mee which had been convinced, wth kept the rude people off mee, and the Magistrates wives rushed through the soldiours, to pluck mee by y^e haire of the head¹ and then when the souldiours came to call away the other soldiours they plucked mee down and would not lett mee stay^a amongst y^e rude Multitude and stones flew about and cudgells in y^e steeplehouse and about it and wthout in the streets, and swords drawn and the Governour came down to appease the people, and there came the same Lieutenant the Pasture of the Baptists [that came before wth his rapour in his hand] and took mee out of the crowd into his own house

And so in the afternoons, hee offered upp his meeting to declare the truth among them, and all was peaceable and they all heard truth gladly, and so the second day the Magistrates sent for mee and I went upp to them to y^e Town Hall, the streets being all in an uproar, and one swore one thing and another swore another thing ag^t mee [And they asked mee if I were the sonne of God, I said yes They asked mee if I had seen Gods face I said yes. They asked mee whether I had y^e spirit of discerning I said yes [I discerned him that spake to mee] They asked mee whether the Scripture was y^e word of God, I said God was the word, and the Scriptures were writeings and y^e word was before writeings were w^h word did fulfill them]

And so they sent me to prison^a and so I told y^e Goaler I could pay him no fees I would neither eat his meat nor lye in his Bed [and so I satt up all night] and continued there a litle time and so y^e Assizes came and when the Assizes was there came abundance of contenders & priests to mee and most of y^e gentry of the Countrey to dispute & there came one about y^e tenth houre of y^e night and plucked mee upp and down the roome the very priests when they could gett no hold of my words for the truth did Convince them, and was like a fire upon their heads and in their hearts, the word of truth and they all looked that I should have been put to death that Assize for it was their generall talke both amongst the Gentry and y^e priests and they had gotten a Jury of purposse and mighty looking there was for mee to have been brought forth and much waiteings there was by the Countrey people and so w^h the time, they were so confounded amongst themselves they had not power to bring mee forth before them the lord had confounded them.

Then they cast mee into y^e dungeon amongst the thieves and Mosse Trouppers, where y^e men & women was all put together where they had never a house of office where they could go to ease themselves, and there was one woman almost eaten to death w^h lice and there I was kept a good while and many friends came to visite mee, and they abused them pittifully and one Collonell Bensons wife¹ was moved to come, and was to eate no meat but what shee was to eate w^h mee and the Goaler brought a fidler into y^e prison to play thinking to cross mee, and hee strucke mee and I was moved to sing in y^e power of y^e lord god over him and made the fidler sigh and gave over his fiding, and so past away w^h shame, and so p^resently after I was sent att liberty².

And I was moved to go to a steeplehouse where I had had the great meeting near Cookermouth where I begaune before y^e priest w^h was y^e same priest aforementioned³ y^t said hee

would not oppose mee in word nor thought but hee did than and so wee continued reasoning and disputeing all day long from morning untill night and so hee passed his way and the truth of God came over all, and a good day it was, and so I had many meetings upp and down the County

And then I passed into Northumberland where I had great service for y^e truth there and had many meetings And then into Bishoprick [where there were few steeplehouses but friends were moved to go to them, Nay I may say few in England but friends were moved to go to them to warn them of y^e mighty day of y^e lord, to tell them where their true teacher was, and a great people there was convinced and brought to their teacher and out of the false worshupps to worshipp god in y^e spirit and truth w^{ch} the divell is out of, and came to own the light of Christ Jesus w^{ch} hee had enlightned them w^{hall} w^{ch} lett y^m see all the evill deeds they had done and all the evill thoughts they had thought and all the ungodly words they had spoken, and that was y^e light which Christ had enlightned them w^{hall} w^{ch} is Christ the great Prophett, w^{ch} tells every one all y^t ever they have done]

And I went to Newcastle for there are many professors who had reported y^t Quakers would fly like butterflies, they would not come to great Townes So when I came there I sent for them being some of them the Aldermen of y^e Town but they would not come at mee so I went to one of their houses, whose name was Thomas Ledger¹ and reasoned wth him [and he said the Scriptures was above y^e spirit and was above angells and was the word of God and I told him y^e word was god and the spirit gave forth Scriptures and y^t hee must know in himselfe both the word and spirit w^{ch} reconciles to y^e Scriptures to god & to one another, and that hee must know it in his heart and mouth w^{ch} divides his good words from his bad and his good thoughts from his bad] and so I passed away after I had a meeting wth friends and had spoken in their streets² [and so I had great meetings upp and down in y^e Countrey and many friends went to steeplehouses, and was sore abused but truth was sett over all

And then after I was moved to come into Westmerland where there was great meetings of such as were convinced of y^e lord and a believe in his Everlasting truth, and so as I was passing to a Meeting near Sedbury there lay a Company of men in y^e way at a Bridg at an Ale house wth weapons to have done mee a Mischief, but I was Moved to passe over another way over a water not knowing outwardly of them and so some of them came to a meeting rudely but y^e truth of y^e lord y^t answers y^e Witsnesse of God in all people came over all, and they passed away wthout doing mee or friends any hurt, and so then] friends had a meeting not farre off y^t place¹ y^e next first day where there was about a thousand people and most convinced of the truth of God and some rude fellows had combined together, and one* came wth a rapour and so people being so many they kept him of from ryding among y^e People to mee and which way hee rode friends kept together y^t hee could not break in to mee but truth came ov^r all and hee passed away and there was a gallant meeting & ended in peace, [and its larg to declare the workes and wonders of y^e lord god and the preservation of mee through all by his mighty hand and power but I saw I was in his hand

And then I was moved to passe towards the South and go through many townes and felt I answered the witsnesse of God in all people though I spoke not a word and so I came upp into yorkshire where I had been formerly a matter of two years after I had been there and this was in the dayes of y^e Protector, and the other before was most of it in the Common wealths time & so] friends y^t was convinced of the truth having notice of my coming having a meeting at a place called Sinderley* w^{ch} was Judged to bee about two thousand people and one half & all peaceable and quiet, [and so I passed upp and down y^e most part of yorkshire peaceably and quietly where there were many thousands of people Convinced of y^e truth of God & came to know there teacher and commonly where I had meetings upon the first day the priests fled their parish, though I went not to y^e steeplehouse]

[In the Protector's Dayes]

And then I was moved to come down to Hallifax, where there was a great meeting some 3 miles out of it many hundreds of people and y^e Butchers of Hallifax had bound themselves wth an Oath y^t they would kill mee, and they came to y^e meeting and was very rude and desperate, but the presse of y^e people was so great y^t they could not gett into mee and they bore friends out of their very places where they stood through their violence and so y^e man of y^e house¹ w^h was a friend being of repute amongst men, stood upon friends shoulders and desired them y^t would not be quiet to go out of his ground, and they shouted for a great time and said they would make it a Common² and so I was moved to stand out and friends about mee which was like a rage and said if there were any man y^t had reason or understanding of y^e thinges of God lett him come in unto mee, and never a one would, and so y^e truth came over them and o^r meeting broke upp very well, and so they passed away missing their end but y^e Judgment of y^e lord fell upon some of them for one of them had kild a man and a woman y^t had bound himself to kill mee and severall of them perished sadly one used to hold out his tongue at friends when they went by them, and hee dyed wth his tongue hanging out of his mouth [below his chinne And another dyed eaten to death wth lice and sad ends came to them and truth came over all]

And so then I passed into Darbyshire where there was fine meetings of friends and there upon the night there combined together a Company of men and a great mans³ Bayliffe, and hee came wth a sword in the night and hee came to fetch mee out of y^e house and they had an intent to have done mee Mischiefe, but there being severall friends, and their Neighbours y^t knew them, though they did violence and some abuses yet truth came over them all by y^e power of y^e lord wee escaped them for they had an intent to have taken mee away in the night to have done mee a Mischiefe.

And then I passed into Nottinghamshire and Lincoln shire where there was brave meetings of friends and truth honourable, & so past upp into Leestershire, where there was great meetings and so went to my Native town where my relations lived at a place called Drayton of y^e clay⁴ having sent before of my Comming, hee⁵ gotte another priest to help him and sent for mee where many of the Countrey was gathered, y^t I might come to y^e steeplehouse for they could do nothing till I came Now I had not been there of three years, neither did I know of their gathering [as Outwardly,] and so I went up wth severall other friends, and desired the priest to come out of their steeplehouse and they did and so wee had a great dispute and they carried themselves uncivill and so I told them when the meeting was ended that I should bee there y^t day seaventh day

And so when the day came there was seven priests were gathered wth a great people from severall parts of y^e Countrey, and I was Moved to go upp and stand upon a place in y^e steeple house Yard and I sent for them out and some of them cryed heare mee and some of them fledd away when I spake to v^e people so the Priest past away and so I told them I never came to a place where there were so many priests and none would stand so they came againe, and the people tooks mee upp in their Armes into y^e steeplehouse porch to carry mee into y^e steeplehouse and the door being locked and the priest following people tumbled down upon heappe and I under them [then they cryed for the clerk to come to open the door] so I gotte from them [and leaped through the Barrs and gotte to y^e place where I spake before] and beganne to speak and they took mee upp againe and carried mee and sett upp something under the steeplehouse wall And the priests gathering about mee crying Argument argument which I told them I denyed all their voyces but stood still a while, and looking upon the great concourse of people I told them I denyed all their voyces for their voyces were the voyce of a stranger, and they hid mee prove it which I did, and then the priest thrust mee down again from y^e place where I stood among the people, which I drew Back feeling y^e power of y^e lord god go over the people and them both

When I was gotten to y^e place where I could Command y^e people I beganne to speak, and told them if they had patience and would own the Scriptures and give audience I would shew them Scripture and give them scripture why I did deny those teachers and the teachers of the world and why I left them which I said I would and so I had time enough and declared the truth freely to them, and so opened through the prophetts, and lett them see the steps of the false Prophetts w^{ch} they were in w^{ch} the true Prophetts cryed ag^t such as stood for the fleeces, and sought for their gains from their quarter, and bare rule by their meanes and sought for the fleece and cared not for y^e flock, Jer 23 and Jer 5 Esa 56 Ezek 34 and Micha 3 and other places And also how they were in y^e steps of y^e Pharisees w^{ch} Christ cryed against, Covetous, loving honour, called of men master stood praying in y^e Synagogs And loved salutations and greettings in y^e Markette, and went in long robes and other Markes by w^{ch} they might see themselves and in y^e steps of the false Apostles They were covetous for filthy lucre lovers of money, murderers of earthly thinges and here all people might see the whole traine of them

And so after a great while I had largely declared to them where they were I spoke to their Conscience the truth in their hearts the light of christ Jesus within them, by which they might come to God, and so when I had done one of the priests said, hee would go read those Scriptures that I had quoted and so hee began the 23 of Mathew*, and read more against themselves, then I had spoken, and so I had y^e people take Notice and so I answered their questions and so broke upp, and so y^e truth of the lord came over all And I told y^e People I should bee there that day seventh night againe, and then they got a Company of soldours And so I was moved to poynt the meeting att my outward Relations house or ground and when the Soldi^{ers} came they could not take mee and the priest sent for mee to come to another close y^t the soldours might take mee away y^t they might have ensnared mee And presently after I went into y^e Countrey and the Soldi^{ers} came to a meeting which I told one of them y^t was the head of y^m I should answer for friends, they knew mee I was their countrey man

So I went before Collonel Hacker¹ and hee putt mee into y^e Marshalls hands the next Morning, and sent mee away to London, to Oliver the Protector and so then they kept mee a prisoner att y^e Mermaid in chearing croesse untill I was brought before him And after I was brought before him, hee was pretty moderate, and said hee wished mee no more hurt

then his owne soul, which I said if hee did hee went ag^t his own Soul and so bidd him hear the voyce of God and harden not his heart for that kept him from hardnesse of heart, and hee said it was true And then I opened to him the false teachers and lett him see where wee differed from all y^e teachers of y^e world and from their worshippes, and where the true teacher and the true worshipp was, where all might come to the true teacher w^hin them and the spirit, and so hee sett mee at liberty & said I might go where I would and so the truth passed over all and spread mightily One great opposition it had through y^e priests professors and lawyers but y^e power of y^e lord god and y^e truth confounded them all and none was able to stand before it.

And then I passed into Kent and Sussex & Surrey and Middlesex where I had great large meetings and sometimes great contention w^h the Professors of Scriptures w^hout the life of it, but truth stopped their mouths and came over, the truth y^t answers that of God in all men and women, which multitudes came to look in to their own houses and to find their teacher and the lord at hand, w^h they looked to bee farre from them, though prisons and bonds were threatned

Then I was moved to come to london agⁿ [and truth had great wrestling with all bad spirits such as had great professions and livd not in y^e life of truth And such as had Notions and sometimes had had tendernes but it was hardned w^h they wrestled ag^t the life but y^e life y^t comes over all came over]

So then I passed into Northfolke, and Suffolke where I had brave meetings where there was an Independant Justice in a town where I had spoken where there were many sober people hee could not tell how to take mee y^t hee might ensnare mee, but he sent forth a Hue and cry after mee and another friend that was w^h mee¹ that there was a house broken on y^e seventh day at night, this hee did in his wickednesse though hee was a great professor and so they seised upon us after y^e meeting was done and came after us five miles, and had us the next day before a Justice. And so there were severall friends y^t had been w^h us upon the first day meeting w^h cleared us before y^e Justice where wee were the seventh day And so this Justice was madd because hee could have nothing ag^t us, who did confesse that wee were not such men, and was sorry y^t hee had no more ag^t us

And so wee passed away to lin where wee had a fine meeting where severall were convinced And so upp into Cambridgeshire where wee had a fine meeting¹, where there were severall hundreds^a where there was three or four priests and all was quiet but one and truth answered to that of god in all and came over and was honourable in the hearts of people and so after y^e meeting was done I passed to Cambridge, and when I came there the people and schollers abused friends much in y^e streets, and the town was all in an uproar hearing of my coming to the town, And there was an Alderman² who was a friend and hee came to the Inne to us and the people thronging upp into y^e very chamber door in the Inne and so after a while it being in y^e Evening I passed through all y^e Multitude but they did not know of mee and had a sweet heavenly meeting in his house

And the next day past away upp into Hardfordshire and so to london where I had many and great meetings, [and discourse and dispute w^h were larg to tell of and all y^e bad spirits rose against truth but y^e truth is y^e w^h answers y^e witnessse of God in all]

And then I came down into Bedfordshire and Buckinghamshire and Northamptonshire and Leestershire where the truth spread mightily, and multitudes of people flocked to y^e truth and to hear it and severall snares there were, but the power of y^e lord passed over them And in Lecestershire where the priests had been so madd against mee there was one priest [wise¹³] which had a great deale of men many were flocking about his men, and none did meddle w^h mee at that time

I passed to Esom where the Magistrates had many friends in prison and hearing of mee they made a paire of stocks a yard and an halfe high, and a trapp door to sett them in purposely they said for mee, but I came into y^e Town and had a brave meeting and the next morning I passed away and some of them followed mee but I had vinted y^e prisoners and was upon horse back, and seing them come up the street as I was passing away wth severall other friends

So wee past to Worster where wee had a fine meeting, and in the evening as I came down y^e street there was an uproar made in y^e street and people Hurried after us into y^e Inne, yet wee received no hurt it was a mighty deliverance

And so then we came to warwicke in the Evening was had a meeting^s, and as I was passing away in coines y^e Bayliffe of y^e Town wth other officers and took us to the Inne [And they were not to passe away till they had Orders from him.] So then the next morning as I went forth of the town I went to speak to y^e Bayliffe, after hee had sett friends at liberty, and the Town rose upp against us in y^e open street and one laid hold upon my horse bridle my horse being a strange horse turned his head and turned y^e man under his feet [and so hee hung upon y^e Bridle and so there came another man or two to throw stones at my face and so hee was stopped and was made to loose the other mans hands y^e hunge at y^e horse bridle] and so as wee rode through y^e streets people fell upon us wth Cudgels and stones and throwing at us and much abused us and so when wee were Ridden quite thorow y^e Market, I was moved of the lord to go back agⁿ into y^e street [to offerr up my life among them] and said to friends who ever found fredome might follow mee, and so I passed upp the street and people fell upon mee wth their Cudgels and abused mee and strucks mee [and threw the horse down yet by y^e power of y^e lord I passed thorow them and called upon the town and shopp keepers & told them of their Immodest state,] how they were a shame to Christians and the profession of christianity

And so past away and came into Coventry [and so into Dentr¹ where I had some jangling with priests and every where the priests and people and professors opposed our doctrine w^h was and is y^e every man y^e cometh into y^e world is enlightned wth the light of christ w^h which they might see than minnes, when they turned ag^t this light w^hin they first turned against it their own particulars and then keeps people from it in the generall and then becoms darker and harder then ever they were and looses both truth sence and reason in the matter of true reasoning and disputeing]

And so I passed to london, and after a litle time in visting friends I passed into sussex and surrey and Hampshire and Dorsettershire [when there were but few convinced and some place none at all]

And so passed upp to Plymouth and so upp into Cornwall [through many desperate services and great oppositions, but through the power of y^e lord god came over all]

And so came into Cornwell [a dark countrey] where wee had a meeting¹ and many priests and professors came and one priests mouth was stopped, wee made him confesse hee was a states minister sent by them and not by Christ but truth was received by many and so wee passed on as farr as Market Jew² and had a good service in many places in publishing the truth [And so when wee came thither in y^e Evening, I heard one say that those men should be examined before they go away Therefore I was not to go away till I was examined,] so in y^e morning the Mayor and y^e Aldermen sent for us by the Constables to go to the Town Hall So wee asked for their warrant and they had none upon w^{ch} wee did not go at last they sent a Mace for us, and so at last one of us went and had good service amongst them and brought y^e truth over all and so when wee were freed wee passed away

And then I gave forth a pap^r to bee delivered among y^e People a litle beyond Markett Jew concerning that Christ was y^e light of y^e world and hee was their teacher and they were to learn of him and hear him, and come to the lord [which was a paper to y^e Conditions of y^t dark people,] and so a friend gave it y^t came after mee and hee told mee and as soon as hee had given it I felt wee were as taken prisoners [but he should have given it mee before he gave it abroad But I saw it would bee well, for if I fell upon that bad nature, I should crush it and make the good to come forth]

The Paper was to one Justice Silles³ Clarke, which went before us to the town, wee lodged in the town, so I walked down to the sea, where they were shoeing my horse and w^h I came back all y^e town was upp in an uproar, and they were Haling of friends before y^e Justices and were pressing horses to go into y^e Countrey after us, and so wee went into y^e Justices house, and had a great deale of discourse of the thinges of god And yet hee was light and vaine, And so hee made a Mittimus and sent us to prison the next morning wth a party of horse and so being y^e Markett day at St Ives, wee had good service to speake the truth amongst them

So they carried us wth a party of horse to Redrath y^e night, and the next day being the first day wee were not very willing to travaile, So one friend gote from the soldior^{es}, & went to y^e steeplehouse¹ and so after the steeple was done wee had a fine meeting wth y^e people but y^e Soldior^{es} were angry and then after a while wee passed Some of y^e people were satisfied And after I was gone a litle way out of the Town I was moved to go back agⁿ to speak to y^e People, and y^e Souldior^{es} were very desperate wth their pistols and swords [but the truth brought all under for they rode after mee wth their pistols and they rods and I rode, and I discharged my selfe and when I had done I passed wth them]

And then wee passed to Pendinniscastle to y^e Governour² where wee staid all night at y^e town neare unto it where the Constables and y^e people of y^e town came to us and many were convinced and people generally loving towards us And there was a plott among some bad spirits to have done us a mischiefe, and about y^e eleaventh houre of y^e night a friend³ was moved to shut y^e door where y^e souldior^{es} had put us, and y^e next morning in comes a fellow and runnes upon mee and fall a striking, and thought to have thrown mee down but I stood still and called for y^e soldior^{es} y^e Commanded the party⁴ and asked him if he would own it and hee said hee would, hee would own him to abuse us, upon which wee sent for the constable y^e was loving, and desired him to read his Order for his was to conduct us safely and hee said hee would sufferr us to bee abused, w^h was below men, And so the Constable and other people wished us not to go along wth him to y^e Governour for the Governour was not at home but wee passed, and so Desbury⁵, w^h was one of y^e lord leivtenants in Olivar time Severall knew mee & had mee to him, [but he being a hard hearted man aleighted us]

So wee passed on wth y^e souldiors y^e night, and so when wee came to an Inne, hee y^e said hee would tolerate y^e man to abuse us hee putts mee into y^e rooms where there was a man wth a Naked rapyer in his hand And so as soone as I was in y^e Inne I turned mee about and called upon the Commander and asked him what hee meant by that, And hee desired mee to hold my tongue for if I spoke to him they all could not rule him I said dost thou put mee into a Roome wth a man y^t cannot be ruled, wth a Naked raptour

And so the next day at night wee came to y^e prison at Lanson and so the was there nine weeks till y^e sessions under a very had Goaler who much abused us And when the Assizes came wee were brought before y^e Judg^t and a great concourse of People there were gathered together to hear our Tryall the noyce of Quakers being a strang thing unto them, And so when wee were brought before him to y^e Barre hee looked upon us and wee stood still, wth o^r hatts on And hee asked y^e Goaler whether wee were prisoners And hee said yes and hee bid us put off o^r hatts and then the Goaler took off our hatts, and gave them to us, and wee put them on againe^a And hee bidd us putt off our hatts And I bidd him shew mee a law y^t Commanded it, or where any of y^e people of god or heathens, Moses or Nebuccadnezar Commanded any to put off their hatts in their Courts that wee were brought before them And hee bidd the Goaler take us away hee would firk^c us

And then hee bid him bring us upp againe, and hee bidd us put off our hatts and I asked him for a law againe and he told mee hee did^b carry his law books upon his Back and I bidd him tell where it was written y^t men should put off their hatts when they were called into courts &c for that was an honour below, and hee asked mee where they had hatts or wore hatts from Moses to Daniel shew me a Scripture I said in Daniel the three children was cast into y^e fire wth their coates, hosen and hatts, [and you may see Nebuccadnezar was not offended att their hatts] and hee bidd take us away againe And so put us among theeves And then caused us to bee brought upp againe, and an Inditement was brought against us for wearing our hatts before him and so wee cryed to have our Mittimus read in y^e open court, y^t wee might know what wee had lyen in prison for all that nine weeks, And so hee would not suffer it. So I bid a friend read it upp and hee said hee should not hee would see whether hee or I were master, And so the friend¹ read y^e Mittimus upp aloud, and overcame them all in y^e open court

And the Justice y^t sent us to prison whose name was syley said in y^e open court y^t I had struck him and I asked him where—hee said in y^e castle yard I asked who was by, hee nodded att another Justice but hee said nothing hee had mee in y^e castle yard and said how do you Sir and I had him take heed of hypocrisis and deceit, and y^t was the thing hee called striking, for the other was wicked mee in him and then the same Justice said y^t I went aside wth him, and told him I could raise [four hundred²] men in a dayes warning hee had a witness of it and said how serviceable hee might bee to mee Then I deemed him to come off of y^e Bench seing hee was an accuser and stand wth mee wth I appeale to them all whether this man if it were so were faithfull to his trust to send me wth his mittimus to prison for good behaviour wth If I put in Suertice then had I been gone and also hee said to y^e Judg y^t hee would³ us out of y^e Countrey if I would have gone So by y^t they might all see how his words savoured and none of them beleved him

And so they sent us to prison againe and kept us a great while, and y^e Goaler put us in Doomsdayle³ because wee would not satisfie him in his oppression and give him his rate for Dyet, and put the theeves over o^r heads and in y^e place called doomsdale a nasty stinking place where there was not a house of office, nor chimney and stray like Chaffe wee might have gone a topp of our shooes in water in some places of it & made mortar wth our shooes in other places of it and wee got a litle straws one night to burn in y^e Roome to take away the smell And the head Goaler came among the theeves over our heads and stamped wth his foot and stick and poured out Excrements in a Chamber pott upon our heads and quenched out our fire and wee could not have liberty to cleanse the prison it was called doornadales, because many received their end there and dyed in it and wee were kept a great while prisoners in that Town and castle I think a great part or y^e most part of a year. And att last our abuses came to London to White hall, So one Densbury aforementioned came up to examine of abuses and a while after wee were sett at liberty

And as wee were passing to y^e prison y^e man y^t did abuse mee near pandinrus castle w^{ch} hee y^t was commander of y^e party owned y^e action of abusing of us y^e Noyce of y^t went up to white hall and an Order was sent down to Examine y^t matter, & y^e man was much rebuked by y^e Justices and the Governour and left open to y^e law to be punished which was a mighty service for truth for before it was a hard thing for a friend to speak in a town markett or steeple house which y^t gave way for all they being a desperate people for they cryed all who durst meddle wth them seing y^e powers had owned them

And when I was in prison there being abundance convinced y^e noyce was y^t none was able to speak to us one word for ten^e severall came to dispute wth us there came an officer and being a bad contender and vaine disputer his mouth was shutt on a sudden y^t hee could not speak nor able to open his mouth and another who was a Justice^t came full of words to dispute and hee was so full of words there was no roome to speak to him it was said to him, was hee never at Schoole did hee never know w^t belonged to a question and answer & would hee hear nothing they said hee was a Collonel, And so what ever hee was it was said to him hee did not do that wth became Civility And so he was desired to hold his peace [or see if hee could hold his peace a litle while till truth were spoken to him and then the light were spoken of to him w^{ch} lett him see his sinfull life y^t hee had lived in and his words and his wayes y^t would hee his teacher to lead him from them, if hee minded it and his condemnation if hee acted ag^t it And if hee had any thing to speak hee might speak] and hee was stricken dumb and his mouth was shutt and hee cast his head upp and down and his face sweld and hee could not speak for a good space, his face was as red as a Turkey

We had liberty to walk a litle way of the prison, and I was laid down in a slumber and I felt something stricke at my body and I gotte upp and struck at it againe wth y^e power of y^e lord, yet it was compassing about mee, so I went up into y^e prison and about y^e eleaventh houre at night y^e head Goaler came and told us hee had gotte a man to dispute wth us wth was a plott And so the next morning I told y^e under Goaler that their plott was discovered for when hee told mee hee had gotte a man to dispute I felt what it was y^e struck att my body though I kept it wthin my selfe and had not spoken of it Nevertheless I went to y^e place where y^e dispute was to bee and there was none appeared, and so I went into y^e head Goalers I told him his plott was discovered and so hee being eating meat hee wrung his hands and gotte from y^e table and threw his nap kin away in a rage so I went up into my Roome and when I was there the fellow y^e I should have disputed wth all called mee down I went to y^e head of y^e staires being then put upp into a chamber, and the Goalers wife was upon the staires betwixt mee and the man he having his hand behind him I asked what hee had in his hand hee was very loath to lett mee see, so I bidd him pluck his hand from behind him why did hee hold it behind him So hee took it from behind him, and hee had a naked knife, for hee had threatned before how hee would cutt my flesh [So truth came over and many Miraculous deliverance I had wth would make a great volume if they should be declared]

Friends coming to visite us the Major being a bad man hee would search y^e women to their very head cloaths being a drunken bad man and loose his condition was written and a friend went out of y^e townes and wth it in his pocket wth was the majors bad life, the friend coming into y^e town againe hee searched y^e friends pockett and found it wth was his own condition and bad life and so y^e stopped him for searching of friends any more after hee saw his own Condition¹ where there was a great meeting upon the first day, many thousands of people, and I had not been there before and there was a bad man¹ y^e did intend to make a Tumult in y^e City having formerly made disturbance amongst friends meetings and bee having encouragement from some bad people in y^e town to do the same, that they might have had some occasion ag^t our meeting, So we went into an Orchard, where the bad man came, where I stood up and looked upon the people and spoke never a word, and yet this man said I affirmed y^e w^h I could not make good, and so shamed him selfe before all y^e people and was a shame to y^e very worst of people, and so truth came over all and y^e wicked lost his end, and then I passed through the Countrey through friends to London.

And in these dayes which was in y^e dayes of y^e Protector, bee gave forth an Oath of Abjuration to bee taken w^h the bad Justices made use of ag^t friends knowing friends could not sweare and cast many into prison by it [And also a proclamation ag^t vagrants² and Sturdy Beggars bee gave forth w^h bad Justices made use of and took friends some w^h 40 and 50 pounds a year and whipped them as Sturdy Beggars and vagrants w^h were Sober people and feared the lord god and chargeable to no man. And also y^e many petitions there was against us by y^e priests and professors to the Protector and Parliament but all could not do, the truth came over all and dayly spread for they were like unto y^e task masters of egypt and after a tyme being at London and w^h Oliv^r the protector was moved to speak w^h him.]

I was moved to pass up and down the Countrey to visite friends and y^e priests where I came and had meetings they would have fled and so I was moved to pass back againe to Exeter³ where friends came out of Cornwall to meett mee where wee had a meeting and some of y^e Magistrates came down, but I was passed away before. And great threatnings there was after me.

And before as I passed up into Cornwall at Abso^m⁴ there w^h much ado I escaped out of y^e Town the people was madd and y^e Magistrates and so I went from Exeter to Sommersetshire, at a meeting where there was a thousand people.

And after I had been at Bristol I passed into wales [into every County in wales¹, when I came to Hardigan I lodged at a Justices house and had a brave meeting at a great house in y^e Town. So wee came into Hardiken and being upon a Markett day friends spoke in the Markett and all the Town was in an uproar but wee passed quietly out of y^e Town after I had spoken the truth among them.]

So wee came to Tenby where a Justice^a received mee into his house and another friend^b wth mee. And the Mayor^c and his wife came to y^e meeting and was convinced and the friend went to y^e steeple house y^t was wth mee to speak the truth to y^e priest and people, and y^e Governour cast him into prison and the next day hee sent his Marshall for mee to come before him having gotten another Justice and so y^e Mayor and y^e Justice y^t were convinced went upp to him and I went after. So I asked him hee were the governour and wherefore hee cast the friend into prison. And hee said for standing wth his hatt upon his head when the minister^d and y^e people sung. And I told him had not the priest two cappe upon his head and if the friend should should^e cutt off the Brim of his hatt then hee would have but one, for the Brim was to save the Hame off his neck and shoulders. & hee cryed away wth these frevelous thinges. And then I asked him why hee imprisoned the friend for frevelous thinges. So I bidd him mind the light in his conscience wth lett him see the evill deeds hee had done and y^t would hee his teacher or his condemnation if hee hated it and so hee began to dispute about election and Reprobation so I was moved to tell him y^t hee was in the reprobation at which hee stormed and threatned hee will keep mee fast untill I prove that. I said I would prove y^t quickly if hee would hold his tongue. So I asked him whether that malice, envy passion hast foolishness whether were they in y^e Election or in y^e Reprobation. And hee said it was in the reprobation. And so I asked him if y^t were not his condition and hee confessed it was. So I lett him see how y^e Election and reprobation stood in y^e two births and so brought^f moderate And the other Justice loving And so hee freed mee and my friend out of prison and hee proved moderate and y^e other Justice y^t hee had to have helped him proved loving, and shouked mee by y^e hand And y^e Governour would have had mee to have dined wth him So wee passed away¹ to Hartford west where wee visited friends And to Pembroke where wee had a meeting being a fair And the fair time wee in Hartford west and friends and spoke in y^e market

So wee passed away to [Kinnarven] where the friend spoke in y^e town y^t was wth mee [and was cast into prison for bidding them repent & fear the lord And many came down to mee to y^e Inne, So after when the friend whan^e sett att liberty] wee passed on to y^e next County & so the friend y^t was wth mee spoke in y^e streets, and they put him out of y^e towne but they were pretty moderate And wee had some discourse wth y^e priests and people of y^e truth and so passed away

And then wee came to [Mertannishire]² where wee had a great meeting y^e friend spoke in y^e street and there came two priests and fell a disputeing in welsh before abundance of people And said y^t y^e light spoken of in John which doth enlighten every man y^t cometh into y^e world was a created light and made and a Naturall light and a Naturall Conscience And I said y^t unto them y^t y^e created or made light was y^e Sunne & y^e Moone and y^e Starres and y^e light w^{ch} Christ had enlightened y^m w^{hall} was y^t which lett y^m see their sinnes, the same would lett y^m see their salvation

So wee passed to Braknock town and y^e friend spoke in y^e street, and I was walking a litle forth wth another friend³ and when I came into y^e street y^e streets were in an uproar and y^e street where I was so I went and discoursed with y^e people and after some time when they had heard y^e truth I passed away but y^e street continued in an uproar about an hour and one halfe and some y^t had been Magistrates shouting amongst them and setting on the people to shout, And they had a Plott amongst them together wth the woman of y^e Inne to have had us out of y^t rooms where wee were, w^{ch} wee had taken upp into another Room to have supped, a great Hall And so I looked at y^e Room, and perceiving the plott, I bid y^e woman bring our mat into o^r own chamber, for there was a table sufficient, and chuse her whether she would bring it or not then shee wished us out of her house, and wee told her wee had taken a house of her and grasse, and so when they could not by any meanes to get us out then they came by flattery but the lord prevented their mischiefs for they had in intend to have murdered us And so y^e next day wee passed away

And wee had a meeting Rutneshire where wee had many thousands of people^a, And there were priests and many of Gentry of y^e Country came and many were satisfied and convinced concerning truth and it was reported If I had had another meeting half y^e Countrey would have comed in they were so taken with y^e truth

So wee passed into Blew Morrice and when wee went to our Inne the friend spake in y^e streets, and hee was cast into prison and they said they were seeking of mee but did not come to y^e Inne and y^e next day hee was sett at liberty, And so wee had a fine time being y^e Markett day, I spoke amongst them the truth largely

And so came into Cheshire¹ where wee had a meeting about three thousand^b 3000 people and all quiet

And so came into y^e North through friends meetings and so passed through Lancashire and Cumberland and into Scotland² through friends and when I came a matter of four score miles into Scotland, the priests petitioned y^e Counsell and y^e cry was among them all was undone And so when I came upp into Edenbourough having been in severall parts of y^e Nation y^t the people was so bad they would hardly give us lodging for our money So when wee came to Edenbouroug an Order was graunted out from y^e Counsell sitting in y^e Parliament house for mee to appear y^t day seventh night and so I did, and the door keeper took off my hatt And when I came before them I said peace be amongst yⁿ They asked mee w^t I came for into y^t nation I said to visite y^e seed of God which had long lyen in death and bondage and to y^e intent y^t people might come unto y^e spirit of God y^t gave forth y^e Scriptures w^h they professed and y^t in y^e spirit they might have all unity w^h god and y^e scriptures and wth one another and bid them waite in the fear of God to receive his wisdom by which all thinges were made and Ordred y^e wth that they might bee Ordred to Gods glory and Order all thinges y^e God had given them under their hands wth his wisdom to his glory So they desired mee to go out and then they called mee in againe and told mee I must depart the Nacion w^{hin} seven dayes I asked them wherefore and what was the cause and they desired mee to w^hdraw and I desired them to hear and give mee a reason and the cause why and they would not. And I told them Herod heard John Baptiste And Pharoah heard Moses

And so the door keeper took mee out and yⁿ I was moved to passe upp and down the Nation and came to Glascoe where there was many people gone to see a horse and a man runne^d where I had brave service in speaking the truth among them and so wee passed to Johnstonns^d where wee were banished out of that town and guarded out by souldiours being taken out of a friends house^d which the soldiours were greaved and they said they had rather have gone to Jamaica^d And then wee came to another Markett town where there were some friends where wee appoynted a meeting in the townes hall And to crosse us the Magistrates appoynted a meeting and so wee had it att y^e Crosse in the Markett day And so truth had a good savour though some were rude So I came to Leith And so to Edenborough where I heard there were Warrants graunted out for mee for the seaven dayes were long past

So after I had been at Edenborough I passed againe just by the place where I was Banished which when I came their some of the officers were astonished and y^e guards did not question mee And when I was off that Burden I passed away And so I came back againe to Edenborough where I had a brave meeting the first day And all quiet and none of y^e guards questioned mee there neither I was moved to ride quite through the town over thair guards And I saw I went over their very Musketts cannone pistols pikes & vary sword ends

And so the next day I passed away towards Dunbarr and wⁿ I came w^{hin} sight of y^e steeple house a great way off it struck at mee y^e I should have a meeting the next day in y^e steeple house yard, [Many friends were wth mee that were turned out of y^e Army] And so I went upp into y^e steeple house yard, there was one of y^e chiefe men in y^e town walking in the steeple house yard, And I sent a friend to tell to him there would bee a meeting of y^e people of God w^{ch} y^e world calls Quakers in the steeple house yard the next Morning by y^e Ninth hour And hee said the Lecture would bee by nine And said wee should have it sooner And so wee bid him give Notice and hee did And the next Morning wee had a brave meeting w^{ch} lasted till after y^e lecture was done And so y^e priest heard a while & some professors disputed but truth came over all So wee passed away [in y^e truth and escaped imprisonment into England] to Barwick, [And so it would bee larg to declare all y^e service y^t was in Scotland and y^e sufferings & y^e service¹]

When I came into Scotland many being convinced of truth & severall disputes there were wth y^e priests. And they gave forth an Order^a to bee read in the steeple house w^{ch} was curased hee hee y^t denied y^e sabboth day And all y^e people was to say amen And curased was hee y^t said hee had a light from Christ y^t would lead him to salvation And lett all y^e people say amen And curased hee hee y^t said faith was pure And lett all y^e people say amen And by this they manifested their darknesse for faith is pure and purifies And Christ ends the Jews sabboth and this is denied in all Christendom in words and practice, and Christ doth enlighten every man y^t Commeth into the world to salvation or Condemnation if hee hate it And also y^e priests of Scotland principle was that God had Ordained the greatest part of men and women "of y^e world" for hell lett them pray or do all that ever they could do, w^{thout} any cause lesse or more or fault in the creature God had Ordained them for hell, & God had Ordained a number of Men and Women for heaven, lett them sin or do whatsoever they could do they should bee saved And to prove it was in Jude of Ould they they Ordained for this condemnation And all may read that Scripture and see whether there was not a fault and a cause in man wherefore God did condemn him for it sayes they were ungodly men and denyed God and y^e lord Jesus Christ y^t bought them and turned his grace into wantonnesse, and went in Cane way which was murder, and Balsams way from the spirit, which taught y^e people to Commit fornication, And in Cores way which gamsayed the law And was clouds w^hout raine and walls w^hout water, and were twice dead, And plucked up by y^e roots And yet these priests could see no cause why this people should bee condemned And them y^t do sin and do unrighteously there Righteousnesse shall bee remembered no more and if they sin wilfully after they receive the knowledg of y^e truth there remains no more sacrifice for sin [And this corrupt doctrine is spread over all Scotland and most part of England. And the grace of God which brings salvation which hath appeared to all men w^h taught the sautes to live righteously and soberly &c^a This grace if it bee minded and regarded to teach them, and its teaching it will bring every man to salvation And this was in Oliver Protectors dayes]

And I passed to England and upp and down the Nation a great part of y^e Nation to London and Bedfordshire, [where I had a matter of three or four Thousand people]^a

So went upp to London and the sufferings of friends in England, Scotland and Ireland and beyond seas was sent to Oliver Protector and y^e Parliament to see y^t they might bee warned and y^t they might not do such thinges for if they did the Judgments of y^e lord might come upon them and severall times friends were moved to go to offarr upp their bodyes for mee (when I was in prison)^a to the Protector, and wee were moved to warn them of y^e Judgments of y^e lord God And another tyme a matter of two hundred were moved to offer upp themselves to y^e parliament, for to go into the Nasty holes and prisons And so would have had y^e parliament to have taken their bodies y^t the other might be released, to stay the Judgment of God from comming upon them which was in love to god to the brethren and to them And so they sent friends away and threatened them and said Quakers should not meet and w^hen two or three dayes, y^e Parliament was Broken upp and they did not meet Then many disputers and many unclean spirits turned ag^t y^e truth and runne out which was generally against friends and mee but the seed of God came over all, which seed was the first and the last [And then the Protector dyed And then his sonne Richard was called Protector in whose dayes there was great sufferings, and many Imprisonments but truth gote over all, and sufferings were laid upon him and his Councell and Parliament

And then another Parliament gote upp and Richard Cromwell was put out, and all y^e parliaments y^t gote upp one after another upon them all y^e sufferings of y^e people of God was laid, in all y^e Dominions And then the Committee of safety¹ gote upp, and all y^e parliaments were turned out in whose dayes still wee suffered by them, & many Imprisonments and sufferings were laid upon their heads and they fell] And y^e parliament gote upp again and sufferings were laid upon them w^h were upp and down in y^e Nation And all manner of evils and abuses were cast upon us by priests & Professors, and threatnings and flatteries and temptations to y^e honours of y^e world by preferments, till at last y^e Conclusion was amongst them y^t wee were a people beyond all professors which could not bee gained by gifts nor preferments w^h all others could²

I had formerly a meeting in Wales³ where there were many Teachers Baptists and two Priests and a great dispute And the Bayliffe of y^e Town came upp and there mouths had been stopp'd for two or three houres And then one priest⁴ said y^e light y^t was spoke of was Naturall created & made And I bid all people take out their Bibles for I would make y^e Scriptures bend him [though hee did not matter of y^e spirit] So I asked him whether the light wherew^h Christ had enlightned every man y^t cometh into y^e world whether y^t were a made or created light or not And hee said yes And y^e priest runne so farre out at last y^t hee said Christ and God was Naturall and created for I shewed them y^t y^e light y^t John spoke of was spirituall and not created for it was y^e word and y^e word was god And hee was light, and so y^e truth came over all and their mouthes stopp'd, and y^e good in y^e hearts of people was gladed and truth came over all and wee passed

Then I came into Yorkshire where there were many Thousands of people "came to a meeting" In those dayes Lambert was upp⁵, the power was quarrelling one w^h another yet o' meetings were preserved though they came¹ wth a troope of horse to our meeting and trumpette sounding and rode upp just to mee as I was speaking hee y^t did Command them, So I and wee Moderated y^e mans spirit, [& told him our meeting was made acquainted a great while before and it was in no hurt to y^e powers,] and perswaded him to bee quiet, and if hee had any Jealousie search every man and woman, Or and if hee would not tarry himself leav half a dozen to see the Order of o' meeting and so hee did he said he had comed eight and twenty miles and we bid them go into the house to refresh themselves and they did And o' meeting was preserved in the power of y^e lord God and friends parted in y^e truth and y^e power of y^e lord God over all.

[And so I passed through friends into y^e North through meetings And this was the third time I had been most part about y^e Nation

And in the dayes of Oliver and his sonne Richard and y^e Parham¹⁰ if I or friends had been moved to go into a steeple house and looked in any of y^e priests faces their monthes would have been stopped they would have gone away the power of y^e lord was so over them and they would have comed down out of the pulpitt in many places and many times they would have done so The power of God would have gone so over them they being so full of deceit y^t it would have choaked them]

[In the King's Tyme]

And when I came down into y^e North I passing through Lancashire when I had been [about a Moneth] at Swarth moore and y^t awayes [after King Charles was comed in to England] one called Justice Porter⁹ wth four or five more of y^e Magistrates gave forth a warrant to the chiefe Constable I feeling somthing of darkness in the house before they came in of somthing of a great darkness And so y^e chiefe Constable came the next day after I had felt y^t wth three or four more private Constables, pretending to search the house for Armes So I was going forth of y^e house and called for a friend but hee did not come So I went back againe to call him and so mett y^e Constables coming down

y^e stayres and he asked mee my name, and I told him and hee said I was y^e man they look^d for And they took mee to ulverston, and when they brought me thither they gloried much, and said they did not beleve y^e a thousand men should have taken^e and so they kept mee at a Constables house & sett fifteen or sixteen men to watch mee all night, their foolishnes and wickednes was so great, that they were affraid I would have gone upp the Chimney And so I satt upp all night and they would hardly lett any friends come to mee to bring mee necessarie things, And so y^e next morning the Town was upp and a matter of thirty horse went along wth mee, and they sett mee upon a poor little horse with a Halter upon his head and sett mee upp behind y^e Saddle after they had taken my knife from mee, So they made y^e horse to kick, which I gotte off again and told them they should not abuse y^e creature And then they lifted mee upon him againe And after a while they lett mee ryde upon another [of a friends,] and so led mee a matter of sixteen miles to Lancaster in an halter without any Brydle

And so brought mee to Justice Porter who made mee a Mittimus & sent mee to prison And how that I should not bee delivered but by king and parliament quite out of any Course of law or Goal delivery [hee being a slanderous bad tongued man] put in the Mittimus how y^e I and my faculty was an Enemy to y^e king And I and my faculty¹ was imbrewing the whole kingdome into blood and raising a New warre which wee and o^r principles were knowen to y^e nation to bee peaceable [and so I was kept in prison from May day till towards Michaelmas] Then I was had upp to London

And porters charge to the Goaler was to put mee in to a dark house, and lett none come to mee [but who brought mee a little meat] And so I was sent upp to London And the Sheriffs and y^e Bayliffs were so brought down by y^e power of God that they lett mee go upp wth two friends¹ and had meettings in y^e way as I went And when I came to London they were burning y^e Bowels of some that they had put to death And so I went to y^e Judg¹ and hee was putting on a redd Gown and was to sitt upon "some y^e was to dye" and so bidd us come another tyme and so wee went another tyme And when I came to him againe hee called for y^e chiefe Justice of England^s and so they read my Mittimus, How y^e I and my faculty was raising a New warre and embrewing y^e kingdome into blood and an Enemy to y^e king And they lift upp their hands I told them I was the man and I was as Innocent and pure as a child concerning these thinges & was it a like thing that I and my faculty should bee raising a new warre to embrew the Nation into blood and an Enemy to y^e king and y^e sheriffs and Justices and Officers of Lancashire sent mee upp thither a matter of two hundred Miles wth two of my own faculty and so they called for y^e Goaler of y^e kings to take mee into Custody & bring mee to morrow into Westminster hall for there they said they had more strength And so they bid y^e Goaler not put mee into prison and hee told them hee had no where else to putt mee all was so full they told him hee should not put mee there they told mee If I said I would appeare at Westminster hall to Morrow about v^e tenth hour they beleaved I would not tell a lie And so I told them I should If the lord permitted and so parted And y^e next day I appeared there about y^e tyme [and so I was in a topp of y^e board where the parchments lyce] And friends that went along wth mee delivered in their papers to them

And they read the charg against mee [and there was no accusor appeared when they had read the charg] I stretched forth my hands and said I was y^e man y^e the charg was ag^t but I was innocent and pure as a child for I never learned y^e postures of warre and I loved all men I was Enemy to no man and was it a likely thing y^e I should bee sent upp by two of mine own facultie a matter of two hundred miles by y^e Magistrates and Sheriffs and Officers of Lancashire y^e should bee such a man y^e would Imbrew the whole kingdome into blood and Raise a New warre were the Majes trats of Lancashire faithfull to their trust in doing such a thing, I had need to have had two or three troopes of horse if I had been such a man I told them I was Inno cent and pure concerning all such thinges w^h were charged against mee they asked mee whether I would traverse or file it I told them they were Judges and understood my cause lett them do w^t they would. And then they put it to the king and the Councell, which presently after y^e King graunted forth a warrant to one Judge Mallard¹ to sett Georg Fox att full liberty, for him to graunt forth another warrant for y^e same which was done w^h was of a mighty service to truth which came over all lyars and slanderers and y^t day the power of y^e lord God went over all and a great service for y^e truth it was. Though many bad spirits got upp and some was madd att my releasement, but y^e truth and power of God went over all bad spirits and shined over them all.

And then an Order was Commung out for our liberty and through some bad spirits it was stopped againe and then the fift Monarchy people² rose and made an insurrection in London [a matter of thirty of them] which caused the traine bands and souldiers to arise both in y^e Citty and Countrey, through w^h cause our friends meetings was broken upp and many Thousands were Imprisoned both in Citty and Countrey [And many dyed in prison they being so thronged upp] And I was taken prisoner in that time a party of horse came where I lodged and knocked at y^e door [and y^e maid asked who was there and they said a friend,] and she oppened y^e door, & they rushed into the house [as though they would have broken all to peeces, and runne upp and down y^e Roomes] and one laid hands upon mee, and asked mee for pistols, which I asked him if hee did not know our principle for our weapons were spirituall our principles were peaceable and so he told them I was one of the heads of them and they took mee prisoner and there was a man of y^e house³ said I should not go away y^e night but said I should come in the morning that had some power amongst y^e souldiers⁴. And so I continued there that night till y^e next morning about the tenth houre, there came a foot Company to search the house for the meeting being the first day And friends were gathering And so one of them whipped out a sword, and bald it upp before mee.

And so they took mee away [prison^r to Scotland guard⁵] to Whitehall, before the troopers were come for mee and I had a good service amongst y^e soldidours, though they were rude and Wild for a while [And so when the steeple house preaching was done, the officers came to mee and asked mee If I would take y^e oath of Allegiance, and I told them I never took oath in my life And] they asked mee what I was, and I told them a preacher of Righteousnesse [and so preached the Gosple unto them which was peaceable that they should love one another And I asked them when would they break their swords into plow shares and their spears into Prunning hookes And I asked them what they did wth all their carnall weapons and swords by their sides and when would they break them to peeces, and come to y^e gosple of peace and so after a while they sett mee at liberty & threatened mee and so] I spoke to y^e souldio^rs in y^e guard and passed away

And two y^e were officers ffollowed mee and so I asked them to lett mee go into y^e prison to see some friends and they would not So I went to y^e Captaine of y^e guard my selfe and asked him and hee lett mee go and when I was amongst them I looked out towards the house where I had been taken where the meeting was and they sent a party of Musquetteers to seek mee in the meeting and so they sent three tymes while I was in that house amongst y^e prisoners And so those two officers y^e I asked to go up to see the prisoners they sent a party of Musquetteers to y^e prison and said all y^e was not prisoners might come forth And so I asked y^e soldidours whether I might [go forth and whether I might] stay and they said I might stay and so they missed of their prey And so then I went upp into y^e Citty [And men being all upp in an uproar men could hardly walk in y^e streets, so y^e next first day I and another friend was going to a meeting and soldio^rs had just been there, and the doors were shutt upp And so went to another meeting, and there y^e souldio^rs had just broken upp that meeting also and friends was gathered againe and I staid a good while in the meeting, and friends were all refreshed and well, I staid a good while, and went to another meeting and so the souldio^rs came soon after I was gone and took friends and great work had y^e souldio^rs made wth their swords but the truth came over all And severall friends were cutt and wounded abroad And in that day driven like sheep by souldiers into Dungeons and bad prisons] and then a proclamation was given forth from y^e king y^t all friends should be sett at liberty without paying y^e Goalers fees

And all our persecutors both priests and Magistrates and other officers in the Common wealthees dayes came to be turned out of their places by y^e king but who turned to them, and so it came upon them what wee had propheseyed long before of y^e mighty day of y^e lord y^t was coming upon Magistrates and priests and Army and Officers

[And wo bee to the Teachers and wo bee to y^e priests, w^h was cryed both in townes Marketts high wayes courts and in the dayes of their prosperity they cald us fooles and Imprisoned us and beat us and abused us but y^e word of y^e lord w^h was spoken unto them came upon them all w^h some came to poverty, and some runne into other Countreys and all turned out of their places except it were such as turned to them and this was fulfilled in o^r dayes w^h was propheseyed unto them to y^e eyes of Thousands of the prophets of God and spirituall men and women]

And then after I was moved to go Bristol and through friends in the Countrey and when I came to Bristol the Magistrates were something in a rage, and a friend¹ being w^h mee it was upon him to speak in y^e meeting, I bad him either go before mee or after mee it was upon him to go before mee and when hee was speaking I sitting by him in comes some of y^e officers and after some words plucked him down, and called for the other stranger that was w^h him, y^t was mee and so I sitting still, they took y^e friend away [and after they had examined him and bid him appear the next day hee came into y^e meeting againe, So hee stood upp and cleared himselfe] And when hee had done I was moved to stand upp in the power of y^e lord and there was a brave meeting, and y^e life and truth came over all and so parted in peace And my friend being cast into prison fell sick but after a great while recovered.

The next day after y^e meeting they raised the traine band and said They would hunt mee out and they would have mee And so y^e next first day, the traine Bands being upp diverse friends came to mee and said I would bee taken to day and desired mee not to go to the meeting except I were eternally moved of God, for it was past their reason but I should bee taken [and they would not have mee taken for they would glory too much If I were taken.] And so I sent friends away to y^e meeting to tell mee how things were and they mett mee and told mee and said the souldiers were comd and they were gone to y^e Baptists meeting and the Independants, [& they could know the time when to come to the Quakers, for it was before our meeting beganne and was full.] So I went upp into y^e meeting which astonished friends to see mee come in and y^e power of y^e lord god rose over all, [and So while they were att their dinners and Examining other men for our meeting being kept till the fift hour y^e day before and there usuall time was to break it upp about the third houre] and so when I had cleared my selfe and the truth was over all and all fresh and y^e life upp in all I was passing away out of y^e meeting being a mighty full hote meeting. So I was passing away & I was moved to go back againe and speake a few words, & stood upp and told them that they might see there was a God in Izraell y^e could deliver

So friends cryed as I passed away and said Georgy the officers are coming, are coming. So y^e meeting broke upp in peace and friends was sett over all their heads, and none was taken [w^h after they roared and raged, and Spies was out to watch for mee.]

The next first day I had a meeting in the Countrey [and two other friends went up into y^e meeting in Bristol intending to speak] and the souldiers besett the house round, there being severall doors and then went up and then they said they would be sure to have mee. And they kept that day [five hundred] friends prisoners in y^e meeting place in a rage when they missed mee. [And they kept them till the seventh or eight houre at night and they sent for their suppers into y^e meeting place and then they sett them at liberty, only those two y^e intended to speak were kept prisoners^t, and they queried of them which way I was gone. The Mayor would faine have spoken with mee, and said I had been too Cunning for them, and How might they send after mee into y^e Countrey, and so the truth came over all.]

^t A has no repetition of the words are coming

And I came through friends upp to London So after I had been a while at London, I passed through y^e Countrey to Lecestershire¹ and after a time Coming into a friends house at Swanton in the night there came a man called a lord² wth many Armed men wth swards and pistols in a very rude manner crying make fast the doors So I was sitting in the hall wth two friends and another friend y^t was in y^e house and they examined them takeing their names and the lord himself was ready to strick them wth his pistols and there was one mans name was ffaux And the lord had him sett down his name ffox I being in the next Roomes I heard him they being so Greedy for mee at last they sent for mee wth two soldiours And so when they brought mee before the lord they asked mee my name, I told them my name was George Fox wth astonished them, and said I was innocent and pure and knowen over the Nation ay says hee all y^e world over and what did they to come wth their pistols in that manner for wee were gentle & Innocent and hee held upp his pistols and said hee would make mee gentle And so hee Commanded a guard upon us and bid them look to us but hee said hee could hardly trust y^e guard with mee, but said hee would take mee along wth him

And so the next morning wee were had upp to him and hee asked us whether wee would swear, I told him I never took Oath in my life³, [and I would not swear my Coat were my owne nor swear if a man took it off y^t hee took it The Standers by said would I not do so and I said no, but I could say hee was y^e man, but wee kept to Christ's doctrine which Commands us to keep to yea and nay in all our Communications if hee or his Bishoppes or Priests would prove y^t Christ and y^e Apostles Commanded y^t the people should swear after they had Commanded and taught they should not swear and give us Scripture for it, wee would not stand long about it, wee would swear] And so hee made a Mitimus and sent mee and severall other friends to prison men and women to Lester prison and being a matter of Nine⁴ So it was because wee would not swear and how y^t wee were to have a meeting fur hee could not prove it to be a meeting wth was contrary to y^e law And so friends rode along through many townes wth open Bibles⁵ in their hands, *and^a one with a spinning wheele in her lapp^b it being in harvest tyme as they went with their open Bibles in their hands^c they cryed prisoners for the Lord Jesus Christ which astonished the Countrey people & it had an effect upon their hearts. And so wee were kept in y^e prison till the Sessions

And when the Sessions came wee were brought before the Justices and they asked mee whether I would take the Oath of Allegiance I told them I never took an Oath in my life and called for my Mittimus to bee read before y^e people with they would not and desired Justice of them and if I had transgressed do Justice upon mee. If I were wrong Imprisoned do me Justice & then they put the Oath to mee I told them if they would prove y^e the Apostle Commanded to swear after they had denyed it I would [I called for my accusers and said Paul was brought before the Judgment seat as I was and hee had his accusers face to face but where was mine. They told I was an Enemy to the King I told them I was cast into a Dungeon fourteen years since because I would not take upp armes and bee a captaine ag^t the King] And so they tooke mee away and the power of the lord came over them all and after they had Examined y^e rest of friends the Justices whisper d together and bid the Goaler take us away and so y^e Goaler brought us away and almost all y^e people followed us out of y^e Court and it was a mighty day for the truth And so when I came into the Goalers house The Goaler said Gentlemen you are all sett at liberty and y^e know I must have my fees but give mee what y^e will, [which a great service to y^e truth it was And the Sessions was just like a meeting truth had such an operation in peoples hearts]

And then I was moved to passe through friends into severall Counties and so into Cambridgeshire and into y^e Isle of Ely [to Stoak¹ where wee had a great generall meeting where the souldiours intended to come hearing of mee but by y^e power of y^e lord was stopped & so I passed on through chattridge where there was a warrant out for friends and strangers and strangers that came to y^e Towne] So after I had visited friends passed away to a meeting of friends in the fen country and from thence to home, and the Major hearing of mee sent an officer and y^e next morning I passed away a little before they came and when I was upon horse-back I felt something of y^e darkness y^t was upon mee for they gloryed at hearing of mee, as though they had had mee

And so passed towards Norwich where meetings were troublesome by some y^t were in power but our meetings came over all And so passed through Suffolk and into Essex and Bedfordshire and Herfordshire through friends where meetings were peaceable and so up to London

And after I had staid there awhile visitieng friends passed down into Kent and when I had visited friends and been at their meetings So y^e last meeting was at Tenterdams [two friends¹ was moved y^t was wth mee to go one to y^e Independent meeting and the other to the Baptists to declare truth to them and so when the meeting was almost done being many of y^e world there Some of their friends whispered to them to go out of y^e meeting because y^e scouldie^m were coming but they would not go but fare as wee fared they said] and when y^e meeting was done I was passing into a field down comes a captaine wth a Company of Musquetteers and sent a Company to mee and stopped y^e rest of friends and had mee to their Cap^t and so when hee came into y^e yard he called and asked which was Georg which was Georg ffox I told him I was y^e man and hee came to mee and told mee hee would secure mee & put mee amongst y^e Scouldiers, and took some other of the friends upp to y^e town prisoners to y^e Goalers house and after a while called mee upp and Examined mee why I came thither to make a disturbance and said there was a law which was ag^t Quakers meetings made onely ag^t them I told him I knew no such law, and he brought out the law that was made against Quakers and others And I told him y^t was against such as were a terror to y^e kings subjects and were Enemies and held dangerous principles, for wee held truth and our meetings were peaceable, and they knew their neighbours were peaceable people And wee loved all people, and wee were Enemies to none And they told mee I was an Enemy to y^e king I told them I had been cast into Darby Dungeon because I would not take upp Armes against him [fourteen years ago]

about Worster fight And was brought up by Collonell Hacker to London, as a Plotter to bring in king Charles, and was prisoner to London and kept there till I was sett at liberty by Oliver the Protector Though o^r Principles were peaceable And they asked mee whether I was imprisoned in the time of the Insurrection, I said yes I had been Imprisoned*, 'and I had been sett att liberty by y^e kings own word before' And so spoke to them of their Conditions to live in y^e faure of God, and to bee tender towards their Neighbours that feared god and mind gods wisdom by which all thinges were made & created y^t they might come to receive it, by which they might come to Order all thinges to Gods Glory by y^e wisdom by which all thinges were made And y^t by it they might bee Ordred And so they called upp the other two friends y^t was with mee and they asked them from whence they came and they told them they came along wth mee

And they said it was y^e Majors pleasure y^t wee should bee all sett at liberty and many words wee had of the truth, & they were brought pretty moderate and so wee passed away in y^e truth & in the power of the lord which fredome was a great service to truth for at first they demanded bond of us for o^r appearance at y^e sessions, but wee denied all being Innocent and peaceable So wee passed on through Sussex and Surrey visiteng friends there and Hampshire where severall friends were Imprisoned And so having a Meeting att Ringwood in Hampshire¹ y^e Souldiours hearing of it, they raised the traine Bands, and came upp to the house hearing of my name but they came before y^e meeting was begonne, I being walking in the backsyds ons of y^e world came to a friend y^t was wth mee and bekened to him and told him the traine Band was Comming to break upp our meeting and so o^r friend desired mee to walke a litle aside and after a while they would bee gone for our meeting did not begin till after y^e twelft houre and then it was the tenth and so I walked over y^e Hsdg and I had no sooner passed over the close but it was spread over wth Soldiours and made a great noyce And p^resently they went their wayes and takeing some few friends along wth them and some they mett in the lanes And so then after wee had a brave meeting after they were gone and so there comes a man and looked into y^e meeting, I being speaking away hee goes into the town and gives the souldiours notice againe. The town being a mile and a halfe off it was a pretty while before they could come So wee had a brave meeting and departed in quiet and peace, but they came upp after like madd men w^h their swords but I was gone and most of friends before they came w^h made them in a pittifull rage They took in all about sixteen and sent to prison

And so I passed up into Wiltshire and there were enquiries made after mee after y^e meeting was done

And then into Dorcestershire and Devonshire and Cornwall where meetings were quiet and peaceable But in Tiverton they had intended to have had mee in prison and had spoken to some of our friends as favouring of them that they should be their prison^r but our meeting was broken up before they came so wee passed to another town where wee had a great generall meeting where they had sorely persecuted friends and carried them by carts from Justice to Justice¹ and sent them to prison yet by the power of the lord god wee got through all and friends were refreshed And so wee came thurrow Somersetsshire by friends and then afterwards to Bristol, which after wee had visited friends there and in Wiltshire passed into Glostershire where meetings were large and peaceable

And wee passed into Wales [to Pontamile and when the meeting was done The next morning wee passed early away] To another meeting some Ten miles off in the Middle of y^e meeting Comes a Bayliffe to take upp the speaker^r [and said they had been searching for y^e speaker at the house which I came from y^e morning and so the woman of the house took him in.] So when y^e meeting was done I passed away and hee was in y^e yard and Bowed to mee but said nothing to mee and the Countrey was in a great rage, and att night they came And shott off a pistoll or gunne against the house but did no hurt And then I passed to Rosee and had a Meeting And then to herford and after I had visited friends there Wee passed upp into Wales againe and on the first day wee had a great meeting and on the third day wee had another meeting up in Wales and after

y^e meeting was done wee passed away towards the third day meeting and so when wee came to the meeting a noyse was amongst friends y^t y^e watches were sett and they had taken some friends y^t were comming to the meeting and so I was moved to passe another way and so missed them and so after y^e meeting was done wee passed away peaceably and those friends were sett at liberty y^t were taken upp by the watchmen being neighbours So wee came into England where wee were taken Notice of in a great town in a faire day but wee escaped and by the power of the lord wee came over And I heard that Herford^e Magistrates were grieved because they missed mee And so wee passed through worstershire and into yorkshire & visited friends

And so into Bishoprick where of meetings were very peaceable but some Magistrates were ag^t mee, which had taken some papers to mee They threatned mee and said if they could catch mee they would tye mee to a stake and burne mee So after I had visited friends I passed into westmerland And so from y^e meeting in Westmerland I passed to Swarthmoore in Lancashire And a Noyce being of y^e plott I wrote papers to cleare friends of that thng and sent them to the Magistrates and to y^e king and the Councell to take off Jealousies out of their minds concerning friends And so I was moved to go into westmerland and there they sought after mee when I was gone the Magistrates did And from thence I passed into Northumberland And while I was gone away they searched their house at Swarthmoore hall for mee, yea to the very Trunks and Boxes and so when I came into Cumberland there was halfe a crown a day¹ and a Noble given to man to take upp speakers meetings it being the Seasons Tyme [and great floods] none came to our meetings but they were peaceable but after wee were gone they were in a rage that they had missed their price of mee

And there was one fleeming^a a Justice for Cumberland and Westmerland had given forth a warrant to take mee, and any man y^t could should have five pound for his labour [hee sett mee att a higher rate than Christ who was sold for thirty peeces of silver] This same Justice had given forth a warrant to search and break up friends meetings which the Constables hunted up and down from meeting to meeting And as I went into Westmarland, Middleton¹ a Justice sent two men to a meeting to breake it upp but it was broken upp before they came and so they missed it And this bleeming a heady man enraged other officers So they came to a meeting where friends were that they searched under their beds for mee and I was not there

So w^m I came to Swarthmoore against Collonel Kirbey² had sent for to seek mee by Soldi^m, and the Constables came to seek for mee I went upp to Collonel Kirkbey if hee had any thing to say to mee I was comed to visite him and when I came to him he told mee hee had nothing against mee and told mee If I would stay at Swarthmoore and not keep great meetings and not many strangers none should meddle with mee I told him our meetings were peaceable and wee had the word of the king for o^r meetings & his speech and declaration concerning Tender Consciences and for them that lived peaceably should not bee called in queestion for matter of Religion and he knew his neighbours were peaceable and so many of y^e Gentry of y^e country being there it was of Good Service and so I passed from him and left him seeming loving and so came to Swarthmoore and so after a little while the Deputy Leivtenant³ of y^e County sent for mee to Hoolker Hall and Examined mee and asked mee whether I owned the Battle door and the Languages y^t were in it I told them yee And they asked mee If I could understand languages I said sufficient for my selfe, and said salvation did not lye in the tongues they were a lowe thing And what were so many tongues in matter of salvation for the many tongues begonne at the confution of Babel And so they asked mee if I had heard of the Plott, I told them I had heard the noyse of such a thing of one which had heard it from the Sheriffe of yorkshire⁴ but I know no friend y^t was in any such thing but only I heard of such a thing I had written against all such plotters and all such thinges, and I had sent them pap^m ag^t such thinges and so they were in a rage and cryed make a Mittimus And Preston said hee would have an Independant, a Quaker, an Anna baptist and a Presbyterian to Interpret y^t Scripture w^{ch} said, woe be to the Scribes and Pharisees Hypocrites⁵ I told him I would do it quickly for y^e Jews they had the Law and would not do it the Wo was unto them the Christians they have Christs words and y^e Apostles which saith love Enemies and love one another Now judge yo^r selves in this case* and then they gave Order that I should appear att the Sessions which I did and w^h I came there they called mee to the Barre And I said peace be amongst them twice And the Clark of the peace cryed peace to all y^e Court in pain of Imprisonm^t and so the Chayre man asked mee If I knew where I was and I told him yes & said It may bee it was the not putting of my hatt y^t troubled him and that was not^t the honour y^t came down from God that was a low thing I hope hee looked not for y^t And hee said hee looked for that too and bid them take off my hatt w^h they did

And so a pretty space wee looked att one another till the power of the lord God arose over all and then one of them asked mee if I heard of the plott I told him in the same manner as I did to y^e Deputy Leivtenants before But I knew no friend nor no one in it They asked mee why I did not declare it to y^e Magistrates I said I had written to y^e Magistrates and to y^e king also ag^t Plotts And wee were peaceable And they told mee y^t I had been in Westmeiland I told them and in Cumberland too to declare ag^t plotts And they asked mee if I did not know of a law ag^t Quakers meettings I said there was a law y^t took hold of such y^t were a terror to y^e kings subjects and such as held dangerous principles And were Enemies to y^e king It was truth y^t wee held and were Enemies to no man but loved all men And did not meet to terrify people the law was good in it selfe y^t was made ag^t those y^t did terrify people and were Enemies to y^e king and held Dangerous principles

They asked mee if I would take the Oath of Allegiance^t I told them I never took Oath in my life I could not swear this was my coat if a man took it I could not swear that hee was the man They asked mee if I did my self to bee a Quaker I told them Quakeing and trembling at y^e word of God I owned according to y^e Scriptures but for y^e word quakeing it was a Nickname given to us by Justice

Hennett y^t cast mee into a Dungeon because I would not take up armes ag^t the king and bee a Cap^t so they asked mee If I would sweare and they gave mee the Book and I took it and was turning to a place y^t was ag^t swearing and they took it from mee agⁿ and bidd mee say after the Clerk So I told them if they would prove y^t Christ and y^e Apostles Commanded to sweare after they had forbidden it give us Scripture for this and wee should sweare It was Christs Command y^t wee should not swear but if I could take any Oath I would take that I told them o^r Allegiance did not lie in Oaths but in truth and faithfullnes for they had Experience enough of mens swearing first one way and then another and breaking their Oaths but o^r yea was o^r yea and o^r nay was o^r nay And so they cryed take him away Goalers And so I bid them take Notice it was in obedience to Christs Commands y^t I sufferd

And so I was sent to prison where now I am wth 8 more¹

This of y^e following two first pages must be placed about y^e middle of y^e Book

In the dayes of Oliver as I went into Portsmouth [y^e guard bid me stand and light off my horse where I was never unhorsed before and the Cap^t of y^e guard proved to bee a friendly man] and they had mee before the governour to y^e governours house and one friend went in and spoke to him and was not willing y^t I should go in because my name was so known So after some time wth him^s wee were sett att liberty and had a fine meeting in the town and so passed away

Another tyme when I came to Manchester where wee had a meeting and people threw water and stones and dirt at us and at last (the Sessions being in the Town) people were very rude in the meeting and some runne to the Sessions and told them upon which they sent a Company of Officers and hallad mee out of y^e meeting into the Sessions house before the Justices^s And after some debate wth them for they were all so rude I did not know who were Justices att the first So I asked w^{ch} were the Justices and I called for Moderation and Civillity And Justice I own and so after some discourse wth them, they caused the Constables to take mee away and they kept mee in an Inne and stayed wth mee about an houre And came no more to mee And so mee coming to mee the next morning I went to the Constables house and hee had no further Order wth mee nor concerning mee And so the next day I passed away in the truth of God over all

The priests and Magistrates were in a rage at Lancaster ag^t mee, and enflamed the Judges When they came y^e one of y^e Judges stept up in open court in a rage against mee and was sending for a warrant into y^e Countrey for mee and one wast¹ w^h was Clerk [of y^e Crowne Office and Justice of peace and Quorum] stept up in the open Court before y^e Judge and said y^t hee would offerr upp body for body and his estate for mee and so stopped the Judges mouth w^h was of great service and came over the Countrey and the same night I came to the Towne before y^e Judges were gone but they were so stopped that they had not power to send for mee & thus the truth of God came over all [And the priests and Magistrates & wicked professors lost their end and this was in the Common wealth days]

Though the Lord had provided an outward habitation for him [Swarthmoor Hall] yet he was not willing to stay at it, because it was so remote and far from London where his service most lay. He stayed there and thereabouts till he finished his course and laid down his head in peace.

hath Been att &c Anno domini 1685*

Att Kingston y^e 11th of y^e 1st moth as I went to y^e meeting I mett y^e Chief Constable, & he was pritty Civill & he had Sett y^e watchmen to keep us out of y^e meeting but they Let friends have two fformes to Sitt upon in y^e high way and we had a very precious meeting in y^e Street and y^e Lords presence was with us and Soe parted in peace -

And y^e 15th day after I wentt to y^e Bull and mouth⁷ in London and y^e Constables kept the meeting out in y^e Street and made a great Bussell when any fr^d Spoke & att Last I spoke & told y^m heaven was Gods throne and Earth was his footstool & would they not let us Stand upon Gods footstool to worship & Serve y^e Laving God & many other words I Spake and they were quett & then we broak up our meeting in peace -

And on y^e 18th of y^e 1st month I was moved to goe to gracious street meeting & they set a guard y^t kept us out in Lumber street {&} another at Gracious street gate & kept us out in y^e Street & I stood upon a Chair and spoke Largely to y^e people many weighty truths & opened y^e principles of truth to tham concerning of Magistrates and concerning y^e Lords prayer and there "were thousands" of people, and professors, and very quiet and none disturbed us, but we parted in peace & y^e Lords power was over all

And y^e 19th day I went to Guilford where I visited friends and from thence to W^m Pens about 50 miles from London & we went almost 10 miles about, y^e wayes being bad, and on y^e 22^d day I had a very blessed meeting there amongst friends and quiet

And on y^e 25th day of y^e 1st month 1683¹ James Clapole² was mighty sick of y^e stone y^t he Could nether Lye nor Stand he was in such extreimity of y^e Stone y^t he Cryed out like a woman in travell and I went to him & Spoke to him and was moved to Lay my hand upon him & desired y^e Lord to rebuke his Infirmitie and as I Laid my hands upon him the Lords power went through him & his wife had faith & was sensible of y^e thing & he presently fell of a Sleep & presently after his Stone came from him like dirt & soe then he was presently well formerly he used to lye a month or 2 weeks of the Stone, as he said, but y^e Lords power in his time soon gave him ease y^t he came v^e next day 25 miles in a Coach with me & y^e Same 25th day I went to a meeting from W Pens, where there was a Large meeting & y^e Lords presence was amongst us & it was quiet

[And y^e 26th day I came to Henry Guilds³ 25 miles and staid there a pritty while, and then he went to widdow Souths⁴ betwixt 4 & 5 miles & there I had a Large blessed meeting, on y^e 28th day & y^e Lords presence was amongst us, and from thence I came 15 miles to Hingston]

And on y^e 1st day of y^e 2^d month I went to y^e meeting at Hingston where they kept us forth of doors two watchmen & a Constable it was the monthly meeting day & pritty Large & many of y^e people of y^e world were there & all very quiet & y^e Lords blessed presence was amongst us blessed be his name for ever

G ff was at Spittlefields y^e 23th day of Aprill⁵ where there was a glorious blessed meeting and many professors & friends and very peaceable and many things were opened to them to their great Satisfaction, & y^e meeting was for

² A prill altered to 8 mo

Largeness Like a yearly meeting, and y^e Lords power and truth was over all

And after G ff came out of y^e Country he was at the Peas¹ y^e 15th of y^e 3^d mo where there was a blessed meeting peaceable and quiet within y^e doors

And y^e 20th of y^e 3^d mo he had a meeting at the Savoy² where there was many proud people³ beside friends & y^e Lords power was over all that they were all very quiet, and mighty affected with the truth and y^e Love of it w^{ch} over came them

And the 23^d of y^e 3^d mo G ff was at Gracious Street where y^e meeting was kept within the doors & it was Large & y^e blessed presence of the Lord was in the meeting & gods power & Seed reigned over all blessings & praises and glory & honour to his name over all for ever, and the meeting was very quiet and friends & people Satisfied beside many other meetings that he was at in London that were peaceable & quiet

And on the 27th of y^e 3^d mo G ff was on y^e forenoon at a meeting near Lumberstreet⁴

And on the 2^d day being the 28th of y^e 3^d mo G ff was at the same meeting of Sufferings⁵ on the forenoon And at Horslydowne on y^e after noon where y^e meeting was interrupted

And on the day following being y^e 29th of the 3^d mo G ff was at the afores^d meeting of Sufferings in Lumber street

And the 30th of y^e 3^d mo G ff was at Gracious Street where the meeting was kept {within} the doors and it was an exceeding Large meeting & very peaceable On the same day in the after noon he was at the meeting of Sufferings And he went from thence to another meeting of busyness⁶ the same night

A Short account of y^e persecutors of Ringwood in Hampshire

There was a meeting intended by y^e people of god Called Quakers at pullner⁷ in y^e parish afores^d in y^e year 1653 on y^e Last day of y^e 3^d mo before y^e meeting was gathered and y^e hour was come that y^e meeting was appointed John

Lane¹ Constable came with John Streat² Captaine of y^e train bands with Souldiers & took 17 men and after those men were haled away there was a meeting held by G ff The known persecutors were Tho Blackherd³ Warden John Lane Constable John Streat Captain and it is observed by many people that y^e Evident hand of god ffell upon them all these were wealthy men & many did observe that the Just hand of god was ag^t them as did plainly appear by their own confession as alsoe by y^e wasteing of their outward Estates the above said John Lane Constable carryed these men to prison and when they were brought before the Judges of the Assizes he took a false oath ag^t them who were innocent for wth they were fined & kept prisoners more than 10 years John Lane Constable dyed in y^e year 1682 A Sad spectacle to behold he grievously rotted away alive & soe dyed his wife alsoe (heing a persecutor) after the same manner or the Like example & those things are Generally known by v^e neighbourhood and witnessed by the sufferers (viz) Tho Manner, Martin Bennet James Millar Ed Pricket Philip Bennet &c⁴ This John Lane did confess y^t he never prospered since he Laid hands on the quakers witnessed by John Chater who heard him speak y^e words wth severall others & wished he had never medled with them and said he never prospered since in y^e presence of Eliz Benester & said he was sory he had a hand in persecuting y^e Quakers and alsoe that he would never meddle with them more and said that he thought y^e hand of y^e Lord was ag^t him for it

The 31st day of y^e 3^d mo G ff appointed a meeting in y^e morning concerning busyness at Sam Boultons⁵

On y^e 5th day being y^e 1st of y^e 4th mo G ff had a meeting about y^e 5th hour in y^e morning at W^m Crouches⁶ with some friends from Scotland Ireland Holland freezland Danick & America

On the same day G ff had a meeting at Ben Clarks⁷ about busyness

And afterwards y^e same day he had a meeting wth the phisicians at James Wassen⁸

He had alsoe y^e same day 2 meetings at Rich Richardson⁹ Chamber¹⁰ about busyness.

On y^e 2^d day being y^e 4th of y^e 4th mo G ff was at y^e morning meeting¹ in Lumberstreet & alsoe he was at another appointed at y^e same place in the after noon Concerning of busyness

On y^e 31st day of y^e 5th 83 I was at y^e peel meeting & it was in y^e house quiet² And a Little before y^e Justices & chief Constable had broken up the meeting there and were very bad to friends but that day there was a glorious meeting blessed be the Lord

And on the 5th day of y^e 5th mo 83 I went to Gracious street meeting³ & 3 Constables were in y^e meeting house & y^e Watchmen they kept y^e door in Lumberstreet and y^e meeting was in the Yard & when I had spoken about 3 quarters of an hour one of y^e Constables came & took me by y^e hand & said I must come downe & I desired him to be patient & after I had spoken a while to y^e people he had me into y^e meeting house & I asked them if they were not weary of this work & one of them said indeed they were & they Let me goe into Mary Fosters house⁴ and when y^e meeting was done (for one spoke after I was taken away & prayed⁵) the Constables said to some friends wth of them would pass their words y^t if they were questioned I should appear & friends said there needs no such things ffor G ff was a publick man & well known in y^e City and he would neither shrink nor fly & soe the Constables did not come into y^e Chamber to me but went their wayes and Left me at Liberty

[And on y^e 25^d of y^e 7th mo v^e Constable y^t pluckt G ff downe made a confession & said y^t day 7 weeks he had pluckt G ff downe when he was speaking and since he had kept his bed within 4 dayes & he could hardly walk over y^e room & his wife was Sick at present & he had a pain in his back shoulder and Arme ever since & he was Loath to have been there but y^t he was forced and did not Like y^t work and Some friends told him that he might hurt his back or shoulder by thrusting amongst y^e people and not by taking hold of G ff but y^e Constable answered & said he was smote and struck at y^e heart before he Laid hands of G ff to take him downe & soe y^e Constable seemed to be penitent and sorry, y^e he was brought into such a work & did not like it, & told the people what misery and trouble he had been in since for meddling with friends]

And on y^e 9th day of y^e 5th mo on y^e 5th day of y^e week G ff was at y^e Savoy where there was a precious meeting and quiet within y^e doors

And on y^e 12th day of y^e 5th mo being y^e first day of y^e week G ff was at y^e meeting at Westminster¹ w^{ch} was Large & precious within y^e doors & y^e Lords power was over all and all y^e Loose spirits were bound by y^e power & spirit of y^e Lord

And on y^e 15th of y^e 5th mo being y^e 5th day of y^e week G ff was at a meeting at Devinsire house and y^e meeting was within y^e doors and it was a precious meeting & quiet and y^e Lords presence was amongst us

And on y^e 18th of y^e 5th month G ff was sent for 19 miles into y^e country to see Mary Wooley² y^t was sick & she was refreshed with y^e power of y^e Lord where on y^e 19th day being y^e 1st day of y^e week many fr^{ds} met him at her house

And on y^e 20th of y^e 5th mo being y^e 2^d day of y^e week G ff came to Devinsire house meeting being a 2 weeks men and womens meeting³ And after y^e meeting was done some friends were desired to goe to y^e major⁴ who had sent to prison 19 friends from Devinsirehouse on y^e 1st day of y^e week being y^e 19th day of y^e mo and y^e major set them at Liberty at night after friends had spoken to him

And y^e 21st of y^e 5th mo being y^e 3^d day of the week G ff went to the 6 weeks meeting⁵ at Devinsire house

The 29th day of y^e 5th month being the 4th day of the week G ff was at Gracious street meeting where there came in severall malicious people y^e meeting being in y^e house & these malicious people talked one to another & staired up & downe y^e meeting and at Last they Spoke one to another & one of them went away & y^e other called him againe and he went away again and I felt a body of darkness & a deare rise in me, for y^e Lord to Chasme them I did helieve they were going for some officers and I felt y^e Lords power went over them & did chasme them & y^e gloryous Life of y^e Lord rise & was over them all & we had a glorious blessed meeting & quiet & as G ff went downe y^e Street he met a couple of proud men in Lumberstreet & one of them said it was a quaker & they stood about half a dusen or more together & as G ff went by, O Said they had wa but a warrant now see great was their Envy but y^e Lords power was over them all

And then I went about 12 miles into y^e Country and staid a week

And y^e 9th of y^e 7th mo being y^e 5th day of y^e week G ff was at 2 meetings at Rathiff² in y^e meeting house & y^e meetings were very Large & many professors were at them & y^e Liveing presence of god was manifest amongst us to his glory & praise & beside many other meetings and publick meetings G ff was at

On y^e 11th of y^e 7th mo being y^e 3^d day of y^e week G ff was at a meeting at y^e peel where there was a very Large meeting within the doors & very peaceable & quiet, without y^e Least disturbance

On y^e 12th of y^e 7th mo being y^e 4th day of y^e week G ff was at the monthly meeting at Bullon mouth w^{ch} was peaceable & quiet & wthin y^e doors at y^e same day he went to visit y^e prisoners at y^e Counter and at Newgate y^e were cast in for meeting together to worship god, and some by y^e Byshope writts

And on y^e 14th of y^e 7th mo being y^e 6th day of y^e week G ff was at the meeting of sufferings where there was many grievous sufferings read y^e came out of many parts of the nation

And on y^e 15th day of y^e mo being y^e 7th day of y^e week G ff came to Dolston And on the 17th day he went to y^e womens School at Shackellwell² to visit them where he had a meeting

The 25th day of y^e 7th mo G ff went to Gracious street meeting w^{ch} was within the doors where y^e Liveing presence of y^e Lord was amongst fr^{ds} and a glorious meeting it was & y^e Lords power was over all & did ch^{ase} all y^e wicked sp^{its} & it was peaceable & many were reacht with y^e Lords truth & the meeting ended peaceable

And after G ff had a Little meeting about busyness & then he went to y^e monthly meeting y^e same day The 30th of y^e 7th mo being y^e 1st day of y^e week G ff was at

Whealey street¹ where there was a very great meeting & very peaceable without doors in y^e street

The 1st day of y^e 8th mo G ff was at a quarterly men & womens meeting at Bullon mouth where it was kept very quiet and peaceable

And on y^e 2^d of y^e 8th mo being ve 3^d day of the week G ff was at a Sun weeks meeting at Bullon mouth where it was held very quiet & peaceable

And on y^e 6th of y^e 8th mo being y^e 6th day of y^e week G ff was at y^e meeting of Sufferings

The 7th of y^e 8th mo being y^e first day of y^e week G ff was at y^e Savoy meeting², it being upon him to goe thither, & it was very large and many precious things were opened to y^e people and many professors were there and they were turned³ to y^e Sp^t of god w^{ch} j^e Lord had poured upon them soe y^t all by y^e Sp^t of god might know y^e Scriptures y^t were given forth from y^e Sp^t of god & by y^e Sp^t of god might know god, & X^t y^t god had sent w^{ch} was eternall life to know and by y^e Sp^t they might all come into X^t their sanctuary who destroyes y^e devill y^e destroyer & his works and bruises y^e Serpents head for X^t was their Sanctuary who was their Saviour y^t Saved them from y^e destroyer and X^t did baptize them with y^e holy ghost & fire & throughly purge his flower & burn up their chaf with unquenchable fire y^t is sin & Corruption w^{ch} is got into man and woman by their transgression and X^t gathereth his wheat into his Garner soe all you that are baptized with X^ts Baptisme your wheat is in gods Garner and noe spoiler can get unto Gods Garner there to meddle with y^e wheat though they may be permitted to meddle or make a noise with y^e outward goods & y^e platters & Coates & as I was speaking in y^e power of y^e Lord y^e people were transported & y^e Lords power was over all, And of a Suddain y^e Constables & y^e people came in like a Sea & one of y^e Constables ^{sd} come downe & laid hands on me & I said to him art thou a X^tian we are X^tians & he had me by y^e hand & was very fierce to ~~shock~~ me downe and I spoke to y^e people y^t y^e blessings of god might rest upon all and still y^e Constable bid me come downe, [& I said to him then Let me take my hat & he said you may take your hat & I said how can I take my hat

² The word turned is crossed out and directed written over it

& thou holdest me by y^e hand then Let my hand goe y^t I may take it and when I had taken it he plucked me downe] & bid another with a staff take me & put me into prison & they Carried me to another officers house y^t was more Civill and when they brought in 4 more they had taken of friends & I was very weary and in a great Sweat Severall friends came to visit us in y^e Constables house and I had them all goe their wayes lest y^e Constables & Informers should stop them

And then y^e Constables had us almost a mile to Justice [Guies¹ in Kings street in Bloomsbury] a fierce passionate man & he asked me my name and when I had told him the Clark wrote it downe and y^e Constable told the Justice y^t I had preached in y^e meeting and the Justice asked me whether I did preach & said did not I know y^t it was contrary to the Kings Laws to preach in such Conventicles y^t were contrary to y^e Littergy of y^e Church of England and when I thought that he would have sworne some ag^t me I said let noe man swear ag^t me for it is my principle not to swiair and therefore I would not have any man to swear ag^t me

And y^e Justice said did not I preach in y^e Conventicles or meeting & I said that I did confesse w^t god & X^t had done for my soul & did praise god & I thought y^t I might have done it in the streets & in all places (viz) praise god & confesse X^t Jesus, And thus I was not ashamed to confesse & this was not contrary to y^e Littergye of y^e Church of England And y^e Justice said against such meetings as were contrary to y^e Littergye of the Church of England & I said I knew noe such Laws ag^t our meetings but if y^e Justice did mean y^t Conventicle Acte concerning such y^t did meet to plott & contrive & to raise insurrection ag^t the King we did abhorre all such Actions and we were noe such people nor did we own our Selves such a people as that Acte was ag^t for we had nothing but Love and good will to y^e King & all men upon y^e earth & y^e Justice asked me whether I had been in orders & I said noe never & then y^e Justice took y^e Law books & searched for Laws ag^t us & bid his Clark to take y^e rest of their names but he found noe Laws ag^t us and then when y^t they had taken their names y^e Clark swaurs y^e Constable & some of y^e prisoners said take heed what thou swearest for he took them in y^e Entry & not in y^e meeting Lest he was perjured, but y^e wicked Constable swore that they was in the meeting and then y^e Justice said y^t there was but one witness & y^e friends were discharged but he would send me to Newgate & I might preach there he said And I said to him could he in his Conscience send me to Newgate for praising god and for confessing X^t Jesus and I felt my words touched his conscience & he cryed Conscience, Conscience and soe he had y^e Constable take me away & he would make a Mittemus to send me to prison when he had dined, & I said I desired his peace & y^e good of his family and that they might be kept in y^e fear of y^e Lord if it was his will and passed away & two friends passed their words to the Constables & they took them that I should come to y^e Constables house y^e next morning at eight of y^e Clock

And I and friends did goe next morning according to y^e hour And y^e Constables said that he went to y^e Justice after he had dined for the Mittemus, And y^e Justice had him come againe after y^e evening Service & he went & y^e Justice said to him at y^e night y^t he might Let me goe & soe y^e Constable said y^t I was discharged^r but y^e Justice said that if he did bring me again before him he would send me to prison & soe being discharged I told y^e Constable that he had y^e face of a man & I would not have him to be an Informer & that he should not have sworne ag^t friends, & soe he promissed to doe soe noe more & soe I passed away and I told y^e Constable y^t he might have Let one Clark an Oxfordshire man have gone away (& not Carryed him before a Justice) when I desired him but he would not but y^e Justice set him at Liberty with y^e rest of fri^{ds}

But when we were Carryed before y^e Justice with y^e Constables Shad y^e wicked Informer^s who had broken prison at Coventry and was burned in y^e hand at London he went up to y^e Justice & said to y^e Justice y^t he had convicted us of y^e 22^d of King Charles, & y^e Justice said what you convicte them yee said Shad I have convicted them & you must convicte them according to y^e Acte & y^e Justice was Angry with him & said you teach me what are you He convicte them upon a riot said y^e Justice soe y^e Informer went away from y^e Justice house in a fret, Soe they were Confounded

& the Lords power came over them & we were set at Liberty

And y^e Justice asked Guil Laty¹ y^e next day if he would pay 20£ for G ff^s fine he said noe then saith he I am disappointed for he being a Lodger I cannot come by his fine and he being brought before me & of ability himself I cannot Lay his fine on any other

[Then saith he I must have him brought before me again & I must send him to prison but v^t he could not doe for he had bid y^e Constable discharge him y^e night before w^{ch} accordingly y^e Constable had done & G ff was gone into y^e Citty & y^e Constable was very glad of it for he told y^e Justice he was very Loath to Carry him to prison w^{ch} made him solicit y^e Justice for to have him discharged

The Justice spoke alsoe of fining the meeting house but J V^e desired him not to doe soe seeing there was noe Information ag^t it ^a And besides we had accomodated y^e Kings Guards with y^e use of it in the time of their necessity (when y^e Late plott was discovered) there being not room enough for them in the Savoy upon request made to our friends they gave them Liberty to Lodge there^b upon Condition they might have y^e use of it in y^e time of their necessity & they stayed about 5 weeks and when they went away they delivered the house up to us againe when he heard this he spoke noe more of fining the House^{a2}]

And on y^e 25: day G ff: was at first Mo^{ty} Meeting¹.

* Here followeth a Relation of two meetings by G ff².

On y^e 26: day there beinge a fast thorow all y^e provinces of Holland³ I was moved to stay A meeting the same day at Amst^dam, whither resorted many great persons as also a great Concourse of people: and y^e Lords power was over all: and I was moved to open to them y^e no man by all his witt and study, nor by Reading history in his own will, could declare or know y^e generation of Christ, who was not begotten by y^e will of man, but by y^e will of God: and this was Largely opened. And then I did open to them y^e true fast from y^e false, shewing them y^e y^e Christians Jewes, and Turks, were out of y^e true fast: & fasted for strife and debate, and y^e bands, and fists of Iniquitty was over them, and oppression; and with that they were snaitseing one another: & y^e pure hands were not Lifted up to God: and how that they did all appeare to men to fast, and did hang down their heads for a day like a Bull Rush. w^{ch} fast God did not accept, and in y^e state all their bones were dry, and when they called upon y^e Lord hee did not Answer them, neither did their health grow, for they kept their own fast and not y^e Lords, And therefore all were to come & keep y^e Lords fast: & this with many other things were opened to y^e astonishm^t of y^e fasters. and all parted in peace, y^e Lords power being over all.

And I having appointed a meeting at Harlem Citty to bee on y^e 27 day I and Peter Hendrickz and Geertruyd Dirknieson took wagan and passed thither⁴, where wee had A Blessed meeting, severall professo^rs and a high^d priest of y^e Lutherans were at y^e meeting: and y^e priest sat and heard G ff declare some houres and then hee went away and said that hee had heard nothing but what was according to y^e word of God: and desired that y^e blessing of the Lord might rest upon us and our Assemblies. Geertruyd did Interpret for mee, so y^e Meeting did end in peace and in y^e power of the Lord others Confessing to y^e truth, saying, they had never heard things so plainly opened to y^e understanding before.

G ff:

So G ff and ffr^{ds} went to Dirk Klasen's house, where they stayed that night:

And on y^e 28: day G ff and ffr^{ds} took wagan to Amsterdam: to G: D: N^o: and y^e day there came a great high Priest; who had belonged to y^e Emperor of Germany, and anoth^r Germā Priest to speak with G ff: so after they had spoke wth him hee declared y^e truth unto them (and they were tender) opening unto them how they might know God and Christ, & his Law & Gospell: and shewing them that they should never know It by Studying, nor by philosophy, but by Revelation, and Stillness in their minds by y^e spirit of God: and they were well satisfied, & so passed away.

And on y^e 30 day being y^e first day of y^e week G ff: was at the meeting, and declared the truth some houres, severall professors were at y^e meeting and were very Civill not Leaving the meeting till It was ended. and there was a Docto^r of Polland at y^e meeting who was banished out of his Native City for Religion, (and y^e City shortly after was burned) and after the Meeting hee came to G ff and hee had some discourse wth him, and hee was very tender & loving.

And on y^e 3th: 8th: moth: G ff was at ffr^{ds} meeting, where hee declared y^e truth severall houres, and Jn^o Roeloffs did Interprett and the meeting ended in peace.

And on y^e : 7: day being y^e first day of y^e week, W. Penn, G. Keith, Ben: fflurly, and Jan Claus, came to Amsterdam, (W P. having been travelling in Germany since hee parted wth G ff at ffrizland aforementioned) and It being y^e first day of y^e week ffr^{ds} had a Large Meeting, and all was peaceable.

And on y^e : 9: day in y^e Eveninge ffr^{ds} had a dispute with one Gollanus, who is {one of} y^e greatest Baptist in all Holland, and many professors were there.

And on y^e : 10: day G ff: and W P: & G K. were at ffr^{ds} Meetings whither there resorted many hundreds of people, and there were also at y^e Meeting an Earle, & a Lord, & many Eminent persons, who were very Loving (and a Brother of one of y^e Lords of y^e states, Invited G ff to dinner, and hee had good service with them) and y^e ffr^{ds} aforementioned declared in y^e Meeting & B. F. & J: C: did Interpret and all was quiett till W P^e had ended y^e Meeting, & then there were some priests y^t made an opposition, but W P. understanding stood up again, and answered them, to y^e great satisfaction of y^e people: who were much affected wth y^e severall Testimonies, y^t they had heard declared: And after y^e Meetinge there came severall professo^rs to G. D. N^s. wth whom G K & B ff: had much discourse in Latine: [And y^t day there was A Woman at y^e Meeting, who had gone :14: Yeares on her hands, & her knees, and thorow y^e wonderfull hand & Arm of y^e Lord was this year^o Restored to her strength again, and can go very well: & It being such a miracle, y^t many people goes to see her: and after y^e Meeting shee came to G ff: and since her Recovery, so many people going to se her, and shee not keeping Low in her mind, and in y^e fear of y^e Lord, was much runn into words, so G ff spoke much to her, Exhorting her to fear y^e Lord, and telling her y^t if shee did not keep Low and humble before y^e Lord, y^t shee would bee worse then ever shee had been, and y^e woman was much tendered, & confessed to y^e truth:]

And whilst G ff: was at Amsterdam hee writt severall Bookes¹ in Answer to Priests, and others to y^e Clearing of truth, y^e names to whom y^e Answers are, Is as followeth: as also severall Lett^rs to ffr^{ds} and others. Y^e dates when they were written: Imprimus on y^e :18: day 7 moth G ff witt An Epistle to Friends at Danzik and on y^e :19: 7th month Hee writt A warning to y^e Citty of Oldenborgh, It being lately burned down: and hee writt a warninge to y^e Citty of Ham-borough: And on y^e 21: of 7th moth G F writt an Epistle to y^e Embassadours y^t were treating for peace at Nimwegen². And on y^e 29: day :7: moth G F gave forth a book to y^e Magistrates and priests of Embden citty, shewing them their unchristianity in persecuting ffr^{ds} And on y^e 1st: 4: & 5: & :6: days of y^e 8th month G ff: gave forth Bookes in to y^e clearing of truth :

"So now I will proceed on y^e Journall*.

On y^e 11: day of y^e 8: month W Penn, and G. Keith had a dispute again with Gollanus Abrahams¹, at Corneliss Rosloffs² house, and G ff was there, and many friends & professors: and Gollanus was much confounded, so after y^e dispute ffr^{ds} Returned to Gertruyd Dirknieson's, and y^e most of ffr^{ds} friends in y^e Citty came thither, and G ff: and W P: took their Leave with them:

And so they and B. ffurly took wagan and passed to Leiden³ citty, to an Inn, where they Lodged y^t night, and ffr^{ds} mett with a German y^t was partly convinced, and on y^e 12: day hee Informed ffr^{ds} of an Eminent man y^t was enquiring after truth: so ffr^{ds} went to him and G ff spoke to him, and hee owned all y^t hee said, being a serious man: (And about 2 or 3: days after W Penn and B. ffurly, went to visitt another Man who Liveth near Leiden, and hee hath bsen y^e Generall to y^e King of Denmark, and hee & his wife are very Loving, and Received y^e truth with Joy:) so after ffr^{ds} had visited y^t man aforesaid, they passed to y^e Hage, wth is accounted y^e greatest village in y^e world, and y^e Prince of Orange Court is there, and y^e two Dewitts³ who were y^e greatest common wealths men in Holland, were Murdered there, and their flesh was sold: so G ff and W P. and B: F: went to one of y^e greatst⁴ Judges⁴ in Holland, and had pretty much discourse wth him, hee is a wise tender man, & after many objections, & queries, hee was satisfyed, and they parted with great Love; and then they went to speak wth some other sober people, but they did not meet with them: so ffr^{ds} took Wagan, and passed to Delf Citty, and there took boat & passed to Rotterdam Citty⁴ to Benjamin ffurly's house, and after supper W P. went to his Lodging at Areant Sonneinans:

And y^e 13: day G ff: visitted ffr^{ds} in y^e place, And y^e 14: day being y^e first day of the week {G ff & W. P.} was at ffr^{ds} Meeting at B. ffⁿ and they declared y^e truth severall houres, and B F did Interprett: and there were many professors at y^e meeting & all was peaceable.

And on y^e 15: & 16: days G ff gave forth a book for y^e Jewes, for when hee was at Amsterdam, hee sent to them to have A discourse wth them, but they refused. and there came severall ffr^{ds} from Amst^dam to take their leave wth G ff & W P & G K. before they went to England.

And on y^e 17: & 18: G ff was at B F^s hearing severall bookes and papers, wth hee had given forth (being Transcribed) and on y^e 18: day at night W: P: came to G ff: there, and y^e King of Denmarks Resident¹ {came} along wth him, W P: had visited him in Germany, so hee hearing y^e W P was at Rotterdam, came to see him, being Convinced:

And on y^e 19: day G: F: and W P: & G K: and Geertruyd Dirknieson, were at a large Meeting at B: ff^s: where there was many friends, as also a great concourse of people; and all was peaceable. and after y^e Meeting was done friends had a perticular Meeting.

And on y^e 20: day, G ff: passed from Ben: ffurly's about y^e 7th hour in y^e Morning, to Symon Johnson's where W P Mett him, and severall ffr^{ds} came to take their Leave wth English friends:

And so G ff: & W P: and G. K., & Geertruyd & her Children took boat there for y^e Briell (in order to take y^e packet boat that day for England) being accompanied wth Ben: ffurly, and Peter Hendrickz & Symon Johnson, & Corneliss Roelofs & A Sonemans & his Brother², and the Resident aforementioned and they arrived at the Briel about y^e 11: hour, but y^e packett being not come: ffr^{ds} went into y^e Citty to an Inn; and waited for It, but it not coming before night ffr^{ds} Lodged at y^e Inn's.

And on y^e 21: day being y^e first day of y^e week, G ff: and W P: & G K and Geertruyd & her Children took Packett Boat, being accompanied wth y^e ffr^{ds} aforementioned, who did not leave them till y^e Shipp was under sayle {about y^e 10: hour} and so parted in Love and unity: and there was about 60: passengers, in all³; and wee had Contrary winds, and a great storm y^e most pt of y^e time, wee were at Sea & y^e Vessell was so exceeding Leaky, y^e two pomps went both day & night, and 'tis beleived they pompt more water then twice y^e vessell full. But y^e Lord alone who is able to make y^e stormy winds to cease, & y^e Raging waves of y^e sea, to bee calm, yea & to raise them, & stopp them at his pleasure, hee alone preserved us, praised bee his name for ever: And ffr^{ds} had a fine time on shipp board, wth a Collon^l and severall Eminent psons, who were very kind and Lovings.

So wee arrived at Harrwich^e on y^e 23: day about y^e 7 hour at night being :3 days and two nights at Sea: And ffr^{ds} went to Jn^o Vande-Walls house: and aft^r supper W P. and G K. went to Lodge at other ffr^{ds} houses and G ff: and y^e rest stayed at Jn^o V-W. So all y^e ffr^{ds} y^t went over to Holland wth G ff: were come to England again, (viz^t) Jn^o ffurly senior & William Taylcoat, & Rob^t Barclay, & George Watts, & G. Keiths wife and Issabell Yeaman's, were all come (at severall times) before.

And y^e 24: day W P & G. K. took horse & passed to Colchester: and there being no Coaches att Harrwich, G ff & y^e rest wayted for one from Colchest^r to have gone y^t day also: but there came none before night so G ff had a meeting at J: V-W^s & about y^e :9: hour at night Jn^o ffurly Junior^l; came thither, who expected to have mett ffr^{ds} as hee came: and hee went to y^e post masters house, who keeps Stage Coaches, and he being not at home, J: ffurly spoke to his wife, who is an unreasonable woman², for hee bidd her 40^s for a Coach to Colchest^r (It being but about :18 mile) & shee would not under :50^s: so hee came and acquainted ffr^{ds} and afterwards went & bidd her y^e same mony again, before they sought for another Conveniency, but shee Refused It: so then ffr^{ds} ordered a man to go in y^e morning to a ffr^d about a mile & a halfe off: to desireing him to come wth his wagan in y^e morning, & they would Satisfie him: so ffr^{ds} went to Bedd, and then this woman sent word p two Messengers y^t shee would take their Mony. and to see what time y^e Coach must bee ready: so they sett down 7th hour and ffr^{ds} gott ready in y^e morning, (being y^e 25 day) and wayted Long at y^e Fr^{ds} house, but y^e Coach came not; so they went severall times to know y^e Reason, but could gett no Answer till y^e :11: hour and then wth many excuses, shee said y^t her man told her y^e horses were not able: But ffr^{ds} knew her design, It being A good wind for y^e packett boat coming in, shee expected passengers to London; and so thought to gett more gain:

And then G ff tooke horse to y^e fir^{ds} house aforementioned, & y^e Rest of fir^{ds} went on foot, and they hyred his wagan, and Layd some Straw in It, and so went to Collichest^r and in y^e night y^e post boy from Harwich overtook fir^{ds} so they asked him if there were many passengers for y^e Coaches, and hee told them there were but 6: and some of them took horse, so shee was right served for her Coveteousness & deceit. and friends gott very well to Collichester, many fir^{ds} from thence came to meet them in y^e way; W P: & G. K. had wayted for G ff: till y^e 4: hour in y^e afternoon, and then passed away: and G ff went to Jn^o ffurly's senior, and Geertruyd Dirk-Nieson and her Children to Stephen Crisp's: fir^{ds} Rejoycing greatly to see them:

And y^e 26 and 27: days G ff spent amongst friends in truths affaires.

And on y^e 28 day being y^e first day of y^e week: fir^{ds} from severall parts came to y^e Meeting hearing of G. F^s being there, and It was thought (the meeting was so large) y^t there was about: 1000 people: and G ff declared y^e truth severall houres, and all was peaceable, y^e meeting done hee returned to Jn^o Furly's again.

And on y^e 29: day G ff: was at a larg men and Womens meeting there: *and after y^e Meeting, and on y^e 30: day G ff had meetings wth fir^{ds} and people that were gone from fr^{ds} and there was :10: men and women y^t hath been gone from friends this many yeares, and G ff: Reconciled them to fir^{ds} again^a.

And on y^e 31: day G ff took leave with friends, all things being in good order, and passed from thence accompanied with Jn^o ffurly & Geo Weatherly thorow Colen, where they visited severall fir^{ds} and so passed to Halsted to William Bunting's¹ house^b; where severall fir^{ds} came to visit G ff y^e night.

And on y^e 1st of y^e 9th moth there was a large meeting fir^{ds} from severall pts being there, and G ff declared y^e truth severall hours and after y^e meeting returned to W^m Buntings, where there was A meeting y^e night.

NOTES

For Key to Abbreviations see preliminary pages.

Where names in this volume appear in the Cambridge Journal, vols. i and ii, with notes to them, reference only to such notes is given below.

- 1 1 In the left hand margin, opposite the introductory paragraph appears in A: "3, 21 & Sup: y* Substantia In y* Journal," and in B and C: "Pref to Controv. or the Vol. of Suff." The handwriting of the paragraph in A is that of Thomas Lower who wrote the dictated parts of vols. i. and ii. The word "new" in the second line was inserted by George Fox.
- 1 2 Fox would sometimes first attend the meeting of Friends and then leave it to go to the church (pp. 10, 12 (3), 15). As early as 1652 he wrote: "When there are meetings in unbroken places, ye that go to minister to the world takes not the whole meeting of Friends with you... but let Friends keep together in their own meetingplaces... And let three or four or six that are grown up and are strong (in the Truth) go to such unbroken places and thresh the heathenish nature" (Epistles, no. 14). Of the work in London Burrough and Hewgill wrote (1655): "We get Friends on the first days to meet together in several places out of the rude multitude... and we two go to the great meeting place which we have... to thresh among the world" (Barclay, Letters, p. 27).

- 2 1 The sheriff of Nottingham was John Reckless. See vol. ii. p. 405. He was one of the "Dispersers of Quakers Books," 1664 (Extracts from State Papers, p. 228—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1664—5, p. 142).
- 2 2 In the EII. Text (i. 45) there is a narrative of a "distracted woman" at Mansfield Woodhouse who "mended and afterwards received the truth." The two accounts may be reminiscent of the same event.

- 3 2 There are numerous instances of remarkable cures effected through the instrumentality of George Fox. See Index, vol. ii. p. 511, col. 2, adding a reference to vol. ii. p. 342; see also Subject Index (s.v. Miracles) to the EII. Text (ii. 587). Appendix B to Brayshaw's Personality of George Fox, 1918, should be consulted. The following is taken from a ms. in D (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 61): "His [Fox's] mother had a dead Palsy, and had little use of one side, and she often did fall down & then could not help herself, and had been so many years; and George Fox came to see her & at night she fell down, and he was moved to take her by the hand, and it immediately left her, and she arose, and could go about her business."

- 4 1 The priest was Nathaniel Stephens. See vol. i. pp. 394, 397. Edwards, Fenny Drayton, its History and Legends, 1923.
- 4 2 This was John Fretwell. See vol. i. p. 394, vol. ii. p. 314. In 1669 he was evidently in good esteem again, as his name appears in a list of witnesses to a marriage (Elizabeth Hooton, 1814, p. 64), and in 1677 Fox visited his wife and him (p. 229) but the name is omitted from Ell. Text (ii. 268), presumably because he had been a defaulter.
- 5 1 This was Thomas Sharman by name. Ell. Text (i. 523) inserts a letter from Sharman, full of warm feeling towards Fox. It is as follows: "Dear Friend: Having such a Convenient Messenger, I could do no less, than give thee an Account of my present Condition; remembering, that to the first Awakening of me to a Sense of Life, and of the Inward Principle, God was pleased to make use of thee as an Instrument: So that sometimes I am taken with Admiration, that it should come by such a means, as it did, that is to say; That Providence should order thee to be my Prisoner, to give me my first, real sight of the Truth: It makes me many times to think of the Jailer's Conversion by the Apostles. O happy George Fox! that first breathed that Breath of Life within the Walls of my Habitation! Notwithstanding my outward Losses are since that time such, that I am become nothing in the World; yet I hope, I shall find, that all these light afflictions, which are but for a moment will work for me a far more exceeding and eternal Weight of Glory. They have taken all from me: and now instead of keeping a Prison, I am rather waiting, when I shall become a Prisoner my self. Pray for me, that my Faith fail not; but that I may hold out to the Death that I may receive a Crown of Life. I earnestly desire to hear from thee, and of thy Condition which would very much rejoice me. Not having else at present, but my kind love unto thee, and all Christian Friends with thee; in haste, I rest, Thine in Christ Jesus. THOMAS SHARMAN. Derby, the 22nd of the 4th Month, 1682."
- Hodgkin, Quaker Saints, 1917, pp. 67—95.
- 6 2 For Gervase Bennett, J.P., see vol. i. p. 394. His name appears in 1659 among those of "persecutors of friends y^e are Justices in Derbyshire" (Extracts from State Papers, p. 114—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1659—6).
- 6 3 October 30, 1650, was the date of the mittimus. The release took place towards the end of 1651. Ell. Text: "About the beginning of Winter, in the year 1651" (i. 77).
- 7 1 For the practice of a traveller presenting himself to the local constable before applying for lodgings see vol. i. pp. 17, 33. See p. 377.
- 7 2 At this point in the original there is a side-note: "Let this be read before coming to Doncaster." In response to this request we have altered slightly the order of the next few paragraphs as they appeared in the original.
- 7 3 This was Stathes, a place on the seacoast of N.E. Yorkshire. See vol. i. p. 22. Convincements in this district are mentioned in F. P. T. pp. 296, 297.
- 8 1 This was Philip Scarth. See vol. i. p. 400, vol. ii. pp. 107, 321. F. P. T. p. 286; Beginnings, p. 68.
- 8 2 This noted Ranter was Thomas Busbel (vol. i. p. 401), of whom nothing further appears. It is not known from whence the name came into the Ell. Text.
- There are two etchings by Robert Spence illustrating this occurrence.
- 8 3 For Priest Leavens see next note. More information respecting him is not at hand.

- 4 The name William Ratcliffe appears here only. Vol. i, p. 23 has "brother law of the Scotch priest" (Priest Leaven). The surname appears among Friends of N.E. Yorkshire—there was a William Ratcliffe living at or near Stathes whose name is associated with that of Philip Searth (F. P. T. p. 300).
- 5 This Justice Hotham was, in all probability, Durand Hotham (1619—1691), of Winthorpe, in Lockington parish, East Yorkshire. We have studied the work, The Hothams, by Mrs Stirling, 1918, but do not find much there respecting Durand Hotham, he being aside from the main line of descent. He was the fifth son of Sir John Hotham (1589—1645), governor of Hull, and younger brother of Captain Hotham who was executed on 1st January, 1644/5, "for betraying his Trust to y^e State." "His brother (Mr Durand Hotham) immediately took the head up, wrapt it in a scarf and laid it together with his body in a coffin prepared for the purpose" (The Hothams, vol. i, p. 94). The next day his father was executed "for betraying his trust to the parli^t," despite the efforts of his son Durand "who had had legal training and conducted his father's defence with the greatest ability" (ibid. vol. i, p. 89). Durand Hotham aided in the management of the estate of his nephew, Sir John Hotham (1632—1689), second baronet, during his minority. He is also said to have translated into English a book written by his elder brother, Charles Hotham, rector of Wigan (1663—1662), third son of the first baronet and to have edited the writings of Bushme in 1654 (D. N. B.). Durand Hotham married Frances Remington, his first-cousin, in 1645, and they had eleven children who, according to the pedigree in The Hothams, "all died young." In the Lockington "Overseers Book," Durand signs as Justice of the Peace, from 1680 to 1681. The sympathy shown to the Friends by this Justice may have aided in the opening and sustaining a meeting at Lockington, which place appears among the "Towns belonging to Meetings," in 1668 (Jnl. F. H. S. ii, 103). As Cranwick, a few miles north, was in the possession of the Hothams, Durand may have resided there also, as would appear from the reference to the Justice in association with Captain Purglove of Cranwick. N.B. The identification of "Justice Hotham" with Sir John Hotham, second baronet, in vol. i, p. 400, is incorrect.
- Information from the Rev. Philip C. Walker, M.A., rector of Lockington and from Admiral Sir Charles Hotham, G.C.B., G.C.V.O., 1923.
- Sir John Hotham (1589—1645), the first baronet, married five times, his first wife, whom he married when he was eighteen, being Catherine "daughter of Sir John Rodes, of Barlborough, Co. Derby, the eldest son of Francis Rodes, Esq. of Great Houghton, Co. York" and ancestor of Sir John Rodes, the Quaker (d. 1743, see A Quaker Post-Bag, 1910).
- Captain Hotham (1611—1645), issue of his father's first marriage, married three times in his short life, his first wife being Frances, daughter of Sir John Wray of Glentworth (see Camb. Jnl. vol. i, p. 445).
- Sir John Hotham (1632—1689), son of Captain Hotham, married in 1650 Elizabeth, daughter of Sapote, second Viscount Beaumont of Swords in the peerage of Ireland (see Camb. Jnl. vol. ii, p. 382).
- 6 This was Capt. Richard Purglove. See vol. i, p. 390. Dr Hodgkin describes the incident of Purglove entering the church "without a bands" (vol. i, p. 19) as "an interesting little detail in the history of costume" (George Fox, 1896, p. 80).
- There was a Friend named Richard Purglove, resident in N.E. Yorkshire (F. P. T. pp. 293, 296, 297 n.; Jnl. F. H. S. ii, 101) W. C. Braithwaite writes: "Captain Richard Purglove, of Cranwick was certainly a Friend" (Beginnings, p. 71).

PAGE NOTE

- 9 1 The anonymity of vol. i. p. 22 is here removed. Stokesley soon became a Quaker centre, Richard Harpison being one of the local Friends in 1652 (J. F. H. S. p. 298, "Stoussley"). In 1688, "Stoxley" was one of the five Meetings which formed one Monthly Meeting (Jnl. F. H. S. ii. 76).
Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 148.
- 9 2 For James Nayler see vol. i. p. 396. He was a member of a Church near Wakefield (see vol. i. p. 37) of which Christopher Marshall was minister (vol. i. p. 402). Oliver Heywood (1630—1702), writing in his Diaries under date Sept. 15, 1678, of some dissension in the Church at Topliſſe, describes it as "the first and greatest difference that hath arisen in that church since it was a church which is above 30 years, except James Naylour and other 3 quakers that turned off from them 27 years agoe, and were turned out of their communion" (Jnl. F. H. S. xviii. 88).
Jaffray, Diary, 3rd ed. p. 413; Waymarks, 1902, p. 21; Jnl. F. H. S. many volumes.
- 9 3 This was Christopher Marshall, mentioned in previous note.
- 9 4 That is, Malton. See vol. i. p. 25. "In all probability the form Moten was an attempt to represent the pronunciation of the name. Even to-day, in our dialect, you hear people refer to Malton as Morten or Mauston" (letter from Ernest E. Taylor, 1923). Here, in 1652, occurred the great awakening when "the men of Malton' burnt their ribbons and silks and other fine commodities 'because they might be abused by pride'" (Beginnings, p. 72).
- 11 1 For Thomas Aldam see vol. i. p. 402. The old meetinghouse at Warmworth, near Dunsthorpe, long unused, was re-opened for worship, in 1913, by a descendant of the Aldam family. In the Journal of James Thornton (1727—1794), an American preacher in Great Britain, we read, under date 5 viii. 1788: "We rode to Wandsworth [Warmworth] and lodged at the ancient seat of Thomas Aldam. Two of his great-granddaughters now live at it in great splendour. The meetinghouse built by their grandfather on a piece of ground which he gave Friends for that purpose, is a small, decent house" (Comly, Miscellany, vol. viii. (1836), p. 257). William Penn, in his Preface to the Journal of George Fox, gives the name John Aldam among those of the early Quaker worthies; this should, probably, have been Thomas Aldam.
George Fox's Testimony to William Dewsbury in works of latter, 1689; see in D.
- 13 1 That is, Market Bosworth. The priest was Nathaniel Stephens, according to ELL Text (i. 48).
The other Leicestershire place mentioned was Bagath, that is, Bagworth. Several visits in this county here mentioned and in ELL Text (i. 48—49) were probably recorded in the missing pages of the Camb. Text. See vol. i. pp. xxxiii, 1.
- 14 1 This meeting took place at Pickering. See vol. i. p. 25.
- 14 2 For Priest Boys see vol. i. p. 401. "A charming old man of whom we would fain know more" (Beginnings, pp. 68, 69 n., 76).
- 14 3 Hightown in Liversedge is in about the middle of the county of York. Liversedge belonged to Brighouse M.M., in 1688 (Jnl. F. H. S. ii. 34). See vol. i. p. 38. The conduct of the two women towards the travellers is in striking contrast. For Widow Green see vol. i. p. 402. Her opposition did not prevent the conviction of members of her family. There is an ancient burialground, called "Sepulchre Close," in this neighbourhood, once belonging to the family of Green of Liversedge (MS. in D, written by Joseph J. Green—"The Family of Greens of Liversedge, and an Ancient West Riding God's Acre," with illustration of the Cross).

- 16 1 This incident of the woman and the cream forms the subject of an etching by Robert Spence. See vol. i. p. 20.
- 16 2 Probably the river Lune, in that district dividing Westmorland from Yorkshire (Nightingale, Early Stages of the Quaker Movement in Lancashire, 1921, p. 10), or, possibly, the river Rawthey, a tributary of the Lune (Beginnings, p. 60). For the sounding of the day of the Lord on the summit of Pendle Hill see vol. i. p. 40.
Hodgkin, Quaker Saints, 1917, p. 123.
- 17 1 Said by some editors to be Hawes, a town situated at the head of Wensleydale, surrounded to-day by people of Quaker descent. See vol. i. p. 403.
- 17 2 For the expression "son of God" see vol. i. p. 425. It is interesting to notice that in A the words originally written were "y^e Sonne of God," but at some later but early date a capital letter A has obscured the "y^e" and at the apex of the letter appears a small a. It will be seen that the reference here to the expression "son of God" is omitted from the Camb. and Ell. Texts (vol. i. p. 41; i. 111), as also the references on pp. 32, 33, which is omitted from these Texts (vol. i. p. 116; i. 189). The Tercent. Text omits the expression entirely. See p. 27.

- 17 3 For Major Miles Bousfield see vol. i. p. 403.
- 17 4 For Gervase Benson see vol. i. p. 403. This meeting of Seekers ("a separate meetings," vol. i. p. 42) was held on Sunday, 6th June, 1652. "This crowded fortnight was the creative moment in the history of Quakerism. In the freshness of his powers and of his experience Fox had a living message, which he uttered with prophetic authority, and both the message and the messenger answered the yearnings and the hopes of a strong community of earnest-hearted Seekers" (Beginnings, p. 86, and see Index s.v. Seekers).
- 17 5 For Richard Robinson see vol. i. p. 403.
- 17 6 This "first day of y^e week" was Whitsunday, 6th June, 1652. Gervase Benson's home was Berrat. See vol. i. p. 404.
- 18 1 The fair at Sedbergh was held on the following Wednesday (Whit Wednesday). See vol. i. p. 42. The yew tree by which Fox overlooked his auditory was blown down in January, 1877. A portion of it is preserved in Briggflatts meetinghouse. There is a good account of Fox's doings at the fair in F. P. T. p. 243.
Beginnings, p. 83; Hodgkin, Quaker Saints, 1917, p. 133; there is a view of modern Sedbergh in Tercent. Text.
- 18 2 For Firbank Chapel see vol. i. p. 42. "A place of far-reaching views, high up the steep fell on the Westmorland side of the Lune. It was standing in 1837, but fell into ruins a few years later" (Beginnings, p. 84).

- 18 3 That is, Preston Patrick. See vol. i. p. 405. Of the meeting here Thomas Cumm (1641—1707/8) wrote: "A nottable day Indeede never to be forgotten by me, I being present at that meeting, a schoole boy, but shoute 12 years of age, yet I do still remember that blessed & gloryouse day" (F. P. T. p. 244). Beginnings, pp. 80—89 and see map at end.
- 19 1 "Kendal in the undeveloped rural North of the seventeenth century had, as an industrial centre, a much greater importance than it has today. The district of which it was the natural 'capital' was also the stronghold of the group of Seekers whose members were swept, wholesale, into the early Quaker movement by Fox's preaching in the summer of 1652. Kendal therefore provided many of the leading preachers of Quakerism in the expansive period immediately following. It was hence that the fund was distributed which provided for the needs of those northern preachers in their travels and imprisonments (see Jnl. F. H. S. vol. vi.). One of the earliest General Meetings of the nascent Society was held at Kendal in 1661, and the town has been a strong Quaker centre to this day" (note by John L. Nickalls, B.A., 1923). Beginnings; Second Period; F. P. T.; Nicholson and Axon, The Older Nonconformity in Kendal, 1916; Swarth. Account Book.
- 19 2 For this visit to Underbarrow and incidents connected with it see vol. i. p. 45. F. P. T.
- 19 3 Vol. i. p. 46: "I came to James Taylors of Newton in Cartmell in Lancashire." See vol. i. p. 406.
- 19 4 For Stable read Staveley, the home of Gabriel Camelford. See vol. i. pp. 46, 406—the Short Journal gives the name of the place and the Camb. Text the name of the priest. (So, piece by piece, we reconstruct the past.) The place-name is confirmed in Margaret Fox's Testimony to her husband in Ell. Text. Beginnings, p. 98; Nightingale, Quaker Movement in Lancashire, 1921, p. 16.
- 19 5 For Swarthmoor Hall see vol. i. p. 407, where the passing of the estate out of Quaker hands, in 1759, is noted. We are glad to place on record the return of Swarthmoor Hall, after 153 years of alienation, to the possession of the Society of Friends, by purchase, on 28th August, 1912, of "the Hall and about one hundred acres of land, jointly by representatives of the Society of Friends and by Emma C. Abraham, of Liverpool, a direct descendant of Margaret Fell, the sale price being £5,250" (Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 308; see also Croxfield, Margaret Fox, 1913, p. 261: "By deed of purchase certain members of the Society have the option of acquiring the Hall on the death of E. C. Abraham and her heir"; Bulletin F. H. S. Phila. iv. 147—149, v. 20—22, 25, 71). It will be noticed that the name is given throughout the Short Journal and in all the dictated parts of the Camb. Text as Swarthmoor.
- The condition of the estate appears to have deteriorated soon after passing from the hands of its Fell descendants. In 1772 William Forester (1747—1824), of Tottenham, visited the district and reported: "The House is much come to decay...and the whole Estate much out of repair" (Jnl. F. H. S. xx. 31). The present owner is devoting much loving care to the home of her ancestors.
- Jnl. F. H. S.* many vols.; Swarth. Account Book.
- In the summer of 1652, Fox arrived at Swarthmoor Hall (vol. i. p. 47) and visited for some time in the district with sundry calls at the Hall till some date early in 1654, when he passed southward (vol. i. p. 142).

The next visit was a short one, at the close of the Welsh tour of 1657 (vol. i. p. 290). Another took place also in 1657 (a record of which is absent from the Cambridge Text owing probably to the loss of two leaves from them. (vol. i. p. 312 n.); it is mentioned in the Ellwood Text (i. 416). In the late spring of 1660, after long journeyings, Fox was once more at the hospitable home of Margaret Fell (vol. i. p. 358), but was not allowed to remain in peace more than a month (p. 56), being arrested and sent to Lancaster Castle. In 1663 two visits were paid in quick succession (vol. ii. pp. 35, 37), but about twelve years elapsed before he was again at the Hall, he having meanwhile married its mistress. On the 25th June, 1675, four months after liberation from Worcester Jail, to the joy of the whole family and household, he once again set foot in his northern home (vol. ii. p. 311). The account book of Sarah Fell gives some insight into his life during this respite from travel. On the 26th March, 1677, Fox left for further service, rested but not entirely recovered (Ell. Text, ii. 255). He was again at Swarthmoor in September, 1678 (ibid. ii. 335), remaining until early in March, 1679/80 (ibid. ii. 343), when his last visit came to an end.

Margaret Fox writes, in her Testimony to her husband: "Though the Lord had provided an outward habitation for him yet he was not willing to stay at it, because it was so remote and far from London where his service most lay."

- 19 6 The priest of Ulverston was William Lampitt. See 23. 3.
- 20 1 The rector of Rampside was Thomas Lawton, who became a prominent Friend (vol. i. p. 408).
- 30 2 Walney Island is separated from the Furness district of Lancashire by a narrow strait. It is eight miles long and a mile wide. "From the Dalton Parish Registers we find that a Mr Soutwerke was minister of Walney between 1649 and 1657.... Like other Lancashire ministers of the time he was a Presbyterian," quoted in Jnl. F. H. S. xix. 103. Mr Soutwerke's name also occurs in Kendall's History of Northcote, 1899. Vol. i. p. 49 has Wana, which points to the silence of the letter l. See Swarth. Account Book, p. 547.
- 20 3 This was the place called Dendron. In the Victorian History of Lancashire (viii. 327), it is stated that the chapel was built in 1642 by Robert Dickinson, citizen of London, who left £200 to be invested in land for a "sufficient scholar to read divine service there every Sunday and to teach school on week-days." The disturbed condition of the time probably interfered with the opening of the work in that place. In 1717 the chapel was used only as a school.
- Information from John F. Curwen, F.S.A., 1923.
- In M. Fox's Testimony to her husband, she states that he preached at "Dendron" (Ell. Text).
- 20 4 The discourse here referred to, given in the Cartmel church, is connected in vol. i. p. 46 with the visit to an ale-house between the services in the church. Bennett was in charge at this time. See 22. 1.
- 20 5 The discourse delivered here at Lindale is referred to in vol. i. p. 47 simply as "what ye Lord commanded mee."
- 21 1 Here the name of the place is given (Halton on the Lune near Lancaster); in vol. i. p. 53 the name of the priest appears (Priest Whitehead). See vol. i. p. 409. The record of this visit has been divided and continues on page 23. The man of evil intent was a drutser according to the Camb. and Ell. Texts. In Jnl. F. H. S. iv. 102 it is stated, on the authority of Palmer, following Calamy, that Whitehead died in February, 1679, aged 73.

- 22 1 This was the Rev. Philip Bennett. He was the "bitter" priest of page 23. See vol. i. p. 410.
- 22 2 See vol. i. p. 61, where this incident is stated to have taken place at Yealand. Silverdale was in the compass of Yealand Meeting (vol. ii. p. 488).
- 22 3 According to vol. i. p. 103 the meeting was held at Thomas Leaper's, at Capernwray. The other Friend was Robert Widders, who lived near by, at Kellet, both places being in N.W. Lancashire. Several places in the neighbourhood bear the name Caton.
Thomas Leaper, his wife Margaret, and daughter Esther, are mentioned in Nightingale's Early Quaker Movement in Lancashire, 1921, p. 112. Leaper's name also appears in a list of "disaffected," 1689—"the supposed disaffected are classed together—Recusant Papists, Ejected Nonconformists, and Proscribed Quakers" (ibid. p. 201).
For Robert Widders see vol. i. p. 396 and Nightingale, op. cit.
- 23 1 For a description of the Sande see vol. i. p. 415.
- 23 2 For John Sawrey, J.P., see vol. i. p. 408. In 1659 Sawrey is placed among the persecutors (Extracts from State Papers, p. 118—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1658—9, p. 380) and "Jon. Sawrey of Plumpton" is included in a list, dated 1669, of those disaffected and "to be Searched for Armes and Amunition" (Nightingale, Quaker Movement in Lancashire, 1921, p. 203).
- 23 3 William Lampitt (vol. i. p. 407) was of Worcester by birth and graduated at St John's College, Oxford, in 1628. He described himself as "once minister and governor in Lunde Island." Prior to his living at Ulverston, he was minister at Aikton (Cumb.), from which position he was turned out in 1650 by Sir Arthur Haselrig because not properly appointed according to law. He was one of the Ejected in 1662, and "lived obscurely beyond the Sande and died in 1677." The Ell. Text states that Lampitt died while Fox was at Swarthmoor, in the previous year, 1676 (ii. 254). If 1676 is correct and the death took place in the earlier half of the year, the entry in the Swarthmoor Account Book may refer to his widow: "1676 July y^r 20th To m^r Rec^d for A Cow bulding of widow Lampitt, 000 00 06" (see pp. 292, 406, 567).
Dr Nightingale writes of Lampitt: "William Lampitt, the Ulverston minister, with whom Fox was now brought into contact, is a most interesting personality. From the very first Fox appears to have had the strongest aversion to him and there are few characters in his Journal against whom he indulges in more bitter and violent language" (Quaker Movement in Lancashire, 1921, p. 20). Lampitt is among the "disaffected" in 1665 (ibid. p. 203).
Nightingale, The Ejected of 1662 in Cumberland and Westmorland, 1911.
- 25 1 For James Lancaster see vol. i. p. 408. His wife's name was Margaret. Their home was Northcote, in the North of Walney Island.
Jnl. F. H. S. many ref.; Kendall, History of Northcote, 1889; Swarth. Account Book, p. 624.
- 26 1 This was Thomas Hutton of Rampside (vol. i. p. 411). He was one of the early preachers and travelled to Scotland and other parts (vol. ii. p. 331; Jnl. F. H. S. xii. 80), being supplied with ten shillings from Margaret Fell's Swarthmoor Fund for his journey northward (Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 51). He was, perhaps, the same as the Thomas Hutton mentioned in the Swarth. Account Book: "1676 Aug: y^r 6th To m^r Rec^d from Edw: Brittaines y^d boe Rec^d of Tho: Hutton for carriage of a post of his from London 000 00 02" (two-pence!).

- 26 2 For Judge Fell see vol. i. p. 407. There is a view of the dining room at Swarthmoor Hall, and of the Judge's private room beyond, in an illustration to the Tenant. Text.
- 26 3 Dr William Marshall, of Lancaster. The brief note, vol. i. p. 412, can now be supplemented from Lancaster Settings, 1815, quoted in Jnl. F. H. S. xiii. 170. Dr William Marshall (c. 1621—1683), probably the "Priest Marshall" of the various Texts, was presented to the "vicarage of Lancaster by George Tomlinson gent, the patron," probably the George Tomlinson of vol. i. p. 411. In February, 1654/5, he married the daughter of Thomas Shaw, vicar of Aldingham, mentioned in vol. ii. p. 475. He had settled in London in 1669, in which year he was admitted to the College of Physicians. His home was "Nags Head Court in Gray's Church Street."
- 27 1 For Priest Jaques see vol. i. pp. 71, 412. John Jaques succeeded Richard Collingwood as minister of Bolton-le-Sands in 1644. He was a member of the classics in 1646, and in the same year received an augmentation of £50 from Sir Henry Compton's sequestered tithes (Pursered Ministers Accts. i. 22). He signed the Harmonious Consent in 1648. In 1649 his allowance was increased to £100. He was "approved of according to the ordinance for approbation of public preachers." Information from John F. Curwen, F.S.A., 1923.
- 27 2 The life-story of William West, colonel, justice, clerk of assize, coroner, mayor of Lancaster, Parliamentary, clerk of the Crown office and justice of peace and quorum (p. 72), as given in the several Texts and elsewhere, is full of interest. He appears to have taken the position of Judge Fell, favourable to the Quakers but non-committal. West is placed among the moderate men of North Lancashire in a list prepared by George Taylor in 1659 (Extracts from State Papers, p. 112—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1658—9, MSS. in D.
- 27 3 For a reference to the Lancashire Priests' Petition see vol. i. pp. 76, 413. The tract referred to on these pages bears the apposite title Soule Errand to Damascus with His Packet of Letters from the High-Priests against the disciples of the Lord, etc., printed in 1653. The petition, prepared but never despatched, was addressed "To the Right Honorable The Council of State: The humble Petition of Several Gentlemen, Justices of Peace, Ministers of the Gospel, and People, within the County of Lancaster, whose names are subscribed [unfortunately the names are not given] Sheweth that George Fox, and James Nayler, are persons disaffected to Religion, and the wholesome Laws of this Nation; and that since their coming into this country, have broached Opinions tending to the destruction of the relation of Subjects to their Magistrates, Wives to their Husbands, Children to their Parents, Servants to their Masters, Congregations to their Ministers, and of a People to their God: and have drawn much people after them; many whereof (men, women, and little children) at their meetings are strangely wrought upon in their bodies, and brought to fall, foam at the mouth, roar, and swell in their bellies. And that some of them affirmed themselves to be equal with God, contrary to the late Act, as hath been attested at a late Quarter-Sessions holden at Lancaster in October last past; and since that time, acknowledged before many Witnesses; besides many other dangerous Opinions, and damnable Heresies, as appears by a Schedule hereunto annexed, with the names of the Witnesses subscribed. [A list of six sayings of Fox, three of James Milner, and one each of Leonard Fell and Richard Hubbertorne, are given, without names of witnesses.] May it therefore please your Honours upon the consideration of the Premises to provide (as your wisdom shall think fit) That some speedy course may be taken for the speedy suppressing of these evils. And your Petitioners shall ever pray, as in duty bound. Fox's answers occupied 12½ quarto pages, and Naylor's 4½ pages. There is an introductory address "To all that love the Lord Jesus Christ," beginning "Dear hearts!" and one "To the Contrivers and Subscribers of the Petition," beginning "Poor hearts." In the section "To the Christian Reader" there is a reference to the Seekers of the day—"many pretious Christians have, for some time past, forborne to congregate in Parochial Assemblies, wherein they profess themselves to have gained little of the knowledge of Jesus Christ."

- 27 4 The first "Publishers of Truth" as they saw it went everywhere preaching the gospel of the light that lighteneth every man. Where men foregathered in the streets, in the churches, in the sports-field they delivered their message with boundless courage. This account of Fox's action in connection with the services in Bootle church (most of it peculiar to the Short Journal) illustrates his spiritual energy and also the difficulty of keeping it within legal bounds. In the less formal methods of the Commonwealth period, interruptions and discussions took place, until legal restrictions were imposed which permitted others present to speak when the appointed preacher had concluded his discourse. "Fox and his friends have often been censured for their disturbance of public worship. It can hardly be maintained that this censure is in every case undeserved. But the main weight of it falls to the ground in view of the usages of the age as respects the national places of worship. George Fox was sometimes apprehended and imprisoned for his discourses in the churches, but it is observable that on every occasion, so far as I remember, the offence alleged against him was the doctrine he preached, not the disturbance of the worship. There is ample evidence to show that in the Puritan epoch it was a common thing for laymen to speak in the churches, usually, though not always, after the minister had finished" (John Stephenson Rowntree, 1908, pp. 287 f.). Not all justices were prepared to issue warrants of arrest. On one occasion Gilbert Latoy was apprehended and taken before a magistrate for objecting to some statements made in church; the magistrate said to the constable: "This man talks very rationally. I think you should not have brought him before me." The constable rejoined: "Sir, I think so too" (Life, 1707, pp. 24 ff., quoted in a note to Ell. Text, i. 102).

For instances of "Speaking in Churches," see vols. i. and ii.; Christian Progress, pp. 22, 23, 34, 35, 68, 70; F. P. T.; Ell. Text (1891); John Stephenson Rowntree, 1908; Extracts from State Papers, 1813, pp. 103, 203; Jnl. F. H. S.; Beginnings.

- 27 5 There are brief notices of Joseph Nicholson, of Bootle, in vol. i. p. 416 and Search, Account Book, p. 531. The visit of Fox to Nicholson in 1663 is also recorded in F. P. T. p. 33. A visit of Nicholson to New England is placed in 1656 (vol. ii. p. 331). A sum of two pounds was given him in that year from the Swarthmoor Fund towards his expenses (Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 50). In 1657 he was in Scotland and the same year saw his departure, with his wife, for New England (vol. ii. p. 336). In 1668 we read that they "went lately for Road Island" (Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 95). They were again in N.E. in 1675. Joseph Nicholson was one of the many Friends who offered to lie "body for body" in the place of prisoners that they might have a little respite (Beginnings, p. 236). The Swarthmoor Account Book contains numerous references to his money-matters which were under care in his absence. A loan to him forms a subject dealt with in a letter from Sarah Meade to her mother in 1683: "Sret" Susannah would have you call in y^e 40th laid upon Jos. Nicholson land...for shew was never satisfied y^e y^e money should bee lent to him" (Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 165). In 1705 he received permission from Settle M.M. to engage in religious service in Warwickshire (as in possession of T. Edmund Harvey, 1823).

- 29 1, 3 This was George Larkham, M.A. (vol. i. p. 416).
Nightingale, The Ejected of 1662 in Camb. and West. 1911.
- 29 2 This was John Wilkinson (vol. i. pp. 109, 111, 417). Of his "three or four steeple houses besides chapels," one only seems to be named, viz. Brigham. On p. 61 of F. P. T. it is stated he "had been a preacher amongst the independents"; on p. 70 we read: "He had been a teacher amongst y^e Baptists."
- 31 1 That is, Wighton (vol. i. p. 417). The Camb. and Ell. Texts give no name to the "market town." F. P. T. tells us that there was a little company of Seekers here to whom the Quaker missionaries addressed themselves with good results (pp. 52—56).
- 31 2 Camb. Text adds: "Upon ye borders" of England and Scotland (vol. i. p. 114).
- 32 1 This incident is the subject of an etching by Robert Spence, reproduced as an illustration in Torcent. Text.
- 33 1 Dorothy Bencon. See additional particulars respecting her in vol. i. p. 125.
- 33 2 The trial and imprisonment of Fox in Carlisle is an interesting episode in his life. This account should be read in connection with the narrative as given in the Camb. and Ell. Texts. "The Baptist Church, which then met in the Cathedral, went over en bloc to the Friends, including the 'Pasture'" (letter from Dr W. T. Whitley, hon. sec. Bapt. Hist. Soc., 1923). The "steeplehouse" was the cathedral church of St Mary (F. P. T. p. 30).
- Moss troopers* (vol. i. p. 125) were marauders who infected the moors or borderland of England and Scotland previous to the union of the two Kingdoms. In An Epistle to Friends, by John Bellere, dated 1784, he writes: "The Northern Borders are a noted instance of the good Effect that our Friends Labour of Love had among those Robbers call'd Moss Troopers that were there, so far to reform the Country (where they murdered as well as robbed) that the then Earle of Carlisle told King Charles the Second that the Quakers had done more to suppress them than all his Troupe could do. I have been informed that Friends have or had a Meeting in the midst of that part of the Country." Lord Carlisle had been told by John Grove "that he might now take away his gallows, for truth had gott an entrance in the borders of England and would make them honest men," circa 1672 (F. P. T. p. 62, under heading Kirklington).
- Hodgkin, George Fox, 1886, p. 100.
- 33 3 This was John Wilkinson (29. 2). His church was at Brigham.
- 34 1 We have here, for the first time in any text of the Journal, the full name Thomas Ledgard, confirming the identification in vol. i. p. 454. For the five priests of Newcastle who wrote against Friends see vol. i. p. 454.
- The Guild of Merchant Adventurers of Newcastle in "An act passed in 1657 laments that 'in these late tymes (wherein iniquity abounds) was fedd, by woefull experience, a great apostacy and fallinge of from the truth to Popery, Quakerisme, and all manner of heresy and unheard of blasphemy and profaneness.' Whereupon it was determined that 'no brother of this fellowship whatsoever shall from henceforth take any apprentices who in his judgment or practice is a popish recusant or Quaker, or any who shall not attend duely on his maister at the publicke ordinances.' For every offence against this act the master was to be fined 100 marks 'without grace or favour of court,' and the apprentice to 'lose what tymes he hath served and never enjoy any freedom of this fellowship'" (Vestiges of Old Newcastle and Gateshead, by Knowles and Boyle, 1890, p. 21).

Note by A. Neave Brayshaw, B.A., 1924.

- 34 2 The meeting was held at Gateshead, across the river Tyne from Newcastle. See vol. i. p. 311. It is said that the meeting was held in Pipewellgate at the Fountain Tavern, a building standing until the year 1906 (Sketch of the Society of Friends in Newcastle and Gateshead, 1899).
- 35 1 According to vol. i. p. 290 the meeting was held at John Audland's, at Crosslands, near Preston Patrick.
- 36 2 Vol. i. p. 291 gives the name—Otway—and at p. 450 there is a note respecting him—George Otway, brother of Sir John Otway.
- 35 3 Camb. Text has Sanderland greens; Ell. Text (1694) has Synderhill green. The place is now "Cinder Hill," near Woodhouse, on the borders of Yorkshire and Derbyshire (vol. i. p. 422).
- 36 1 The Friend of repute who was owner of the ground where the disturbance occurred was Thomas Taylor of Brighouse. See vol. i. p. 148. To the account of the judgment on the man who put out his tongue at Friends, in the Camb. Text, is added here that the tongue hung out "below his chinne," which, though it may not be a physical impossibility, is surely an exaggeration.
- 36 2 The name of the great man does not appear. He is styled a Knight (vol. i. p. 150).
- 36 3 The dispute between Fox and the priests, at his native town, is given fully in Camb. Text (vol. i. p. 152) and in other Texts. There was plain speaking on one hand and rough handling on the other.
A little book on Fenny Drayton, by the vicar, Jankyn Edwards, appeared in 1923. There is a view of the church as an illustration in the Turret. Text.
- 36 1 Col. Francis Hacker, of Withcote Hall, Rutlandshire, is frequently mentioned in vols. i. and ii. The date of Fox's arrest was 11th February, 1654/5 (Beginnings). In 1660, at a meeting at Peterborough, George Whitehead was beset by a hostile crowd who "threw dirt and eggs (thought rotten). Next morning Isabel Hacker, the wife of Colonel Hacker, bestowed some labour to get out of my hair the dirt that was thrown at me" (Christian Progress, p. 232). Col. Hacker was "hanged and quartered," Oct. 19, 1660 (Pepys, Diary).
- 39 1 Fox's companion was Richard Hubbertborne (vol. i. p. 155). For Hubbertborne see vol. i. p. 410.
- 40 1 Vol. i. p. 189 gives "a tounde near ye Ille of Ely caled Sutton." Fox was there again in 1661 (vol. ii. p. 8).

- 40 2 The alderman who was a Friend would be James Blackley (vol. ii. p. 373). He is mentioned in F. P. T. (p. 13), and was closely connected with the sufferings of Friends in Cambridge (Beginnings, p. 296; Smith, Cats). Blackley was deposed from his position in 1662. The kindly action here ascribed to the alderman is credited to the mayor in vol. i. p. 191. One of the Spence etchings represents the scene at the arrival of Fox in the university town. Christian Progress, p. 23.
- 40 3 A comparison of this sentence relating to Priest Wise with the paragraph respecting the death of the priest of Nuneaton (vol. i. p. 125) makes it possible that Wise was the priest whose benediction was so sought after. Enquiries kindly made by Rev. Jenkyn Edwards, rector of Fenny Drayton, however, have failed to discover the name of Wise in Nuneaton at this period.
- 41 1 Doubtless, Daventry, in Northamptonshire, not far from the Warwickshire border. Fox passed through Northants on his way to London (vol. i. p. 199). About this time Thomas Stubbs (d. 1673) was imprisoned for street preaching in Daventry (Extracts from State Papers, p. 9—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1655—8, pp. 64, 65).
- 42 1 This meeting was at the house of Edward Hancock at Menheniot (vol. i. p. 204). An early account of George Fox's entry into Cornwall is printed in F. P. T. p. 20. There is also a full account of the Friends' sufferings in the book The West Answering to the North, 1637.
- 42 2 Market Jew is now Marazion. The name Market Jew denotes "the market on the ridge of the hill" (Stowe, England's Rivers, 2nd ed. 1823, p. 220).
- 42 3 For Peter Ceely, major and justice, see vol. i. p. 438. The other justice to whom Ceely referred (p. 45) was Captain Braden (vol. i. p. 216).
- 43 1 This was William Salt. See vol. i. p. 208. The pamphlet West Answering gives an account of Salt's experience in a neighbouring parish to Launceston when he was in the church, where, when "one Tregosse, a youth, one of P. Ceely's sisters sons (it is said) had done reading his notes, papers and other services, shaking his gold ring on his finger, and his broad cuff on his hands, like a lad acting in a stage-play" (p. 127), Salt began to speak and was turned out and imprisoned. This was, perhaps, the "younge silly priest" who offered to cut Fox's hair (vol. i. p. 207).
- 43 2 Captain John Fox was governor of the Castle (vol. i. p. 209).
- 43 3 Vol. i. p. 209 gives the name Edward Pyott. Salt and he were Fox's companions in travelling and suffering. We often wish we could visualize some of these early Friends—we are told in West Answering (p. 3) that Pyott wore spectacles—"the priest called Ed. Pyott Jesuit because he used spectacles." A spectacle maker is mentioned on p. 115. He with others was allowed to address the House of Commons against a bill which became known as the Quaker Act, of 1682 (Christian Progress, pp. 265, 269; F. P. T. (for the Act), p. 356). He signed the Fox-Fell wedding certificate, 1689.
- 43 4 Captain John Keate was the commander of the soldiers in charge of Fox. He is mentioned, but not by name, on pp. 44, 46. He was the "Clerke" to Ceely mentioned on p. 42. See vol. i. p. 437.

- 43 5 John Desborough was Cromwell's major-general for the Western Counties (vol. i. p. 437). He offered the prisoners that "if they would promise they would go to their own homes they might have their enlargement" (West Answering, p. 4).
- 44 1 The judge was Sir John Glynn (vol. i. p. 437). The scene in Court is the subject of an etching by Robert Spence, titled, incorrectly, "George Fox at Worcester," in the list of Spence etchings, 1918.
- 44 2 What has become known as "hat honour" will always be associated with Chief Justice Glynn, owing to the discussion between judge and prisoner in which Fox's knowledge of Scripture gave him the advantage. Reference to Biblical practice was, of course, beside the mark. The orthodox Quaker of that and later days would not honour man by removal of his hat but God only. For a full treatment of the subject see vol. ii. p. 482.
- Beese, Defence of Quakerism, 1732, p. 230; F. P. T.; Graham, William Penn, 1917; Pepys, Diary; Stone, England's Rivers, chap. ix.
- 45 1 William Salt. See 43. 1. The name is omitted as Salt joined the Perrot party—"a bad spirit and creeper in darkness" (Swarth. ms. iv. 128).
- 45 2 This is a question of O's. Here it is stated that Fox had said he could raise 400 men; vol. i. p. 214 gives 40000 and p. 215 four thousands; Ell. Text (l. 278) has forty thousand, also Tercent. Text (p. 125).
- Numerical statements seem frequently excessive, see pp. 18, 35, 62, 75, 78.
- 45 3 For Doomsdale see vol. i. pp. 227 ff. See also a description of the place in the Tercent. Text, p. 128, where is reproduced Spence's etching of the prison scene. The name of the jailer is not found; the under keeper was Nicholas Freeleven. The three specially concerned in these dealings with the Quakers at Launceston were Thomas Gewen, recorder, Philip Pearse, mayor, and the keeper of the jail. The jailer, on one occasion, being disturbed at a meal, "gott uppe from ye table and strucke his napkin away in a rage" (vol. i. p. 230). For a note respecting the use of the napkin see Pepys, Diary, Oct. 28, 1663. The introduction of forks lessened the need for napkins.
- 46 1 This was Anthony Rouse (vol. i. p. 438), Justice and Colonel.
- 47 1 The mayor of Launceston who was tricked, and whose character was "bad" (vol. i. p. 236), was Philip Pearse (or Peare). He was in office in 1658-8. A contemporary document, dated January, 1659, refers to him as "Phillipp Pearse, gentleman and Maior of this towne." The mayor had no control over the prison. In fact, the jailer threatened that if he came there he would "put him by the heels." The pamphlet West Answering states: "Their Cloathes and pockets he searcheth, and rifles; he searcheth a womans head for letters, with his own hands, taking her fowl Cloathes out of her hat and searching them also" (p. 68).

- 48 1 The "bad man" was Paul Gwin (see vol. i. p. 255).
- 48 2 For vagrancy see vol. ii. p. 485. A pass as outlined in this note would give a valuable general indication of the appearance of the person named. In D there is a facsimile of a pass for Henry Fell, 1660, and also a contemporary copy of one for William Simpson, 1667.

- 48 3 This General Meeting (vol. i. p. 270) was held early in March, 1856/7, at the sign of the Seven Stars, an inn at the foot of the bridge connecting Exeter and St Thomas. The old inn disappeared about fifty years ago (letter from François W. Dymond, of Exeter, 1905).
- 48 4 Given as Apsom in vol. ii. p. 178. Apsom was visited by Charles Marshall in 1671 (Works, 1704). The modern name is Topsham.
- 49 1 The route taken by George Fox in this tour in Wales in June and July, 1657, is not clear. The order of places visited differs here from that in vol. i. pp. 270—285. There is a brief sketch of this Welsh visit in John ap John and Early Records of Friends in Wales, by W. G. Norris, 1907. We read: "In these travels in South Wales there seems to have been less desire on the part of the magistrates to imprison vindictively than to imprison and send away for the purpose of preserving the peace" (p. 9). Fox writes: "Was were very weary with travaileinge see hard uppe & downe in Wales & it was harde in some places to gette meate for our horses or our selves either in many places" (vol. i. p. 284, see pp. 278—280, 284).
- "The History of the Quakers in Wales and their Emigration to America" was the subject of essays prepared for the National Eisteddfod of Wales, 1923. The prize was won by Rev. T. Mardy Rees, of Neath, whose valuable work is still in manuscript.
- 49 2 This Justice was probably Thomas Barrett. He was mayor of Tenby in 1685—6. Francis Gawler, in his Record of Some Persecutions, 1656, p. 21, states that a meeting, called by Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Holme, was held at Barrett's house in 1659.
See 49. 4.
- 49 3 This was John ap John. See vol. i. p. 422.
- 49 4 The mayors of Tenby were elected on Michaelmas Day, when the ex-mayor became the deputy and two aldermen were appointed to act as justices for the year.... Thomas Rogers was elected mayor at Michaelmas, 1655. He died in office (after 3rd January, 1656) and was succeeded by Thomas Barrett. Richard Barrowe was elected in 1656 and John Sayes in 1657. It appears that Barrowe was the mayor of Fox's visit. Information from David Salmon of Narberth, Pemb., author of The Quakers of Pembrokeshire, 1923. See 49. 2.
- 49 5 The "preist with two eapps" was probably Edward Garner who held the living during the Commonwealth.
Salmon, The Quakers of Pembrokeshire, 1923.
- 50 1 Vol. i. p. 278 adds: "See I went backe to ye other Justices house & ye maior & his wife & ye Justice & his wife & diverse other friends of ye townes went about halfe a mile with us to ye waters eyde [the shore of Carmarthen Bay]: & there I was moved of ye Lord to kneele doune with y^m & pray to ye Lord to preserve y^m."
- 50 2 According to vol. i. p. 281 this occurred in the town of Dolgelly in Merionethshire, to which Fox and his fellow traveller "came doune" from Cader Idris, "a hill which they say was 2 or 3 miles high."
Beginnings, p. 78.
- 50 3 The other Friend was Thomas Holme (vol. i. p. 271). He is frequently mentioned in vols. i. and ii. There is an interesting reference to the spiritual fervour of Holme and his wife, Elizabeth, the expression of which did not meet with the approval of some of their friends, in vol. ii. p. 328. The short married life of these evangelists is dealt with fully in Miss Brailsford's Quaker Women, 1915, pp. 148—156. She styles

Holmes "the excitable Apostle of South Wales." Thomas was supplied from the Swarthmoor Fund with "a paire of britches and shoues" (Jnl. F. H. S. xix. 78, 79). With Thomas Castle Holmes walked naked through the streets of Kendal "as a sign" (Fox, Great Mystery, 1659, p. 233). The subject of "going naked as a sign" is dealt with fully in vol. i. p. 462 and see references there.

- 51 1 This meeting was held at the house of William Gandy at Frandley. The date was the 28th June, 1657 (Beginnings, p. 349).

- 51 2 Fox entered Scotland on the 10th September, 1657 (vol. ii. p. 337).

- 52 1 According to vol. i. p. 304 this horse-and-man race took place at Stirling. Fox was at a race-meeting somewhat earlier (vol. i. p. 291).

- 52 2 St Johnstone was the early name for the town of Perth.

The "Market town" referred to as the next place visited was, probably, Dundee (as suggested by Dr Butler in his George Fox in Scotland, 1913, p. 38 n.). Alexander Parker went to the Cross, with a Bible in his hand, and spoke to the people, followed by Fox (vol. i. p. 305).

- 52 3 The "friends house" was that of Captain Darnport (vol. i. p. 307).

- 52 4 "Jamaica, with its deadly climate, had lately been taken by England from Spain, and it was at this time proving the grave of hundreds of English soldiers" (Beginnings, p. 352).

- 53 1 Fox's summing up of the results of his Scottish mission is given in vol. i. p. 310. His estimate of the future can hardly be said to have proved correct, cp. vol. i. p. 451: "Quakerism never took firm root in the soil of Scotland, despite much cultivation."

Another view of the religious condition of Scotland about the same period is given by James Kirkton in his Secret and True History of the Church of Scotland from the Restoration to 1678, 1917: "Then was Scotland a heap of wheat set about with lilies, or a palace of silver beautifully proportioned, and this seems to me to have been Scotland's high-noon" (quoted in Butler's George Fox in Scotland, 1913, p. 13).

- 53 2 For an amplification of these three "priests curses" see vol. i. p. 285; Beginnings, p. 351, quoting Fox's Great Mystery, 1659; Butler, George Fox in Scotland, 1913, p. 35.

- 54 1 This was, doubtless, the General Meeting at John Crooks' at Beckering Park, held on the 31st May, 1658. Fox's address on the occasion appears in vol. i. pp. 317-323, see also pp. 428, 455, 456.

- 55 2 Similar words to these are put into the mouth of Cromwell on the occasion of Fox's first visit to Whitehall in 1654 (Ell. Text, i. 211, see i. 450).

- 55 3 This meeting took place at Leominster in Herefordshire in 1657 (vol. i. pp. 274-277).

- 55 4 This "priest" was John Tombee. See vol. i. pp. 275, 442, Beginnings, p. 390.
- 55 5 There is a note on Major-Gen. John Lambert in vol. i. pp. 460, 462. The powers quarrelling one with another may refer to the strife between the Royalist Booth and the Parliamentarians (vol. i. p. 343).
- 56 1 This was the occasion of a meeting of Friends from all parts, met at Balby, in Yorkshire, in a grout orchard belonging to John Kellam. See vol. i. p. 353. This was one of the "yearly meetings" held in various parts of the country, before the governing body of Friends met regularly in London.
Jnl. F. H. S. ii. 61.
- 56 2 For Justice Porter see vol. i. p. 463. It is stated, vol. i. p. 361, that "when Margaret [Foll] went to London This Justice Porter aforesaid vapored y^e hce woulde goo & meets her in ye gappa." The gap was probably that part of the West Riding of Yorkshire known as the Aire Gap, where there is almost a complete break in the Pennine Range and where the rivers Ribble and Aire nearly meet, one flowing west and the other east.
Letter from F. H. Chestern, of Southport, 1924.
- 57 1 According to vol. i. p. 364 these two companions of Fox on his three weeks' journey to London were Richard Hubberthorne and Robert Widdere.
- 58 1 According to vol. i. p. 365 this was Sir Thomas Mallett.
- 59 2 The Chief Justice of the day was Sir Robert Foster. See vol. i. p. 365.
- 59 1 Judge Mallett's warrant for Fox's delivery is given in vol. i. p. 372. See 55. 1.
- 59 2 For particulars of the Fifth Monarchy rising and its effort upon Friends see vol. i. p. 468. The number of persons composing this outbreak in London varies in different accounts thereof. Here it is said: "a matter of thirty"; in the State Papers Domestic (Cul. 1661, pp. 470, 471) we read: "Jan. 11. Fifty Fifth Monarchy men began the disturbance...in fighting with the troops thirty six were either taken or killed"; Ensmott, following Braithwaite, gives "some thirty-five persons" (Short Hist. of Quakerism, 1923, p. 230). See also Pepys, Diary, Jan. 10, 1660/61; Christian Progress, p. 241.
- 59 3 More accurately, "a man in y^e house," for "Esquire Marsh," out of love to Fox, had spent the night in the latter's lodgings. See vol. i. p. 367. For Richard Marche see vol. i. p. 465.
- 59 4 Scotland Yard is said to derive its name from a palace built near for the accommodation of Scottish kings visiting the southern metropolis.
- 61 1 This was Alexander Parker. See vol. ii. p. 19, and later note (92. 3).
- 62 1 The reference to the two Friends "who intended to speak" in a meeting in Bristol, and the statement that they two were detained after all the others had been liberated, have not appeared before. Were they introduced as a warning to Friends not to go to meeting "intending to speak," but to await, in the meeting, any intimation of a call to take vocal part?
- 63 1 The Camb. Text (vol. ii, p. 13) places the Leicestershire episode before the visit to Bristol (p. 19). The ELL Text (i. 527) takes Bristol first.

- 66 1 According to the later and fuller accounts given on pp. 79, 80, the date of this meeting in the parish of Ringwood was the last day of the Third Month (May), 1663.
- 67 1 There are several lively narratives of like conduct on behalf of Friends in demanding exact fulfilment of the warrants under which they were arrested. One occurred in 1662 (vol. ii. p. 14) and another is described vol. ii. p. 32. The following account is taken from the State Papers Domestic—Calendar, 1671, p. 419—a letter dated Yarmouth, August, 1671: "• • He chewed them his warrant and required them to goe wth him they told him no, for the warrant required him to bring them before the Justice and therefore they would not goe upon wth the Constable gott a Cart, but they not being free to goe in of themselves the Constable with his assistance was f^{or}st to put them in, the first that were put in were so cross that they would lye at their length so y^t they could not stow halfe of them where upon the Carter laid them one upon an oth^r, but this not being for there ease they then sett up, being brought to y^r doore where the Justice was, they could not persuade them to come out of y^r Cart, upon w^{ch} the Carter cast of the belly band of the miller, lifted up the tibbs of y^r Cart and so threw them out altogeth^r at y^r Cartes arme, w^{ch} So cooled theire courage y^t coming before the Justice they all gave in theire names & were dismist for y^r p^{re}sent" (Extracts from State Papers, p. 332).

- 68 1 A noble was a coin first issued temp. Edward III, worth about six shillings and eightpence.
- 68 2 For Sir Daniel Fleming see vol. ii. In Jnl. F. H. S. vii. 148, there is a copy of a letter from Fox to Fleming in 1663, with additions to the letter in Edl. Text, ii. 30 and Fox's own endorsement: "justice sinner Westminster this sinner did press one to death 1663 & sinner his wife died & one of her children & shee left 14 mouthlesse children a sad judgment upon an old persecuter." Note the three different spellings of Fleming.

- 69 4 The high-sheriff of Yorkshire was Sir Thomas Gower and Fox's informant was Dr Hodgson. For these persons and note on the Plot see vol. ii. p. 391; Hirst, Quakers in Peace and War, 1923, pp. 71 ff.
- 69 5 This assertion of Justice Preston is given anonymously in an inserted document in the Comb. Text. See vol. ii. p. 44.
- 70 1 For a comprehensive paragraph respecting Quakerism and judicial oaths see vol. ii. p. 483. The painting by John Pettie of Fox's refusal of the oath, mentioned in vol. ii. p. 391, is now in the possession of Robert Leatham Barclay, of Bishop Stortford, Co. Essex.
- 71 1 This touching conclusion of the Short Journal must be read in connection with two inserted documents in the Comb. Text (vol. ii. pp. 48—52 and pp. 53—56). The first is headed: "An account of G. F's: & others sufferings att Lancaster 1664." This gives brief statements of the reasons for commitment at the Lancaster Sessions in January, 1663/4, of Fox and the "8 more," and the second paper is a recital of their religious profession under fifteen heads. This paper is signed by George Fox and the eight—Thomas Waters, William Wilson, William Grave, John Stubbs, Thomas Chorley, Thomas Davenport, James Brown and Margaret Fell.

- 72 1 This was Col. William West (27.2). This courageous speech is recorded in vol. i. p. 77, anno 1652.
- 75 1 The family of Blatt, of Reigate, was well known in early Quaker days. John was a tanner, of Red Hill (Jnl. F. H. S. i.) and Thomas was one of the "Dispersers of Quakers Books," 1664 (Extracts from State Papers, p. 229—Col. S. P. Docs. 1664—5, p. 142). He was desired by Reigate Friends in 1687 to make enquiry re building land for a meeting-house (March, Friends in Surrey and Sussex, 1686).

- 75 6 Gracechurch meetinghouse was situated in White Hart Court which was entered from both Gracechurch and Lombard Streets. The house was built in 1668 on land cleared by the Great Fire and portions of the land were built on as residences by Gerard Roberts, Henry Gouldney and others; Tace Sowle had her bookshop here also. The meetings were frequently visited by George Fox. His last sermon was preached here on Sunday, 11th January, 1690/91, and his funeral passed hence to the Bunhill Burialground on the 16th. The name appears also as Gracious and Gracechurch.

Gracechurch Street Meeting came to an end on the 28th May, 1682 (Jnl. F. H. S. xiv. 186).

- 75 7 The first meeting in the Horselydown district of Southwark was held in the garden of Mary Wehh, widow, in Fair Street, c. 1655. In June, 1670, "the Quakers meeting house is next to or adjoining upon the Martiall Yard at Horselydowne in Southwark" (Extracts from State Papers, p. 312—Cul. S. P. Dom. 1670, p. 273), but in August of that year soldiers and carpenters pulled down the meetinghouse. In 1671 another was built, and another in 1739. In 1800 the house was sold. In the early period persecution was specially rife in this district.

London Friends' Meetings.

The marriage here was, probably, that of Nathaniel Markes, of London, with Rebecca Chandler, of New Fish Street, London, 21 v. 1681.

- 75 8 These visits were paid at Woodside in the Chalfont country of Buckinghamshire. See Ell. Text, ii. 358. Mary Penington's death took place in the following year while on a visit to her daughter, G. M. Penn, at Worminghurst.

Camb. Text, vol. ii. p. 426; Penney, Experiences in the Life of Mary Penington, Phila. 1911.

- 75 9 Probably Hunger Hill, the home of Thomas Eliwood from his marriage in 1669 to his death in 1713. He wrote a poetical description of the route to be taken to reach his house (Gravson, Hist. of Life of Thomas Eliwood, 1906, p. 335). Fox "visited the men's and women's meetings at Hunger Hill," after his visit to Mary Penington (Ell. Text, ii. 358). Upperride M.M. was held at Hunger Hill for more than forty years. It is now known as Ongar Hill, near Beaconsfield, Co. Bucks.

- 76 1 Churley Wood is in the county of Buckingham, in a district abounding in Friends at that time. The King's Farm, where William Penn's first marriage took place, was near here (Jnl. F. H. S. v. 55).

- 76 2 Russells is doubtless Old Jordans Farm, inhabited by William Russell (c. 1696—1683), who was succeeded by a son of the same name. Here, for many years, Friends of Chalfont, Rickmansworth and adjacent places met to worship, until Jordans meetinghouse was built in 1688. The farmhouse is now a Friends' hostel, and the district has again become peopled by Friends owing to the expansion of London. Russell's daughter Elizabeth was the first to be buried in the burialground, which contains the remains of William Penn and his two wives, several members of his family and other Friends, well known in England and America.

- 76 3 John Archdale (d. post 1713) was a Buckinghamshire Quaker equire. In 1680 he became one of the proprietors of the Carolinas and in 1695 he became governor of the colony. In this position he "combined with singular felicity the firm requisites of the governor with the gentle and simple benevolence of the Quaker," quoted in an account at large of Archdale in Quakeriana, vol. i. (1894), pp. 38—40). In 1698 he was elected to represent Wycombe in the House of Commons, but was not allowed to take his seat as his religious principles forbade the taking of the oath. There is now in the possession of E. Harold Marsh, of Tunbridge Wells, a letter, believed to be the original, written by John Archdale and presented to the Speaker, dated "9th 11 mo called Jan. 1688/9," explaining why he could not take the oath. Archdale's will is dated 1713 (copy in D).

- 76 4 For sketch of the life of Thomas Ellwood see vol. ii. p. 486. Beginnings; Second Period.

- 77 1 According to Ell. Text, ii. 358, this was Wandsworth.

- 77 2 James Beech, the younger, frequently entertained Fox in his home in Westminster, who on one occasion acted as peacemaker below stairs (p. 124), and on another met at his house William Penn, George Whitehead and Robert Barclay (p. 107). (How one would have enjoyed being there!)

James Beech, Senr., of St Margaret's, Westminster, died 5 i. 1688, aged 65, of "Tyssick and rising of the lights." It was probably his widow who was visited by Fox (p. 156).

- 77 3 John Elson, of The Peel, Clerkenwell, is referred to frequently in vol. ii. (sometimes as John Nelson, see p. 433). Fox visited the Elsons on many occasions and over-nighted at The Peel. Private conferences were held there. J. and M. Elson also visited Fox at the homes of his friends. Having no home of his own, Fox's possessions had to be housed here and there among his London friends. We find that in his testamentary dispositions he mentions a great trunk at John Elson's, also saddle and bridle and other accoutrements for horse-riding (vol. ii. pp. 351 ff.).

Scarth. Account Book.

For Mary Elson, wife of John, of The Peel, see vol. ii. p. 493. In her testimony to Anne Whitehead she writes: "Some twenty-seven years ago [i.e. circa 1659], it was my lot to meet her at Kingston, at the house of John Feilders, where we had a Meeting on the first day of the Week, and the Lord was pleased to seize us upon me... through her Ministry... that I could set to my seal that it was the true and living way; which day is never to be forgotten with me" (Piety Promoted by Faithfulness, 1688, p. 19). George Fox left Mary Elson "a ginney & some of my books" (vol. ii. p. 351).

- 77 4 For William Meade see vol. ii. p. 420 and for his wife, Sarah Meade, see vol. ii. pp. 365, 486. At the "First Settling of the Meeting for Sufferings in London" in 1676 (ms. in D) Meade was appointed to represent Friends in Northumberland and Durham and also those in New England. In addition to his city-house in Fenchurch (Fenchurch, Fane, p. 155) Street and country-house in Essex, he lived on one of the northern heights of Middlesex, at Highgate (p. 232). Fox was many times, for longer and shorter periods, at the houses of his stepson-in-law. Meade's coach was sometimes called a chariot (p. 206) or had he both means of conveyance? See 87, 8.

In vol. ii. p. 420, it is stated on the authority of Smith, Outs. ii. 162, that Meade "lost his early love for Friends," but W. C. Braithwaite thinks this statement is "to be rejected" (Second Period, p. 207 n.). There was, however, some friction between William Penn and William Meade (F. Q. E. 1902, "George Fox's Writings and the Morning Meeting," p. 66; Croxfield, Margaret Fox, 1913, pp. 197, etc.).

- 77 5 For this journey see Ell. Text, ii. 358, 359.

- 77 6 This and several following paragraphs supply exact dates to the incidents recorded in Ell. Text, ii, 378—378.
- 77 7 The meetingplace known as the Bull and Mouth or, simply, the Bull, "formed part of an ancient inn known by the sign of the Bull and Mouth, in Aldersgate Street. The room is described as holding 1000 persons, though that probably meant standing, inasmuch as forms for sitting were not anywhere much used at first. Over it were other rooms which Friends either sub-let or used for various purposes" (London Friends' Meetings, p. 134). This property, occupied since 1854, was destroyed in the fire of 1606 but Friends were back again in 1671, with a meetinghouse to hold a thousand, and with committee rooms over, and rooms above occupied by John Field for his school (ibid., p. 143), until they vacated in 1740. It is usually stated that Friends were squeezed out by the increasing business of a carriers' stopping-place; apparently the new people called Methodists were accommodated here in 1744 (London Directory, 1744, p. 63).
- Pepys seems to have confused the Bull and Mouth with the Mouth Tavern, Without Bishopsgate, when writing: "I intended to have seen the Quakers, who, they say, do meet every Lord's day at the Mouth at Bishopsgate, but I could see none stirring, nor was it fit to ask for the place" (Oct. 2, 1684). Fox attended many meetings for worship here and also meetings for consultation (pp. 136, 143). He also visited Friends resident on the premises (p. 153). The Six Weeks Meeting (82. 5) was held here and several meetings at Y.M. time. The Meeting was also known as the City Meeting and London Meeting.

- For information respecting the Calendar see vol. i. p. xli.
- 78 2 James Claypoole (1634—1687) was a prominent London Friend. At the First Settling of the Meeting for Sufferings, 1676 (ms. in D), he was appointed London representative for Staffordshire and Derbyshire and also Ireland. He was also an active member of the Six Weeks Meeting and of the Meeting of Friends in the Ministry. His brother John married Elizabeth, daughter of Oliver Cromwell.
- James Claypoole emigrated to America in 1683 in the Concord, with his wife Helena, four sons and three daughters, besides five servants, his eldest son, John, having preceded him in the Amity in 1682 (Jnl. F. H. S. v. 159, see also pp. 53, 202). He became a "Merchant in Philadelphia and one of the Council" (ibid. xix. 123).

- 78 3 Henry Gill (—1708) was a "publick friend" living at Eashing, parish of Godalming, Co. Surrey, and a yeoman. In 1684 he married Martha Hatt, of "Roddin," at John Lee's house at Guildford. He was committed to the White Lion Prison in Southwark in August, 1688 (see copy of the warrant in Extracts from State Papers, p. 76 and see also p. 54—Conf. S. P. Dom. 1658—8, pp. 162, 183), and he was in the Fleet Prison in 1689.

- 78 4 Widow Smith was, doubtless, the widow of Stephen Smith, of Pirbright and Worplesdon. She was Susanna Purre (c. 1623—1693). See vol. ii. p. 446, where read "Alexandretta" in place of "Alexandria."
- 79 1 "As early as 1656 Friends began to meet in that carpenter's yard [77. 3], and ever since upon that spot have they maintained, often in the face of bitter persecution, the Meeting known as The Peol" (vol. ii. p. 457). Peol Court is in St John Street, Clerkenwell. The minutes of Peol M.M. are extant (in D) for the whole of its period (1668—1860). "The Meeting for the Collection" (pp. 171, 139, 213) was held quarterly. The minutes of the M.M. give particulars of amounts collected for poor Friends and disburied, and the names of the persons helped. At times other business was taken up.
London Friends' Meetings, chap. xi.
George Fox attended several marriages at The Peol; the one mentioned on p. 189 was probably that of David Jones and Sarah, daughter of John Bletso, of Red Cross Street. Another is mentioned on p. 209 which was doubtless that of John Hopegood, of Old Bailey, a sawyer, and Anne, daughter of Thomas Swan, of Old Street. There was another wedding at The Peol two days before but Fox did not arrive in time for that event.
- 79 2 The authors of London Friends' Meetings have traced briefly the history of the Savoy Palace from its erection by Peter, Earl of Savoy, in 1245 to its reorganization as the Savoy Hospital, and abolition in the reign of Queen Anne. The principal entrance at the time of the Itinerary Journal opened onto the Strand and contiguous property was in the hands of William Woodcock, "between the great gate of Somerset House and the Watergate," writes Richard Hawkins in his uncle's memoir (Gilbert Lotey, 1707, p. 6). Here a meeting was held till 1663, when a fire destroyed the property. On the site, Jane Woodcock, William's widow, in conjunction with Martha Fisher, built a meetinghouse, and also some dwellinghouses in which resided several Friends, forming a little colony of Friends similar to that on both sides of Lombard Street. The meetinghouse was at the rear of the other houses and there was "a passage four feet wide, leading to a stone staircase which terminated in a yard paved with stone" (London Friends' Meetings, p. 246), doubtless the yard and entry referred to on pp. 86, 98, 107, 115, 125, 139, 160, 169.
- 79 3 The expression "proud people" (pp. 79, 83) for non-Friends is unusual. The expression generally used in original documents is "world's people"; it occurs in the Camb. Text and in Tercet Text. The earlier editions of the Ell. Text have "world's people" but modified, in later editions, to "not Friends," "not in profession with us," "people of all sorts," etc. In the Itinerary Journal we have "one of y^e world" (p. 66), "world's people" (p. 160) and on one occasion Fox "lodged at one of y^e world's house" (p. 208). See pp. 65, 76, 78, 145, 160, 166, 180, 198.
The term "proud women," referring to women members of a congregation in Norwich, was used by George Whitehead (quoted in a ms. history of Friends in Norwich, written by Arthur J. Eddington, 1924).
Early Quaker historians were careful to note the presence of people of position at their meetings, e.g. "several papists one or all of w^{ch} were said to belong to the pope Nuncio" (p. 156), "great persons, one said to be a Lord and another a Knight" (p. 172) "great persons from y^e Courte" (p. 177), "The Earl of Ancrum & his Nephew and two Nieces" (p. 201). See also pp. 237, 243, 250, 252, 255, 266, 308; and Camb. Text of Fox's American journey.

- 79 4 "By name and reputation the best known thoroughfare in the world, ... associated with monetary dealings, and the spot chosen by the Goldsmiths for carrying on their craft and doing a large trade in money lending" (Old Lombard Street, 1812). In the first London Directory, dated 1677, there is a list of "goldsmiths that Keep Running Cashes," most of them in Lombard Street.
- 79 5 A document has been referred to in these notes with the title: "The First Settling of the Meeting for Sufferings in London in the Fourth Month 1678—the names of the persons appointed to meet upon y^e account of Friends' sufferings, also the names of persons in y^e country to whom they are to send upon any occasion of sufferings." The British Islands are divided into twenty-five sections and there are, in addition, appointments for Barbados, New England and New York, Virginia and Maryland, Nevis and the Leeward Islands, Jamaica, and also Holland (ms. in D). The first minute of the Meeting is dated 23 iv. 1678. The Meeting was held weekly at Three Kings Court, on the "8th day."
- It appears from the document mentioned above that about 70 Friends were members of the Meeting, all men; perhaps the country correspondents might also attend. This has its bearing upon the size of the Chamber (90. 10). At the sitting of 14 vii. 1683 (p. 83) "there was many grievous Sufferings read y^e came out of many parts of the nation." On one occasion the Meeting was disturbed by the spying of an Informer (p. 85). George Fox was a constant attender down to four days before his death. William Penn wrote that Fox "would be sure to stir them up to discharge their duty especially in suffering cases...and endeavouring speedy relief....So that the Churches or any suffering members thereof were sure not to be forgotten or delayed in their desires if he were there" (Tercant. Text, p. 11). If absent, cases were at times postponed "till George comes."
- The Friend* (Lond.), 1896, p. 675. The minutes of the Meeting, which is now held monthly, are in D.
- 79 6 The meetings for the consideration of questions of business attended by Fox were innumerable. He spent long hours at the Chamber and met Friends at private houses to consult on many themes. Friends often met quite early in the day. See Introduction.
- 79 7 It is not evident why this account of the meeting at Poulner, near Ringwood, is inserted at this place in the Itinerary Journal. The heading follows on without any break and the Journal is resumed with the addition only of the figures 1683. But here we have exact date. See p. 68 and vol. ii. pp. 24, 348. EL. Text has part of this narrative within quotation-marks as though it had been taken direct from the narrative on p. 80.
- In commemoration of the tercentenary of the birth of George Fox (1624) a party of friends visited the farm at Poulner and held a meeting at Ringwood in May (3^d mo: n.s.), 1924, two hundred and sixty-one years after the meeting described here.
- 80 1—8 Neither the name of John Line, constable (—1682), nor the account of his horrible death, appears in the Camb. Text (vol. ii. p. 24), but we find both in the EL. Text (ii. 5). Here, in addition, is mention of Mrs Line and other persecutors—wealthy men upon whom judgement fell in "y^e wasting of their outward Estates." There is an article on "Early Friends in Poulner, Hants," in Jnl. F. H. S. vii.

80 4 Joseph Benson records this event in his books of Sufferings (vol. i. p. 234): "The last day of the month called May 1663, Philip Benson, Martin Benson, James Miller, Edward Pritchett, being some of them on the Road, some in a Friend's House, others in an Orchard, and some in other Places near Ringwood, were taken up by an officious Constable and committed to prison for supposed intention of holding meetings (1). They were in close confinement about half a year and then by the Gaoler's Favour they obtained some Liberty and were Prisoners at Large several years and continued till released by the King's Letters Patent in 1672." Extracts from State Papers, p. 344—Col. S. P. Dom. 1671—2, p. 488.

80 5 Samuel Boulton (Bolton) was a London Friend and a Minister. As "citizen and grocer" he married Hannah Polsted, at The Pool in 1668. She died 20 viii. 1678, at the age of 26. We have hints here and there (pp. 93, 95, 99, 129) between viii. 1694 and xi. 1685/6, of some difficulty in the way of Boulton's proposed marriage with Mary Penington (23. 6). It was evidently of long standing as in the Haistwell Diary, under date of "3rd day of 10 month 1677," we read "y^e night G^d & Isaac Penington & W^m Penn & severall friends had a meeting concerning..." (p. 259). The blank at the end has been covered by another hand, the name as the writer of the Itinerary Journal, with the words: "S Bolton & M: p." Seven years later the matter was still sub judice and continued till late in 1695, when three long and probably painful discussions came to an end. The conclusion is outlined in the following letter from Ambrose Rigge (ms. in D): "I understand y^e Samuall Bolton and Mary Penington had even been at 2 meetings in order to finish their intended Marriage and that he had y^e Consent of her parents & herself thereto & y^e Consent of y^e meetings, but having seen a Letter under Samuall Bolton's hand wherein he freely gave it up to her parents and Relations & they having given their Judgement a^d it, it wholly roots there & y^e meeting hath nothing to doe with it as I understand now, but I did not then when I writ to them. Witness my hand this 15th of 11th mo. 1685/6, AMBROSIO RIGGE." The M.M. at Hunger Hill wrote, 7 ix. 1687, to S. Boulton respecting his engagement to Mary Penington, implying that he had "at the same time an attachment to another woman," name not given (ms. in D). In 1686 Mary Penington had married Daniel Wharley (110. 1); why should not the matter have been allowed to rest?

The next episode in the personal affairs of Samuel Boulton is recorded under date 20 xi. 1686/7: "G. B. & G. W. &c. had a meeting with Sam^l Bolton about Contract of Marriage between him & Sarah Freckleton" (p. 167). Sarah Freckleton is named in Fox's testamentary dispositions, c. 1689 (vol. ii. pp. 351, 488): "Sarah thou may give Sarah Freckleton half a Guiney for she hath been Serviceable to me, an honest Carefull young Woman."

This also failed to materialise, but we are glad to know that Samuel found another wife at last in Prudence Wager, of Ratcliff, whom he married at Liskeard in Cornwall in 1700, with the approval of the Two Weeks Meeting in London. She was, perhaps, a daughter of Prudence Wager, who married Alexander Parker (vol. i. p. 427).

80 6 William Crouch (1628—1710) arrived in London from his Hampshire home in 1646 and after his apprenticeship he settled at Spread Eagle Court in Finch Lane, near Cornhill. He was a "citizen and upholder." He became a Friend about 1656. He was burnt out in the Great Fire of 1668 and for a while took refuge at Devonshire House, occupying, with other Friends, a part of the premises so called. On the rebuilding of the City, he settled in Gracechurch Street. Croush married Ruth Brown (c. 1638—1710), one of the earliest of London converts. He was one of the early members of the Meeting for Sufferings. He assisted George Whitehead in obtaining relief for Quaker sufferers (Christian Progress, pp. 500 n., 528, 529, 531, 594, 595). His Posthuma Christiana, 1714, gives much information of Quaker doings in London.

For a recent history of the Fire see Bell, The Great Fire of London in 1666, 1920.

- 80 7 This was probably Benjamin Clark, the bookseller and printer of Friends' books, in George Yard. His name is connected with that of Andrew Sowle (108. 4) in minutes of the Morning Meeting (Jnl. F. H. S. xviii.) and elsewhere. Danton, in his Life and Errors, 1705, p. 292, calls him "Thoe and Thoe Clarke." His business was taken over by Thomas Howkins in 1687.

- 80 8 James Wasse (c. 1638—1712), "citizen & chirurgeon," of London, married Mary Woodwards in 1664. Several of their elder children were born in Houndsditch; in 1679, at the birth of another child, the residence is given as Clement's Lane. On Sunday, 9th September, 1683, with other Friends, he was taken from a meeting at Gracechurch Street but released later in the day. He died at Hackney and was buried at Bunhill Fields.

First-days Meetings, p. 133, no. in D.

It would be interesting to know what Fox said to the "physicians." He had probably a better estimate of the value of the doctor than he had in earlier days when he said it was opened to him "that the physicians were out of the wisdom of God by which the creatures were made and so knew not their virtues" (Tercent. Text, p. 17). That was in 1649 when he was twenty-five. Since which, association with Dr Edward Bourne, Dr Thomas Lower, the "great Doctor from pulaud" (p. 129), the "friendly Chirurgion" (p. 135), the "great Doctor of phisic" (p. 154), "y^e Kings Chirurgion" (p. 197), Dr Samuel Browne (p. 230), "a Doctor of physick" (p. 248), and others, had doubtless modified his views of the profession.

- 80 9 Richard Richardson was the second Recording Clerk to Friends. See vol. ii. p. 498. His home was at Bow, East of London, where G. Fox visited him (p. 119) and his office was in Three Kings Court, off Lombard Street (see next note). He attended on Fox as his secretary (p. 108).

See note respecting Mark Swanner (83. 10).

- 80 10 The "Chamber" of the clerk to Friends was in Three Kings Court, a turning out of Lombard Street to the South (pp. 88, 103, 172). It is usually referred to simply as "the Chamber." The accommodation here must have been considerable—the Meeting for Sufferings (79. 5) was held here, also the Second Days Morning Meeting (81. 1), and, at Y.M. time, the General Meeting of Friends in the ministry (p. 109). George Fox was in constant attendance at the Chamber and spent very many busy hours in its precincts.

In the London Directory of 1877 other tenants of Three Kings Court are named.

When negotiations with Parliament were frequent and long it appeared necessary to have some business centre nearer than the Chamber in Lombard Street, so Friends took a chamber in Palace Yard adjoining Westminster Hall (pp. 180, 191, 193, 194).—"Westminster Hall, with its courts of law [see p. 58], and its stalls of booksellers, law stationers, sempstresses, and dealers in toys and small wares" (Wheatley, Pepysiana, 1888, p. 202). Near, if not the same place, was "y^e Coffy house where friends used to be Joyning to Westminster Hall" (p. 218).

- 81 1 The Second Days Morning Meeting, to give it its full name, was first held 15 vii. 1673, and the Meeting was last held 23 i. 1901. For many years it consisted of men Ministers only and one of its most important functions was the examination and approval or rejection of manuscripts proposed to be printed. When met on a Monday morning, the Ministers placed their names in books ruled for the various London and near-by country meetings, to indicate the places they felt inclined to visit on the following Sunday. Twenty-two folio volumes—Books of Ministering Friends—dating from 1690 to 1793, are extant in D, as are also the minutes of the Morning Meeting, in ten folios. See F. Q. E. 1897, pp. 254—259, 1901, pp. 325—329; The Friend (Lond.), 1901, pp. 442, 719; Int. F. H. S. i. 23. An index to vols. i and ii, and an abstract of the minutes 1673—1700 are among mss. in D.

There was a Sunday morning meeting of Ministers which Fox occasionally attended, in which were some periods of silence (pp. 109, 142, 170, 174).

London Friends' Meetings, pp. 336 ff.

- 81 2 In our days it seems incongruous to remark that a meeting was "in the house" and "quiet," but the reader of this Itinerary Journal will find occasions when meetings were disturbed and the houses emptied and closed. Kingston seems to have been one of the storm-centres (see pp. 77, 87, 88) though meetings there were, at times, "peaceable within y^e doors." In London Friends' Meetings we read: "The earliest history of the [Quaker] Church at Kingston is a story of persecution and violence. As late as 1685 we find the meetings broken up with brutal violence" (pp. 311 f.). Opposition lessened as time went on, and the last reference to disturbance of meetings that we have noticed, also at Kingston, took place on the 8th November, 1683 (p. 88) though, somewhat later, at the Savoy, "officers Came but finding use meeting passed away againe" (p. 116). For a time we read that meetings were "large and peaceable within the doors," then the formula is shortened to "large and peaceable" and finally to "large" when the diarist or copyist first wrote "large and peaceable," crossed out the last two words, and inserted "&" before "large"—8 iii. 1687 (p. 174).

- 81 3 The account of this meeting at Gracechurch Street here given in the first person was doubtless the basis of the recital in the Ell. Text, ii. 387. The appearance of the first person may indicate an early autobiographical statement incorporated in the Itinerary Journal.

- 81 4 Mary Forster (c. 1619—1696) was the widow of Thomas Forster (112. 2); she lived near the Quaker centre in Gracechurch Street, and George Fox often stepped into her house after a Sunday morning meeting in White Hart Court, at times resting himself on a bed there. He visited her when sick (p. 164) and called soon after her death "to comfort the afflicted" (p. 166); she was the author of several pamphlets and wrote Testimonies to her husband (who died in 1660) and to Anne, wife of George Whitehead. She departed this life the 25th of Tenth Month, 1686.

- 82 1 As Friends spread toward the West from London City, meetings were opened in various places. Elizabeth Trott "gave up her house which was towards the end of the Pall Mall, near James's House, for a meeting, which in great measure was actied by Gilbert, who was a very constant attender" (Gilbert Latsey, 1707, p. 59). On the decease of Elizabeth Trott in 1696, "Westminster being the residence of several Friends and a great concourse of people that way, Friends bought the Term of a lease of a House and Garden in the little Ambery, in Westminster...and the Meeting hath continued there ever since" (ibid. p. 65).
William Crouch, 1712, p. 18; London Friends' Meetings.
 For this and the previous paragraph see Ell. Text, ii. 387. Two days later Fox wrote the epistle to "Friends and Brethren, who have received the peaceable truth," given ibid. ii. 388.
- 82 2 For Mary Woolley see vol. ii. p. 493. Her husband was Ezekiel Woolley (161. 1). She accompanied Fox on some of his visits and Fox visited her husband and her at their Spitalfields home.
- 82 3 The Two Weeks (or Fortnightly) Meeting was of early origin, being established within two years of the rise of Friends in London. It settled down as a meeting having special care of Friends' marriages in the London district. Men and women met separately.
London Friends' Meetings, pp. 85—91.
- 82 4 The Lord Mayor for 1682—3 was Sir William Pritchard (c. 1632—1705). There is a considerable account of his year of office in D. N. B.
- 82 5 "The Six-weeks Meeting, as originally instituted in 1671, was a selected assembly of 'grave and ancient' Friends (both men and women) chosen out of all the Meetings in the metropolis and its district, to whose management and control all matters affecting the common interest of these Meetings were committed, forming also a court of final appeal among them in all cases of difficulty that might arise. George Fox termed it, in after years, 'the prime meeting of the city'" (London Friends' Meetings, pp. 91—133). At its opening the Meeting consisted of 49 men and 36 women among them being George Whitehead, Alexander Parker, Gilbert Latsey, Francis Camfield, William Crouch, William Meade, Rebecca Travers, Anne Whitehead, Mary Eleon, Mary Forster, and Mary Woolley. It appears to have met generally at the Bull and Mouth, and acted in a more private capacity than the Two Weeks Meeting (82. 3). The "Meeting of Twelve" was a finance committee of the Six Weeks Meeting (3 p. 128).
 Minute books are in D.
- 83 1 According to London Friends' Meetings (pp. 267—269) a meeting-house was built at Ratcliff about 1666, at the corner of Schoolhouse Lane and Brook Street. In 1670 Sir John Robinson, governor of the Tower, did his best (or worst) to scatter the Friends—forms and tables were taken away but Friends met to worship, standing. Friends' hats were swept off and thrown over an adjoining wall, "but neither the loss of their forms nor their hats could prevent Friends from meeting, so Sir John destroyed the house, yet Friends met upon the ruins and then restored their building," ante 1681. The visits of Fox to Ratcliff Sunday meetings, sometimes by water, were not infrequent and the meetings held were usually "large and peaceable within y^e doors." The one recorded here ("8th day" should be "1st day") is noted in First-days Meetings, p. 134. The considerable attendance of "professors" is also noted.
- 83 2 See 82. 4.

- 84 1 Wheeler Street Meeting in the Spitalfields district dates from a Meeting in a private house at the corner of Wheeler and Westbury Streets in 1656. When several London meetinghouses had been destroyed, Wheeler Street was saved by the clever and prompt action of Gilbert Lathey who installed a tenant in the building (Gilbert Lathey, 1707, p. 71; London Friends' Meetings, p. 163; vol. ii. p. 401). At one time a large Meeting met here but later the number diminished and in 1749 the meetinghouse tumbled down and the Meeting was given up. Westbury Street is now known as Quaker Street and here the Bedford Institute Home Mission Association has its head-quarters.
- 84 2 This Sunday at the Savoy is one of the few narrative portions of the post-1675 EIL Text (ii. 390—393), omitting a personal touch and the name of the Justice concerned, and, as often, the exact date. This date seems correct, but the day of the month in the previous paragraph should have been "5th" instead of "6th."
- 85 1 Further information respecting Justice Guy, of King Street, Bloomsbury, is not forthcoming. The name is not given in the EIL Text (ii. 391).
- 86 1 It is noticeable that there is no record of the imprisonment of Fox since his liberation from Worcester Jail in 1675, while many of his followers were suffering from close confinement in prison.
- 86 2 Gabriel Shadd was a very hardworking Informer. His name appears not infrequently in Friends' records. The minutes of the Meeting for Sufferings held 9 a.d. 1682 contain: "The copy of Shadd's conviction & to be burnt in y^e hand to be inserted in y^e book by R^d R^{son} & to pay 2s to Ben: Anthrobus for Meet." A few days after this affair at the Savoy, Shadd was again at work, and with Yates, another Informer, caused distraint to be levied upon John Elson of The Pool (Suff. i. 457). In First-day Meetings, there are other notices of Shadd's activities. On the same day, apparently, as he stated that he had informed against Fox at the Savoy, he informed against Francis Stamper at Westminster, but he was equally unsuccessful as Stamper was released because no constable would swear against him. On the 14th of Eighth Month Shadd was again at the Savoy: "Informer Shadd came with Constables. Friends when asked for their names objected to Shadd (of his being burnt, etc.). They were taken and kept till night and then released because Shadd did not appear." Christian Progress, pp. 521, 541, 596 (Dorothy Shadd).
- 87 1 There is a brief note respecting Gilbert Lathey in vol. ii. p. 401. The service of this Friend during the period of the Itinerary Journal is described by George Whitehead in his Testimony: "He was for many Years my true companion in laborious Sollicitations in the late three Kings Reigna, before whom we divers times appeared and often attended in behalf of our suffering Friends." (From this it would appear that the "G. W." associated with Lathey on pp. 122, 130, 133, 135, 143, 144, 202, was George Whitehead.) In the State Papers Domestic, 1670, Lathey is described as "a great Ag^t of y^e Quakers in y^e Strand at y^e Peacocke a Taylo^r near to Drury Lane" (Extracts from State Papers, p. 312—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1670, p. 209). Lathey married Mary, only daughter of John and Ann Fielder (127. 1) of Kingston. He lived on the Fisher-Woodcock estate at the Savoy. Of their eleven children only two lived to man's estate. Lathey signed the Testimony to George Fox (EIL Text, ii. 525). He represented Cornwall and Devon at the first settlement of the Meeting for Sufferings, 1676 (ms. in D). In the Life of Lathey, edited by his nephew, Richard Hawkins, and published in 1707 (reprinted 1821, etc.), there is a valuable record of the opening of work on behalf of poor Friends undertaken by women (see vol. ii. pp. 342 ff.; Brailsford, Quaker Women, 1916, chap. xiii; Bulletin F. H. S. Phila. iii. 150).

- 87 2 For John and Elizabeth Vaughton see vol. ii. p. 487. In the Manuscripts of the House of Lords, 1695—1697, issued by the Historical MSS. Commission in 1903, there is, dated 8 April, 1697, a petition re Tithes signed by Theodor Eccleston and John Vaughton, for the Friends, endorsed: "Offered by the Quakers and read and rejected." Vaughton was a very active Minister in the London district. With Whitehead he was concerned with the needs of about forty Pietists in England; he received money for them and paid them visits (London Friends' Meetings, p. 131).

In 1685 Vaughton was living at the Joyners Arms, Stanhope Street near New Market, within the verge of Westminster M.M., where Fox was a frequent visitor.

Christian Progress, pp. 595, 601, 635, 659, 671, 680.

- 87 3 This suppressed passage relating to the loan by Friends of the meetinghouse at the Savoy (78. 2) to the King's Guards is very interesting. The Ell. Text (n. 393) omits all reference to the action of Friends. It is clear from the context that soldiers made use of Friends' property by the favour of Friends and not by force, and it is probably for this reason that the passage was struck through and some of it made illegible. In First-days Meetings, under date 1683, 4 mo. 28, we read: "Savoy, The Kings Guards (being doubled) took up their Quarters in y^e meeting house." Some years later Friends were not so accommodating (or, should it be said, were more true to principles). The meetinghouses at the Park and the Savoy were forcibly taken by soldiery, and occupied for some years till a clearance was ordered by King James in 1688 (Gilbert Latcy, 1707, p. 117; Christian Progress, pp. 614—615; Hirst, Quakers in Peace and War, 1923, p. 77). During this time meetings were held in the yard and entry (see 78. 2).

In 1745, at the time of the rebellion of the Young Pretender, the meetinghouse at Devonshire House became a guard room by favour of Friends of the M.M. (London Friends' Meetings, p. 16b; Hirst, Quakers in Peace and War, p. 188 n.).

- 87 4 Francis Camfield (c. 1628—1708) had a house in the City and also at Theobalds (Tibbalds), near Waltham Abbey (vol. i. p. 426), at both of which places he received and entertained George Fox. The town-house being near to Hicks Hall in Clerkenwell Fox frequently looked in there to be informed of magisterial decisions. Various consultations were also held at his residence. His daughter Hannah married William Baker (180. 1) at the Bull and Mouth in 1672. Jacob Camfield (157. 1) was a son (pp. 157, 176). Francis Camfield married Elizabeth Watts of Aldersgate Street in 1677 (c. 1632—1716). She was his second wife; his first wife, Patience, died in 1675. Wife, daughter and son-in-law appear on p. 180. There is a curious minute of the Meeting of Twelve dated 22 ix. 1690, which reads: "Agreed that W^m Parker & John Edge do speak with Fran Camfield about y^e Damid done at Bull & Mouth by his tobacco." Camfield is very frequently mentioned in First-days Meetings and in Books of Ministering Friends. He preached at the funeral of George Fox. A sermon of his at Gracechurch Street, 14 May, 1693, was printed, with others, in The Concurrence and Unanimity of the People called Quakers, 1711.

- 87 5 This meeting at the Bull and Mouth is referred to in Ell. Text, ii. 395, the wording here being taken into the Ell. Text.

- 87 8 As conveyance by road became easier owing to the improved condition of the streets, passage along the great waterway was less frequent, to the lament of the watermen (107. 2). The hackney coaches were being rapidly improved and glass coaches are mentioned by Pepys (Sept. 23, 1667). Fox made frequent use of coaches and some of his friends owned private vehicles or obtained such for his use.
- Chariots also are referred to in the Itinerary Journal. William Meads owned one (p. 106). This was a lighter carriage "made with springs" (Pepys Diary, Sept. 5, 1665).
- Fox went down to Kingston that he "might be free from interruptions, having several things to write" (EII. Text, ii. 398). He wrote The Saints, their Heavenly and Spiritual Worship, printed same year, also letters to Friends in Maryland and Barbados (Register of George Fox's Letters, ms. in D).
- 89 1 Abiah Roberts, of Newchapel, Essex, has not yet been identified. Fox spent a week-end at his house and had a meeting on the Sunday.
- 89 2 In London Friends' Addresses (ms. in D) John Bull (c. 1648—1695) is described as a "hostler at his warehouse in Throgmorton Street near Bartholemew Lane, 1678." With other Friends he signed a petition to Parliament on the question of sufferings for non-swearing, 1695 (Christian Progress, p. 647).
Sup. i. 462.
- 89 3 Mary Stott (—1698), widow of John Stott, lived at Dalston when we first meet her in the Itinerary Journal. At the end of 1684 we find her at Bethnal Green. Epistles of George Fox, dated from Dalston, were probably written at the Stott home. One is mentioned in EII. Text (ii. 368) and another, ibid. ii. 396. See Register of George Fox's Letters (ms. in D). In 1685 and later Fox's letters were written at Bethnal Green and he was a frequent visitor at Mary Stott's here. The quiet of her home in Bethnal Green was specially suited to letter-writing (pp. 137, 144, 164). See 129. 1. Fox also met the widow Stott at the house of her son-in-law, Edward Bathurst (97. 3). Some difficulty in executing her will is mentioned in note 93. 6.
- 89 4 Jane Bullock was the principal of the Shacklwell School (pp. 83, 89, 91), at Hackney in North London, "settle uppe to instruct younge leasses & maydens in whatsoever thinges was civil & usefull in ye creation" (vol. ii. p. 118). In 1677 the school was said to be in a poor way and more pupils were needed (Second Period, p. 528). George Fox's meeting, if held on a First-day, must have been on the 9th, not the 10th, of the Tenth Month. At an earlier date the school was under the care of the widow Stott (London Friends' Meetings, p. 390).
- 89 5 There is a note respecting Margaret Rouse, daughter of John and Margaret, in vol. ii. p. 422 (though it is probable that in the text "younge Margaret Rouse" refers to the mother and not to the daughter). In the Itinerary Journal "young Margret Rouse" doubtless refers to the daughter.
- 89 6 George Watts (—1688) belonged to Peel M.M., living in the parish of St Botolph, Aldersgate. He was a member of the Meeting for Sufferings, representing Ely and Lincolnshire, in 1676. He accompanied Fox to Holland in 1677 (p. 237) and 1684 (EII. Text, ii. 397). See 93. 2. On his return he entertained Dutch Friends at his house (p. 110). Fox was frequently at his town-house and also at his country-house at Kenfield. John Gratton (c. 1841—1711/12) tells us in his Journal, p. 105, that while he was in Derby Jail in 1684, he was the means of the conversion of the jailer's eldest son and that, with the consent of the lad's parents,

Grafton took him to London and "placed him with an honest Friend, George Watts, where he did well," married, "and grew rich every way." Watts was doubtless referred to in the Itinerary Journal by his initials but it is difficult to state whether "G. W." refers to him or to George Whitehead. In First-days Meetings we read: "1683/4, 12mo. 3, Gracechurch Street. Kept out in Grace's street abo^t half an hour, then permitted into y^e yard where fr^s stood peaceably G. Watts declaring, & Marr. Harub. & G. W^m praying y^e meeting ended, it being a very cold frosty morning, y^e Con^{ts} kept within y^e meetinghouse, having shut y^e doors, till ended" (p. 216). Fox wrote a Testimony to his friend.

MSA. in D, some relating to Friends on the European Continent.

- 80 1 Prayer almost invariably followed sermon in George Fox's vocal service in the meetings he attended, but we do not have any outline of the burden of it. Penn wrote: "Above all he excelled in prayer....The most awful, living reverent frame I ever felt or beheld, I must say, was his in prayer" (Tercent. Text, p. xix). The words of a prayer, written 17 ii. 1671, are given in Tercent. Text, p. 268. It was apparently usual for a prayer to follow a sermon. The collection of the sermons of Stephen Crisp, published in 1694, includes "his Prayer after every Sermon" and in the collection of sermons preached by fourteen Friends, 1688—1694, there follows a prayer after each sermon. These prayers seem much after the manner of the modern minister in the pulpit, not as usual in Friends' meetings to-day. They begin with such words as "Most Glorious Infinite Powerful Father" (Stephen Crisp), "Blessed God of Life" (Francis Stampfer), "Most Glorious and Infinite God of Heaven and Earth" (William Penn). Charles Marshall's prayer contains about 2200 words (Concurrence and Unanimity, 1711). See 137. 1.

- 80 2 There is a place Ellington in Huntingdonshire North of London and another in East Kent South of London, but neither place seems to be near enough to London to make it likely that Fox visited it.

- 81 1 For Edward Mann see vol. ii. p. 422. The "several times" of this note, based on the Ell. Text, must be altered to "very many" consequent on the exploitation of the Itinerary Journal. The visits were paid at both Mann's warehouse in George Yard and his home at Ford Green. Elizabeth Mann must have had a busy time when Fox was there, as, for instance, when he spent sixteen days at the Mann home, "in w^{ch} time many fr^s Came almost daily to see him" (p. 148, see also pp. 178, 179, 233, 234, 236, 257—259, 272). Edward Mann represented North Wales in the Meeting for Sufferings.

Many references in vol. ii.

- 81 2 Sarah Meade's only child was Nathaniel (1684—1760). See vol. ii. p. 491, where it is stated that Sir Nathaniel Meade, knight, died "probably without descendants." More recent information does not support this supposition. In a pamphlet written by Henry J. Mead in 1918, it is stated: "Sir Nathaniel had two sons, Robert and William. Both died in infancy, and were buried at Rensford. His widow, Martha, Lady Mead, died in 1779 and was buried at Rensford." In 1920 Mr Mead wrote to the editor of Jnl. F. H. & S.: "I have recently come across an entry in the Middle Temple Records showing that Thomas Meade, son and heir of Sir Nathaniel Meade, was admitted a student of that Inn on 8th November, 1732....I had hitherto thought that the only children of Sir Nathaniel were two, who died in infancy." (Jnl. F. H. & S. xvii. 130.) No further information is forthcoming.
Jnl. F. H. & S. xi. xiii.

- 81 3 The Friend whose name or initials occur most frequently in the Itinerary Journal is, without doubt, Benjamin Antrobus (c. 1645—1715).

PAGE NOTE

He was a linendraper at the Plough and Harrow in Cheapside. George Fox lodged at his house a multitude of times, and stored there some of his possessions—papers, chest "with some Gold in it," a hundred pounds—"which is for G. Fox's Daily Charge" (vol. ii. pp. 343—352, 355—360). "B. A." was to assist in the collection of Fox's books and papers for printing and distribution. He suffered imprisonment in Newgate 1683—1685. He was a Minister and his name occurs frequently in First-days Meetings. The Y.M. of 1686, 1687 and 1688 appointed him, with others, to have charge of the accounts. Many consultations took place at the Plough and Harrow, some of a private character (Jnl. F. H. S. xii. 61). Though constantly mentioned, few particulars appear. He was twenty years younger than Fox. He wrote much halting verse, on a variety of subjects, e.g. A Complaint against New England Persecutors; Concerning Persecution; Concerning the Philosopher's Stone. He represented South Wales in the Meeting for Sufferings in 1676.

He is also frequently mentioned in the Hoiestwell Diary.

Mary Antrobus (c. 1650—1705) was Mary Burrell, of Greenwich, before she married Benjamin Antrobus in 1671. She accompanied Fox on some of his visits to the country, alone and with her husband and sister, and "a Cosefull of friends" (p. 197). Her shoulders must have borne most of the weight of G. Fox's entertainment, and that of others who came to see him at the Plough and Harrow, especially while her husband was in prison. Sometimes, however, the visits were apparently to the shop only, pp. 142, 144.

The names Joseph Antrobus and Elizabeth Antrobus appear among records in D.

- 92 1 "Hicks Hall was the Middlesex Sessions House in St John Street, Clerkenwell, named after Sir Baptist Hicks, one of the justices, afterwards Viscount Campden, at whose coat the Hall was built in 1612" (Whentley, note to Pepys's Diary, Dec. 6, 1660). Fox often called at Francis Camfield's in order "to look after Friends business at y^e Sessions," or "to see what became of Friends that were to appear there." At times also he waited for news at John Matthews's "att the Kings head att Smithfield Barrs" (p. 147). See Ell. Text, ii. 431.

- 92 2 George Barr (—) was resident in Gracechurch Street and also at Bury Street near Edmonton and was visited by Fox at both places. He was engaged in matters of finance (Jnl. F. H. S. xii. 123; F. M. Epistles, 1686, 1687). Little is at present known of him outside the Itinerary Journal.

There was a George Barr (c. 1656—1722) of Stepney, broadweaver, who married Ann Comfort in 1670 and "died of age," in Gravel Lane, Houndsditch.

- 92 3 For Alexander Parker see vol. i. p. 427. There are many references to Parker in vols. i. and ii. but only slight intimation that he made his residence in London during his later days. John Whiting states that Parker settled in London soon after his marriage in 1669 (Memoirs, p. 185), but still travelled extensively in the ministry. His home was in George Yard where Fox and others frequently dined (pp. 104, 108) and on one occasion (the only mention of such in the Itinerary Journal) Fox "supped" at his house (p. 110). At Ratcliff Fox was at "A : ps : Lodgings at his Sisters" (p. 114, see pp. 135, 136, 170, 171). Parker died in 1688/9 and was buried in Bunhill Fields (London Friends' Meetings, p. 331).

- 92 4 Nathaniel Brassey (c. 1646—1686) "was a goldsmith of Lombard Street. He was an active Friend and a Minister and a faithful testimony-bearer" (Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 169). G. Fox was constantly at his house and enjoyed his friend's hospitality and also that of his wife Elizabeth Brassey. Brassey was with Fox in Holland in 1684 and subsequently entertained some Dutch Friends (p. 110).

In a letter from Sarah Meade to Margaret Fox, dated 7 ii. 1686, we read: "wee heare y^e Nath: Brassey & his onely sonn [Nathaniel] are both to be buried this day, both in one Coffin; the Childs was a fine lively Childs about a yee^r & a quiter old & I did not hear^e but they were both well when wee came out of Towne—its a sickly time in these parts" (Abraham MSS., printed Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 169).

Upon the death of her husband Elizabeth Brassey continued to entertain Fox who was very frequently at her house for the night. In 1687 she married John Toory and died in less than two months afterwards "of Colick."

- 93 1 Martha Fisher is mentioned several times in vol. ii. Her name is frequently associated with that of Jane Woodcock in vol. ii. and in the Haistwell Diary. George Fox was very frequently at her house and often lodged there. She occupied three chambers and a garret above the meetinghouse at the Savoy. She signed the Fox-Fell wedding certificate in 1663, in Bristol. Her daughter Elizabeth married Nathaniel Bland (104. 3).

- 93 2 The Y.M. was held on the 19th and 20th of the Third Month, but there is only a slight allusion to it on the 19th. Either chronicler or copyist has bungled in giving one day of the week to two successive days of the month! 3 mo. 16 was "6th day," the day on which the weekly Meeting for Sufferings was held.

George Fox, accompanied by Alexander Parker, George Watts and Nathaniel Brassey, and also by William Bingley and Samuel Waldenfield, left for his second visit to Holland on the 31st of the Third Month and returned on the 16th of the Fifth Month. "They travelled 772 miles, viz^t in England 148, by sea Rivers & in Holland 612, had 18 Meetings...two Earles came to y^e meeting at Amsterdam & also seav^l considerable persons came to seav^l of ye meetings" (ms. in D., printed Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 37). After resting in the country Fox returned to London on the 21st of the Fifth Month to meet some Friends who had come over from New Jersey on business (Ell. Text, ii. 397—404).

- 93 3 For the troublesome question of the ownership of West Jersey see vol. i. p. 452 and vol. ii. p. 434. The twelve proprietors of East New Jersey in 1682 were William Penn, Robert West, Thomas Rudyard, Samuel Groom, Richard Mew, Thomas Hart, Ambrose Riggs, Thomas Wilcox, Hugh Hartshorne, John Haywood, Clement Plumstead and Thomas Cooper. A valuable document containing their signatures and seals is described in Jnl. F. H. S. xiii. 76. The award in this matter was signed by William Crouch, James Parke, Charles Marshall, Richard Whitpain, William Shewen, Thomas Hart, George Whitehead, and Charles Bathurst and copied by Mark Swanner, 8 mo. 1684 (Case Put and Decided, reprint of 1680, p. 10).

There are eight notices of Edward Byllinge (vol. i. p. 452), all connecting him with the "New Jerseys business." G. Fox had conferences at various houses with him, George Hutchinson, Thomas Budd, William Penn, and Thomas Hart, in 1684 and 1686. In addition to the references to Byllinge in Pepys's Diary (ed. Wheatley) and Pepysiana, 1898, there is a paper amongst the Pepys MSS. written by him "to friends and people of all sorts whatsoever," dated March 22, 1673/4, in which he refers to "debts having been run into by him and his late wife" and repents his part of it and hopes that "no reasonable nor tender hearted man or woman will not too far oppress with their tongue him that's already overwhelmed in sorrow, neither anyone charge this my miscarriage upon the principal people of God called Quakers, for their principle is holy and true and they are clear of these things" (Hist. MSS. Commission, Report xix).

Extracts from State Papers, 1613—Col. S. P. Dom. 1668—D, 1669—1, 1661—2, 1664—6, 1670.

- 93 4 "The Hopes of Amsterdam, and Dordrecht, Dorking, were associated with the Gurnells, Harmaus and Hoares. Thomas [? Henry] Hope, apprenticed to the Gurnells, became a millionaire" (notes by J. J. Green, in letter from Sir Eustace Gurney in Jnl. F. H. S. xviii.). The latter states that the second wife of Edmund Gurney (1723—1796) "was Anna, daughter of Hubert van Fliedem, of Lynn, cousin of his first wife, Martha Kett, their mothers being sisters, daughters of John Hope, of Amsterdam." The Henry Hope mentioned here was doubtless of the same family, Benjamin Furly and George Watts were both connected with Holland.

In the life of Samuel Hoare (1761—1815) there is a note which states: "Mr Henry Hope of Amsterdam was apprenticed in 1754 to Gurnell, Hoare and Co., remained with the firm till 1760, and died in 1811, leaving a fortune of more than a million sterling." In the article in D. N. B. on Sir Thomas Hope (d. 1646) it is stated that his younger brother, Henry, settled in Amsterdam.

Jnl. F. H. S. xx. 113.

- 93 5 Benjamin Furly (1636—1714) "was one of the wealthy people who allied themselves with Quakerism in its early days. He was born at Colchester and began business life there" (full account of Furly in Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 62—73. A reference to his connection with the Little-Door will be found in vol. ii. p. 378. Prior to 1660 Furly settled at Amsterdam, afterwards removing to Rotterdam. He corresponded with several men of note—Algernon Sidney, the third Lord Shaftesbury, and John Locke. His extensive library was sold by auction in October, 1714. Some of the books once belonging to Furly, sold by Jacob Claus to Thomas Story, were lost at sea (see in D). Furly was a son of John and Ann Furly. His father died in 1673, aged about 83. Another and elder son was John Furly (236. 3). Benjamin married twice; his descendants left Friends (The Essex Review, April, 1899—"The Furly Family of Essex"). He seems, for a time, to have had some sympathy with the Purit Hetschism (vol. ii. pp. 375, 482; Collectanea, 1824, p. 148).

- 93 6 William Kent (c. 1650—1720) was a son of Edward Kent, of Pavement, Oxfordshire. He married, firstly, Anna, daughter of Charles Bathurst, at Devonshire House, in 1679, and, secondly, Margaret Cole in 1684/5. He was a cheesemonger in Bishopsgate Street. There is a letter in D, from George Fox to William Mesde, dated 8 xi. 1688/90, which refers to the will of Mary Stott (89. 3) and mentions William Kent and his brother-in-law Edward Bathurst. The matter is not stated very clearly, but evidently M. Stott left money to the poor, some of which was claimed by relatives or other legatees. Fox defends the claims of the poor.

- 93 7 The town-house of Charles Bathurst (c. 1698—1700) was at the sign of the Three Sugar Loaves, Without Bishopsgate, and his country-house was "at Epin forest" (p. 116). His first wife, Frances, and the mother of his children, died of cancer in 1675. Later he married Grace Hubbard (c. 1634—1703). A son, Benjamin, was apprenticed to John Mackett, "coatseller" of Aldgate Within, but died of small-pox in 1692 at the age of fifteen. Another son was Edward (97. 3) and there were daughters Elizabeth and Anne (105. 7). Charles Bathurst was a grocer and confectioner. Fox was a frequent visitor, in town and country. Bathurst was one who signed a certificate of the bona fides of George Whitehead, in 1680 (Christian Progress, p. 418). In 1692 he signed a paper entitled The Doting Athenians Imposing Questions no Proofs, in answer to statements respecting Friends which had appeared in The Athenian Mercury. Other Friends who signed were John Edridge, William Meads, Theodor Eccleston, William Ingram, William Crouch, George Whitehead, Walter Benthall and Thomas Barker, all of whom are mentioned in these notes. He wrote a brief and beautiful Testimony respecting his daughter Elizabeth (105. 7), in which he says, truly: "Deep Sorrows can make no long Discourses."
- Jnl. F. H. S.* v. 178, xi. 180.
- 93 8 Mary Penington was the only daughter of Isaac and Mary Penington (235. 1) and was at this time about twenty-seven years old. Her name appears four times in the Itinerary Journal, in connection with that of Samuel Boulton (pp. 93, 95, 98, 129). See 80. 5. She married Daniel Wharley, 9 iv. 1686 (110. 1), and died in 1726.
- 93 9 Rowland Vaughan was an attorney employed by Friends. He accompanied John Edge and George Whitehead on their urgent visit to the Attorney General (133. 1) and prepared warrants of liberation for signature (Christian Progress, p. 589, see also pp. 610, 612). His office was at the Temple.
- ms. in D.
- 93 10 "Mark" was Mark Swanner, assistant to Richard Richardson (80. 9), Friends' general secretary. He seems to have begun work in the Chamber early in 1684, to have received "30 lbs per year" (Jnl. F. H. S. i. 63), and to have removed into Hertfordshire early in 1688. Between these two dates we find him assisting Fox with his literary work. He evidently was not opposed to Sunday work, as when Fox was unable to get out to meetings, Mark was summoned to several houses to assist in writing and in reading books to be printed. On one occasion he wrote for both George and Margaret Fox (p. 95) and on another both clerks had to forge their Sunday rest (p. 108). The salaries of the two clerks came up for consideration, "was Continued till late in the night," attended by Fox and "other Select friends" (p. 166). One would think that Fox might have been spared work of this kind. This conference is probably the one referred to in the history of the Devonshire House Reference Library (printed Jnl. F. H. S. xviii. 11), where Swanner's further work is described. He is called the "German friend." "Mark Swanner" was in prison in Silesia in 1676 (Felt-Smith, Stevens Crisp, 1692, p. 38). He appears to have been discharged from Friends' service in 1696 (Jnl. F. H. S. xviii. 13).
- 93 1 Richard Vickris (—1700), of Chew Magna, in Somersetshire, is noted as "the only case where sentence of death was passed upon a Friend in the mother country" (F. P. T. p. 360). He was only son of Robert Vickris, merchant and alderman, of Bristol and Chew Magna. He was sent abroad in the hope that his Quaker notions would be dispelled, but while away he was much impressed with the errors of popery, and on his return he allied himself with Friends. He married Elizabeth, daughter of George Bishop, in 1671/2. He was often fined and detained for meetings, imprisoned and abused. There is a long account of the trial in Whiting's Memoirs. The sentence was "That he should Conform, or shure the Realm in three months, or suffer death as a Felon, without benefit of Clergy." A habeas corpus removed him to London where George Fox and William Penn had the interview here recorded. In the Ninth Month he was legally discharged by Lord Chief Justice Jeffreys on errors in the indictment. At the date of Whiting's Memoirs, Vickris was living at Chew with wife and ten children. Several articles are credited to him in Smith's Cata.

Whiting, Memoirs, pp. 88—91, 118, 120; Jnl. F. H. S. ix. xix.; Second Period.

Later. Referring to the above statement, based on F. P. T. p. 380, there is, in a recent pamphlet, written by Elizabeth B. Emmott, Early Quakerism in Wales, 1924, the following statement: "In 1676 the Judges declared in open Court at Bala that any Quakers who refused the Oath of Allegiance a second time would be proceeded against as traitors, the men to be hanged and quartered, and the women to be burned. Roland Ellis received this sentence at Dolgelly, but was allowed time to consider. He decided to emigrate to Pennsylvania."

- 96 2 During his continental travels in 1677 Fox was in the Duke of Holstein's country from which the Duke would have banished Friends had the magistrates agreed to do so (p. 244). Hearing that he had been scandalized by the preaching of Elizabeth Hendricks (108. 5), Fox wrote him a long letter, dated London, 26 viii. 1684, on the subject of women's preaching, which is given in full in Ell. Text (ii. 404—406). The duchy was situated on the borders of Sweden and Denmark. Christian Albert was probably the Duke written to. Apparently, later, the Duke liberated Friends from confinement—"At Dantzic there are now no prisoners; the Duke of Holstein has put forth a declaration for liberty of conscience" (F. M. Epistle, 1682).

- 95 3 There is a slight notice of Margaret Drinkwell, Senr. (c. 1623—1695), in vol. ii. p. 385. We have not discovered the nature of the "buyness" in which mother and daughter are concerned. Fox visited Margaret Drinkwell at her house in Bishopsgate Street, parish of Shoreditch.

In the paragraph on p. 96, with the mention of M. Drinkwell, the day should be "5th" not "4th."

Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 150.

- 98 1 Thomas Cox (c. 1641—1711) was a wealthy vintner, of the White Lion, in Whitechapel, son of Thomas Cox, of Cheltenham. At the institution of the Meeting for Sufferings in 1678 Thomas Cox was appointed to act for Friends in Norfolk and Cambridge in conjunction with Clement Plumstead. George Fox was frequently at his house and took dinner with him from time to time and passed a night there. In 1688, 11th of Ninth Month, G. Fox attended the marriage of a daughter of T. Cox at Devonshire House and accompanied the couple to South Street, where it is probable that there was another Cox home. (Search has been made for a record of this marriage (160. 4) but it has not been found.) Cox's daughter, Christian, married Laucelles Metcalfe at Devonshire House in 1691. Thomas Cox heads the list of subscribers to a fund to assist William Gibson, c. 1725, with a donation of seven guineas (Jnl. F. H. S. i. 26). He witnessed the sealing by William Penn of a document in 1681 (vol. ii. p. 367). His wife is mentioned on p. 194, see 178. 1. In a letter from John Tomkins to Sir John Rodes, 1702, we read respecting a consignment of wine: "I did buy it of Tho: Cox, and told him who it was for, and I believe he has taken care that thou hast his best. It is covered with Canvas to prevent their taping of it with poiters." Then follows a copy of Cox's bill for the wine—twenty gallons, 2 casks, canvas and portersage £5. 15. 8. (Quaker Post-Bag, 1910, p. 169).

"Thomas Cox, a Quaker, formerly grocer in Aldersgate street, ... very considerable fortune," died 13 May, 1739 (Gent's Mag., quoted Jnl. F. H. S. xiii. 28).

- 90 2 Ann Hayley, widow, of Guttershedge near Hendon, early opened her house as a meetingplace for Friends. Ellwood reports two visits to her, in 1677 and 1680 (Ell. Text, ii. 261, 345). We have no knowledge of the "husyness" which called certain Friends together (pp. 98, 97, 107). In 1686 Ann Hayley lodged five Friends at her house—George Fox, John and Mary Elson and Mariabell Farmborough, Senr. and Junr. (p. 138).

- 96 3 Lawrence Fullove (c. 1626—1689) lived in the parish of St Alphege, London Wall. He was one of the Friends sentenced to banishment to Jamaica in 1664 and put on board the Black Eagle in August, 1665. A storm drove the ship to the coast of Norway, but the prisoners were not permitted to land. Eventually they reached Holland and were two months on shore, and then returned to England. But of the fifty-five put on board in the Thames twenty-seven only reached the Downs alive. William Crouch prints a letter from Fullove from Amsterdam, 27 ii. 1666, to his uncle, Amor Stoddard, giving some account of their adventures (Posthuma Christiana, 1712, pp. 89 ff.). In the history of the Devonshire House Reference Library which appeared in volume xviii. of the Jnl. F. H. S., we are told of a search for lost records, and that, at the Meeting for Sufferings, ix. 1689, "John Dew Acquaints the meeting that a deal Chest with Writtings and Books of friends (Supposed to be the Chest soe much enquired after by friends) is now found at Lawrence Fulloves. This Meeting Orders that the said Chest and Writtings be sent to friends Chamber in Lombard Street." It may be that to-day we benefit from the action of 1689 in centralizing records. Suff. i. 406; Smith, Cuts i. 328. See 138. 2.

- 97 1 Rebecca Travers (1609—1688) was the wife and widow of William Travers, tobaccunist, at the sign of the Three Feathers in Watling Street. She was educated in the Baptist Church but was convinced of Quakerism by James Nayler, who, during a discussion, "putting his hand over the Table, and taking her by the Hand, said, 'Feed not on knowledge, it is as truly forbidden to thee, as ever it was to Eve. It is good to look upon, but not to feed on, for who feeds on knowledge dies to the innocent life'" (Whiting, Memoirs, p. 177). She became a prominent worker and writer. The Morning Meeting was held, at times, at her house (Jnl. F. H. S. xviii. 2), and Fox was a frequent visitor; she wrote, in an original letter in D (Swarth. mss. i. 395), dated 5 ix. 1671: "I was never better pleased wth my house then when hee was in it & employed it for y^e service of truth, or any of his." She was one of the Friends of "London" M.M. appointed to see to the right conduct of marriages (Sundry Ancient Epistles, p. 41, ms. in D), and was also a prison-visitor—"Rebeck: Travers is gone towards Ipwich to see prisoners" (Swarth. mss. iv. 96). She had experience of prison-life. Her writings in support of Quakerism were voluminous—"one Rebecca Trewish in Watling street is a wryter of books, and gets them printed by Widdow Dover" (Extracts from State Papers, p. 230—Cul. S. P. Dom. 1664—6, p. 148). Next to Margaret Fell and Dorothy

White, she appears to have been the most prolific woman Quaker writer (Jnl. F. H. S. x. 94). She wrote Testimonies concerning William Bayly, 1676; Susanna Whitrow, 1677; Alice Curwan, 1680; Anne Whitehead, 1686. In a tract, dated 1684, This for all or any of those, etc., she breaks out into verse, beginning:

"Things to come are here declared,
but blind men cannot see;
But as the World draws to an end
some shall remember me."

William Travers (—c. 1663) is mentioned several times in Quaker books. He was one who offered to lie "body for body" (54. 2) in 1659, and Friends met at his house on business bent (Hidden Things Brought to Light, or the Discord of the Grand Quakers [Fox, Naylor and Perrot] among Themselves, 1678, pp. 9, 11). There was a son, Matthew, and a daughter, Rebecca, who married John Osgood (104. 2) in 1667. Rebecca Travers's sister, Mary Booth, lived also at the Three Feathers. George Whitehead lodged there during the year of the Plague (Christian Progress, p. 292). William Penn preached a sermon "upon occasion of the Death of Mrs Rebecca Travers, an Aged Servant of God, June 19, 1688" (Concurrence and Unanimity of the People called Quakers, 1684, pp. 73—77), but there is only a slight reference to R. T.

- 97 2 The name of Thomas Barker occurs several times in First-days Meetings when he suffered imprisonment and fine for attendance at several of the London meetings. In F. P. T. (pp. 153—157, 361) there is a full recital of the trial of him and others at the Guildhall, 18 x. 1683, under the statute 35 Eliz., the Recorder, Sir Thomas Jenner, trying to prove that the meeting was a tumultuous one, despite the evidence of a witness that "they were Quiet, standing together even as Lambs." Barker was one of the London Friends appointed by Y.M. 1667 and 1688 to inspect the accounts relating to charitable affairs. "Thom. Barker, Seething Lane" appears in The Little London Directory of 1677 (reprint of 1663 in D).
- 97 3 Edward Bathurst, son of Charles, had a house in George Yard. In 1682 he married Mary, daughter of John Stott, late of Black Eagle Street, Spitalfields, and his wife Mary Stott (59. 3). G. Fox frequently called in George Yard to see widow Stott and dined there from time to time; once it is said "he ate something" (p. 143) as if a hurried meal was taken.
- 97 4 John Hutson has not yet been identified. There was one of the name, a mariner, across the river, who died in 1698, aged 34. Anna Hutson's name is attached to a letter from the Women's Q.M. of London to Margaret Fox in 1686.
- 97 5 For Margaret Fox see vol. I, p. 407. Of her ten visits to London, two hundred miles from Swarthmoor, the eighth and ninth are recorded in the Itinerary Journal. In 1684—5 she passed sixteen weeks in the Metropolis (pp. 97, 104, 106). In Second Month, 1690, she suddenly appears before us at her husband's side at the Moode house and departs again for the North two months later (pp. 206, 213). Writing of this 1690 visit, c. 1691, she tells us that "of all the times that I was at London this last was most comfortable" (Ell. Text, ii. 519).

- 98 1 John Plant (c. 1648—1716), of Spitalfields and later of Bishopsgate, broadweaver, son of Humphrey Plant, of Fleet Street, married Elizabeth Broadbank, of the same, at Devonshire House, in 1683. Fox lodged a night at Plant's house as convenient for some business with Abraham Godowns. A son, Eschiel, was drowned, "in Westminster liberty," in 1700, aged 17. At his death John is described as a vintner. There was a John Plant, resident at Newbury, Berks (Besse, Sufferings; Jnl. P. H. S. iv. 28).
- 98 2 The London Friends' Registers record the marriage of Abraham Godowns, of Bishopsgate, and Jane Tomkins, at Wychury Street, Spitalfields, in 1668. In 1674 was born a son, Abraham, his father being described as "of Stepney, broadweaver." Abraham and Jane lost by death a son Benjamin in 1672, another Benjamin in 1678, and Isaac in 1680. Jane Godowns died of "a surfet" in 1684, aged forty, her husband surviving her.
- 99 1 As with the Sessions held at Hicks Hall in North London (92.1), so in connection with the Sessions held at the Guildhall in the heart of the City, Fox was concerned to know the latest respecting the trials of Friends and awaited news from the latter at the house of Benjamin Antrobus in Cheapside hard by (pp. 93, 99, 147). There is a very valuable manuscript in D, containing, among other references to London sufferings, numerous references to Friends in Sessions Rolls preserved in the Crypt of the Guildhall. The extracts were made by the late Prof. G. Lyon Turner, and are dated 1662 to 1665. Attached to above is a list of London Friends sentenced to transportation, 1684—1685, with notes by William C. Braithwaite. Four days afterwards Fox wrote an autograph letter to Friends lying in Plymouth Prison, encouraging them to faithfulness (original in D, see facsimile in Jnl. P. H. S. i.).
- 100 1 Was Justice Smith, of Ratcliff, mentioned here the same as Sir William Smith, of whom it is recorded in First-days Meetings, p. 117: "1683. 6 mo. 12. Ratcliff. Within y^e house morning & afternoon, Quiet & undisturbed the Cen^{ts} being told to Trouble themselves no farther till Sir William Smiths order."
- 100 2 James Strutt, Senr. (c. 1619—1700), and James Strutt, Junr. (c. 1649—1698), were both mariners, resident at Ratcliff and Wapping. "James Strutt of Wapping" married Mary, daughter of John Meakins (122.2), in 1676. There is no indication whether this marriage was of father or son. "Old Mary Strutt" is mentioned on p. 171, anno 1687. She was probably the Friend of that name who with others, men and women, was appointed by Ratcliff M.M. to attend marriages and see them properly conducted (Sundry Ancient Epistles, p. 41).

Bethia (126. 1), Margaret (89. 5), Anne (pp. 196, 197, 206), and Nathaniel (p. 184). For the will of John Rous see Jnl. P. H. S. iv.

Nathaniel Rous (1670—1717) was a merchant of the parish of St Mary Bothaw, Cannon Street. He married Hannah Woods (—1714), of Guildford, in 1696. Beyond their immediate family no descendants are known. His attack of small-pox is mentioned on p. 134. He was a scholar at Richard Scoryer's writing school when the attack began (letter from John Rous, 20 i. 1655/6, printed in Webb, Fells of Sowerthorpe Hall, 1865).

Anne Rous (1671—1709) married Benjamin Dykes, of Colchester, merchant, son of Edward Dykes, in 1698, and died s.p. Dykes's first wife was Mary Takot, of Colchester, who died in 1698. See 237. 1.

- 400 5 Fox's "own business" about which he consulted Attorney Vaughan (p. 93) is described in full in Ell. Text, ii. 365—368. The date is given loosely "about this time," but the affair appears under 1661. That 1664 is the date is clear from the mention of the "eight poor men from the North" in the same paragraph, whose letter to Y.M. is dated 1 iii. 1664. Fox writes: "My wife and I and several other Friends were sued in Cartmel-Wapentake Court in Lancashire for small tithes and we had demurred to the jurisdiction of that court." Contrary to expectation Fox was not taken into custody. As with the doctors (80. 8) so with the lawyers Fox had advanced from the position he took up in 1649—"He showed me also that the lawyers were out of the equity, and out of the true justice, and out of the law of God," but adding: "The lawyers might be reformed and brought into the law of God" (Tercet. Text, pp. 17, 18).

Croftfield, Margaret Fox, 1913, pp. 178—181—the letter printed on p. 179 should be dated 1684.

- 100 6 For William Penn see vol. ii. p. 418. He is frequently mentioned in the Itinerary Journal and the Holwell Diary. He was visited by Fox at his lodgings at Charing Cross (pp. 100, 123), and at Holland House, Kensington (p. 115). At an earlier date he was visited by Fox at his lodgings at William Hages (p. 258). He was also to be found at the house of his brother-in-law, Daniel Wharley, in George Yard (pp. 122, 177). In Seventh Month, 1689, Fox met Penn "who was y^e under y^e Messing's hand in piccadilly" (p. 199).

- 100 7 Giles Fettiplace (—1702) "became a Friend in the early days and used to drive to Cirencester meeting in the style of a county magnate in his coach and six....He lived at Cole St Alwyne, in Gloucestershire...possessed considerable landed property and came of an old family" (The Friend (Lead.), 1905, p. 842). In the Life of Bishop Frampton (who succeeded Dr John Prichard in the see of Gloucester in 1680) it is related that Giles Fettiplace, "the Quaker Esquire, son of him who had defended Cirencester for the Parliament [Col. John Fettiplace], having gone in his coach and six to call upon the Dean and Chapter re removal of leases, was received in much state and with great deference until the churchmen found the Quaker would not take off his hat to them. Then they irritably rammed their own on their heads, intimating to Giles that they were quite prepared to treat him and his friends with equal discourtesy. They even demurred to renewing one of the leases until the Dean recalled that the Esquire's father had dealt very liberally with the Church in its depressed days, which led to a better understanding of each other all round and an amicable settlement of the matter" (quoted in the Life of John Roberts —A Quaker of the Olden Time, 1888, p. 36). Frances, daughter of Gilead and Elizabeth Fettiplace, married, in 1688, John Bellers (1854—1725), who succeeded to the Fettiplace estate. They had a son, Fettiplace Bellers, philosopher, playwright, and Fellow of the Royal Society. Theophila, another daughter, married Thomas Church in 1693.

- 102 1, 2 For Thomas Lower, the step-son-in-law of George Fox, see vol. i. p. 440, and for his wife, Mary Lower, see vol. ii. p. 421 (corrected by Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 153, as to date of birth). There is an interesting personal letter from Mary Lower to her mother in 1701 (see Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 185).
Quaker Post-Bag, 1910, p. 181; Swarth. Account Book.
- 102 3 Martha Hull signed the General Testimony to Anne Whitehead (148. 2) in 1688. She lived in Bethnal Green and for some reason unknown is associated here with Mary Stott, a neighbour (88. 3). Further information is lacking.
- 103 1 It is clear that a Quaker family of Birkett lived South of the Thames about Lambeth, but particulars are lacking. William Birkett was visited in the First Month (not "3^d" as written), 1684/5 and about six months later Gulielmus Penn accompanied Fox on a visit to "Widdow Burkit," she being visited also at later dates, and her name being, apparently, Eleanor (p. 123). There was a Mary Birkett living "near Lambeth" (p. 159).
- 103 2 It has not been found possible with our present knowledge to piece together with any certainty scattered information respecting Anne Travers (see vol. ii. p. 451). She was a widow when caring for Thomas Ellwood in 1662. She appears to have been of Hackney in 1685 and to have removed to Hornlydown, where Ellia Hookes lodged with her from 1665 to his death in 1681. (Wehh, Fells of Swarthmoor Hall, 1865; Jnl. F. H. S. i.) Here, at Newington, Fox visited her. In Eighth Month, 1685, Fox, with Nathaniel Wilmer, and Anne Travers and her daughter, went to Chiswick to prospect for a house in which to conduct a "Womans School" and had a look at the house in which William Loddington (123. 4) had kept school (p. 123). Anne Travers removed to Chiswick a few months later where Fox was a frequent and welcome visitor for longer or shorter periods. The Registers record the death in 1688/9 of Anne Travers, of Bermundsey, widow, aged about sixty.
 Sarah Travers, spinster (probably the daughter mentioned on p. 123, who also sent messages to Friends per letters of Ellia Hookes, see Swarth. mss.), married Jasper Robins in 1675, and was the Sarah Robins of pp. 186, 208.
- 103 3 The Marshalsea Prison was in the borough of Southwark. Imprisonments of Friends are referred to in many places, e.g. Christian Progress, pp. 318—321; First-days Meetings, p. 177.
- 103 4 The Lord Mayor who occupied the office in 1684—5 was Sir James Smith.
- 103 5 For a short note on Informers under the Conventicle Act of 1670 see vol. ii. p. 417. George Whitehead gives a list of forty-one of these troublesome people in his Christian Progress, p. 596, which list includes fifteen women, adding: "John Hilton (called Captain), George Hilton, Christopher Smith and Elizabeth his wife, Esther Collingwood, Gabriel Shadd [86. 9], John Brown were some of the chief of that Society." Masters and servants, husbands and wives were engaged in this nefarious business. A monograph on the subject is much to be desired.

- 104 1 Information respecting John Bellhouse is not forthcoming or the nature of the "difference" betwixt him and John Rous.
- 104 2 John Osgood (c. 1634—1694) was a linendraper, of Chapside, when he married Rebecca Travers (97. 1) in 1667. His second wife was Mary, daughter of William Welch (233. 4), whom he married in 1674. She died at Hornchurch, Essex, in 1695/6, aged fifty years. His London house was one of those built by several Friends in White Hart Court, after the Fire (London Friends' Meetings, p. 145). His country-house was at Mortlake (pp. 124, 127, 134). He was on numerous committees and appointments of "London" M.M. and other Meetings (Sundry Ancient Epistles, pp. 35, 40, 41). He presented a petition to the King in 1679 and was called before the Grand Committee of the House of Commons in connection with the Toleration Bill (Christian Progress, pp. 374, 635). Osgood was engaged with William Meade in arrangements for supplying poor Friends with flax for spinning (Jnl. F. H. S. xii. 122). Some money transactions between Roberts, Osgood and Meade and Algernon Sidney are reported in Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 68. The family became allied with that of Hanbury (The Hanbury Family, 1916, p. 245; Jnl. F. H. S. xiv.).
- 104 3 Nathaniel Bland was a linendraper, living in Lombard Street (vol. ii. p. 488). In 1681 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Martha Fisher (93. 1). Fox repeatedly visited the Bland home and sometimes dined there ("Eat something to dinner," p. 133, seems to imply a hurried repast). The visits to mother and daughter recorded on pp. 163, 173 were doubtless paid at the home of the daughter. G. Fox states that some of his epistles "may be found in a Book y^e Eliz. Bland hath of her Mothers" (vol. ii. p. 350).
- 104 4 In The Carrier's Cosmography, or a Brief Relation of the Inns, Ordinaries, Hostleries and other lodgings in and near London; where the Carriers...do usually come, etc., by John Taylor, London, 1637 (reprinted in An English Garner, 1903, vol. i. p. 223), we find several notices of the Swan with Two Necks (i.e. Nicks), in Led Lane: "The Carriers of Manchester do lodge at the two neck'd Swan in Led Lane betwene great Woodstreet and Milkstreet end. They come every second Thursday: also there do lodge Carriers that doe passe through diverse other parts of Lancashire." The inn was a coaching-centre also. For inns see index.
- Perhaps "y^e seedmans in Byshopgate street" was another coaching-centre. Fox was frequently at this place, see index.
- 106 1 For Richard Pinder see vol. ii. p. 431. Tracts written by him, c. 1680, are in D. He wrote Testimonies concerning Francis Howgill, 1676, and William Dewsbury, 1689.
- 106 2 Elizabeth Dry, widow, of Enfield, was frequently favoured with the entertainment of George Fox. It was here that Fox spent that sad winter of 1670—1, of which he writes: "In my deepe misery I saw thinges beyonde wordes to utter, & I saw a blacke Coffin but I past over it" (vol. ii. p. 169).

- 106 3 Thomas Hart (c. 1628—1704) was of Swan Alley, in Coleman Street, in 1658 (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 83). In 1662 we read of his wife and him in Barbados (Swarth, ms. iii. 120). In 1671, described as "late of Barbados," he married, at Devonshire House, Priscilla, widow of Richard Eccleston (160. 2). Their home was Enfield where Fox was frequently their guest and M.M. was held at their house (pp. 131, 148). Hart represented Friends of Yorkshire and Barbados in the Meeting for Sufferings in 1678. Was he the Thomas Hart, master of the ship that took John Taylor to Barbados in 1666 (John Taylor, 1710, p. 29)?
- Priscilla Hart (1627—1694) was the mother of Mercy Eccleston, who married Walter Benthall (131. 2). She died at the house of her son-in-law in London "of an oppression at the stomach."
- Christian Progress*, pp. 594, 647; London Friends' Meetings, p. 301; Smith, Cats.; ms. in D.
- 106 4 The name Thomas Robinson appears in the Itinerary Journal from 1685, as companion of Fox and Friend in the ministry. He does not figure as a London Friend. A Friend of the same name was appointed with well-known Friends to collect the writings of Fox (vol. ii. p. 345). It is presumed (vol. ii. p. 487) that Thomas Robertson is intended—a well-known Friend (see vol. i. p. 442), and it may be that Robinson should read Robertson here. Thomas Robertson appears among country Friends visiting London 1682 (First-days Meetings). Thomas Robertson wrote a Testimony re George Fox. Thomas Robertson is named on p. 280.
- 106 5 Thomas Bennett (c. 1630—1705), of Waltham Abbey, appears frequently in the Itinerary Journal. Fox was often at his house and in attendance at the weekly meeting at Waltham, held on a Wednesday. There is an entry in the Marriage Registers: "Bennett, Thomas, of Ratcliffe, Baker, and Elizabeth Constable of Ratcliffe, 11 ai. 1671." For Elizabeth Bennett see 162. 2. A certain Mary Bennett "devoted to Edward Mann, for the use of Friends as a burial ground, an orchard situated in East Street, Waltham Holy Cross, for a thousand years at a pepper corn rent, if demanded" (London Friends' Meetings, pp. 298, 297).
- 106 6 Benjamin Freeman is frequently mentioned in First-days Meetings. He was an apothecary in Westminster. He was frequently fined for attending meetings and preaching. In 1682 he had "all his Shop-Goods, being eight Porters Loads, valued at £30," taken off (Suff. i. 451). The death of Benjamin Freeman has not been found in the London Registers. There was a family of Freeman seated at Woodbridge, Co. Suffolk, and a Benjamin, apothecary, was married there in 1703 (Jnl. F. H. S. i. 34) and a Benjamin died during a small-pox epidemic at Woodbridge in 1719 (ibid. xviii. 45, 46).
- 106 7 Elizabeth Bathurst (c. 1655—1685) was the eldest daughter of Charles and Frances Bathurst (93. 7) and was always in delicate health. Her convictionment, as that of the other children of Charles Bathurst, seems to have been due to the influence of Charles Marshall (see his Testimony) and took place about seven years before her death. Despite bodily weakness she undertook a preaching tour which included Windsor, Reading and district, and Bristol. She was imprisoned in the Marshalsea in Southwark, presumably for addressing the congregation of Samuel Anley (30 viii. 1676), to the members of which she wrote An Expository Appeal in 1678: "Whether or no you will all justify that Action of haling of me (and my sister who stood by me) out from amongst you." It is said that the justices that committed her thought her a person of great learning and education. There is an addendum to the Appeal, signed by Anne Bathurst, who may have been the sister who stood by. Elizabeth also wrote an article on The Sayings of Women, taken from the Bible—twenty-one from the Old Testament and thirteen from the New. E. Bathurst's principal writing was called Truth's Vindication, a refutation of numerous misrepresentations of Quakerism, under headings, e.g. Scriptures, Humanity of Christ, Perfection, etc. Of this George Whitehead wrote that some would not believe "it was of her own dictating," but he had seen it in her own handwriting. This book, preceded by Testimonies by her father and stepmother (83. 7) and by George Whitehead and Charles Marshall, was first printed in 1691 and was reprinted six times to 1788 (Smith, Cats. i. 210).

Anne Bathurst, of Bishopsgate, spinster, married William Kent (83. 6), at Devonshire House in 1675.

- 106 1 For Robert Barclay see vol. ii. p. 457. A letter from Barclay from Aberdeen Prison addressed to Jane Woodcock and Martha Fisher is referred to in ms. in D. A sermon preached by him in Gracechurch Street, 16 iii. 1698, appears in Concurrence and Unanimity, 1711. Christian Progress, pp. 570, 575, 580; Cadbury, Robert Barclay. His Life and Work, 1912; Friends' Intelligencer, 1822, article by Elbert Russell, "The Quakerism of Robert Barclay."
- 106 2 Many visits were paid to Winchmore Hill Meeting in the N.E. of Middlesex. Richard Chaire usually received a visit after meeting. A meetinghouse was built here in 1687 and another in 1790 (London Friends' Meetings, esp. p. 299).
- 106 3 James Parke (Park, Parks) (1636—1696) lived in Horslydown, South of the Thames. He had formerly lived in North Wales. In 1686 he was one of the signatories to a long epistle "Ag^d Loose spirits denying ministry &c." (Sundry Ancient Epistles, pp. 93—97), and in 1686 his name is placed first among Friends signing an epistle re "Corruptions Creeping in abo^d Mafiges" (ibid. p. 100). His name occurs twenty-six times in First-days Meetings. He spoke at the burial of George Fox. Hugg calls Parke to account about some money in his hands (The Painted Harlot Both Stript and Whipt, by Francis Hugg, 1682, p. 78). He was a useful man in the examination of manuscripts in the Morning Meeting (Jnl. F. H. S. xiv. 3, xviii. 3). He himself wrote numerous pamphlets. Parke married Frances Coole (c. 1634—1695), a widow, of Horslydown, in 1667. He took part in disputes with John Wigan, as given in J. W.'s Antichrist Strongest Hold Overturned, 1685. - 107 1 In the London Registers there is an entry of the marriage of John Dew to Susanna Twinn in 1668 at The Pool, in which he is described as "citizen and joiner." At the birth of his son, John, in 1682, he was of "Gregorye by Pauls London." In 1677, at a meeting at the Bull and Mouth, it was "Ordered that John Dew doe forthwith make two boxes for the use of the poore to be set up by him in some convenient place one at Devonshire House & the other at the Bull & Mouth and after they are set up that he give publick notice of them at the next mens meeting that y^e keys of the said Boxes be kept by William Mackett & Eskeill Wouley for Devonshire House and John Dew and John Osgood for the Bull & Mouth" (ms. in D). The Morning Meeting minutes give evidence of the active service of John and Susanna Dew. John Dew had, apparently, been released from prison a short time before he appears in the Itinerary Journal. At the settlement of the Meeting for Sufferings in June, 1676, Dew was a representative, with Philip Ford, of Friends of Herefordshire and Shropshire (ms. in D). His wife had, with others, the care of prisoners in the Fleet (Sundry Ancient Epistles, p. 40).

- 107 2 Josiah Ellis (c. 1631—1713) was described as a "salesman" in the Register of his marriage with Sarah Sawyer, widow, in 1675, at the Bull and Mouth. "Sarah Sawyer's meeting house" was well known in the early days in London. It was situate in Rose and Rainbow Court in Alderagate Street (London Friends' Meetings, p. 196). Ellis's house was at the sign of the Golden Key at the Savoy (p. 191). Sarah Ellis died in 1696, aged "about fifty," and in 1697 Josiah Ellis married Mary, widow of Thomas Wilcox, of the Savoy. Records of visits by Fox are the only notices of Ellis in the Itinerary Journal.

Jnl. F. H. S. v. 178.

From the West G. Fox frequently went by water and landed at "Salisbury Change" (pp. 134, 148, 169) in order to visit Josiah Ellis at the Savoy. Is this landing-place the same as described in Wheatley's Peppysiana, 1899, p. 204: "Ivy Lane was the landing-place for the New Exchange which was built on the site of the gardens of Durham House and for Salisbury House, which stood on the site of the Hotel Cecil"? Another landing-place mentioned is "Cupit Stairs" on the South side (p. 118). Fox went frequently by water both along and across the Thames—along to Ratcliff in the East (pp. 113, 136, 138) and Hammersmith, Chiswick, Mortlake, Putney, in the West, and across the river to the Birkets' house, Horslydown, Lambeth. See Thames, The, in Index.

Boats were always ready for hire at the various landing-stages on the Thames, but, with the more frequent use of road-transportation, the river water-men lost much of their custom. John Taylor (1580—1633), the Water Poet, was a great opponent of coaches—"this is a rattling, rowling and rambling age. The World runs on wheels," he exclaimed. London Bridge alone spanned the river and it was not usual for boats to pass through its narrow arches. The two Cities of London and Westminster lay along the northern bank of the river, connected by the Strand, with a narrow inhabited hinterland, bound, as to London, by the City walls.

Wheatley, Diary of Samuel Pepys.

- 107 3 Philip Ford (c. 1631—1701/2) lived at the sign of the Hood and Scarf in Bow Lane, Chancery. At the Bull and Mouth, 24 viii. 1672, he married Bridget Gossell. There were two daughters, Bridget and Ann, a son, Philip, who died, and another Philip, born 1679. At the first settlement of the Meeting for Sufferings, in 1676, Ford was appointed to represent Herefordshire and Shropshire Friends (ms. in D). A letter from Fox to Penn, from Worcester Prison in 1678, is sent to the care of Philip Ford (copy in D), as also a letter from Thomas Ellis to George Fox in 1685 (original in D). See Jnl. F. H. S. vi. vii.). Fox visited Ford, and dined with him alone on one occasion, and on another with several other Friends. In 1685 and 1686 Ford was one of several London Friends appointed by Y.M. to receive moneys collected for captive and suffering Friends. He wrote A Vindication of William Penn, Proprietary of Pennsylvania, from the late Aspersions spread abroad on purpose to Defame him, which was printed in folio in 1683. At the close of a letter from William Penn, reprinted in Narratives of Early Pennsylvania, etc., edited by Albert Cook Myers and published in 1912, we read: "Whoever are desirous to be concern'd with me in this Province, they may be treated with and further satisfied at Philip Fords in Bow Lane in Chopside and at Thomas Rudyards or Benjamin Clarke in George Yard in Lumbard-street" (p. 215). There is this editorial note: "Philip Ford, Penn's steward, who later brought the Founder into financial difficulties." (For a review of this book see Jnl. F. H. S. ix, 157.)

The trouble between William Penn and his agent first came about with Ford's loan to Penn in 1689 of £2800. J. W. Graham in his chapter on "The Fords" in his William Penn, 1917, writes: "Penn's affairs had for many years been in the hands of Philip Ford, a Friend of Bristol, as lawyer and land agent. This man, who had a good reputation and manner, had developed into a first-class roguist... In 1702 Philip Ford died. Immediately his widow, Bridget, a terror of a woman, though always confined to her bed, and her son Philip [b. 1679], who did what she told him, presented her husband's astonished employer with an account for £14,000, for immediate payment, on pain of losing his whole property in Pennsylvania" (p. 291). Penn had been for eleven months in a debtors' prison, when in December, 1708, the matter was settled, and he was liberated. We do not find any connection between Philip Ford and Bristol. In London Friends' Meetings there is a notice of a long-standing case of appeal to the Six Weeks Meeting between Philip Ford and Samuel Waldenfield in 1685 and between Ford and Nathaniel Marlow in 1699 (p. 120, see also p. 113).

Bridget Ford (c. 1636—1710) was among the prominent women Friends of London. She wrote a Testimony respecting Anne Whitehead in 1696 (148. 2), and signed, with other women, a letter to Margaret Fox in 1695 (179. 1). A lurid light is thrown upon her subsequent career and that of Philip, Junr., in J. W. Graham's William Penn, chap. xxii. She was a daughter of Henry Osnell, of London and Shropshire.

- 107 4 We have not been able to discover any information touching Edward Dyhay. He appears as Dylay on p. 142; Fox saw him in his shop.
- 108 1 John Bowron appears in vol. ii. p. 476.
- 108 2 For a brief sketch of the life of Leonard Fell see vol. i. p. 409; also Swarth. Account Book, p. 534. There are many references to Fell in vol. ii. and in Swarth. Account Book. As with many others in the Itinerary Journal who come suddenly upon the scene and as suddenly disappear, Fell meets us firstly in Samuel Boulton's shop (p. 108), in 1685, and then again in 1687 in a coach with Fox going out to Edward Mann's (p. 178). He accompanied Fox on his journey South from Swarthmoor in 1677 (pp. 226—231). He died in 1701 not 1699.
- 108 3 In the Friends' meetinghouse at Nottingham there is preserved a letter written by George Fox "To Suffering Friends," dated 31 iii. 1685, which was, no doubt, one result of the work of his secretaries on this Sunday.
- 108 4 Andrew Sowle (1628—1686) was a son of Francis Sowle, of the parish of St Sepulchre's, Holborn. He was apprenticed to Ruth Raworth for seven years from the 6th July, 1646 (Jnl. F. H. S. iv. 4). He practised his art in Devonshire New Buildings, at the Crooked Billet in Holywell Lane, Shoreditch, and at the Three Keys in Nag's Head Court, Gracechurch Street. Many seizures were made by the authorities of paper, printing presses, type, etc. He married Jane — and had two daughters, Elizabeth, who married, in 1685, William Bradford (c. 1658—1732), who became Friends' printer in the American colonies, and

- 108 5 Pieter Hendricks, a native of Amsterdam, was one of the principal Friends in Holland. He was imprisoned at Leyden in 1661. His trade was button-making. His wife, Elisabeth, and he were the authors of pamphlets in Dutch (Smith, Conts.). Several of Fox's letters to P. Hendricks are given in Ell. Text (ii. 328, 483, 486). His wife's preaching was made the subject of Fox's letter to the Duke of Holstein (ibid. ii. 404 and see note 95. 2). He accompanied Fox in part of his tour in Holland in 1677.

- 108 6 Dr William I. Hull, of Swarthmore College, Pa., an authority on Dutch Quakerism and a writer of a history of Friends in Holland (still, also! in manuscript), thinks that this curious name Mungumtongrum represents Barend van Tongeren, who planned to attend London Y.M. in 1685 with Pieter Hendricks (108. 5). "Barend van Tongeren was evidently one of the wheel-horses of the Amsterdam Y.M. for many years." His name is found at the foot of various documents from 1676 to 1698. He was one of the six trustees appointed to care for the fund of £364 left by Gertrude Diricks (Nieson), 11 vii. 1689. He is quoted by J. R. Markon in a controversial pamphlet against the Friends, published in Amsterdam in 1684, as having advised the Friends to "answer a fool according to his folly"; he is then charged with having committed "an even greater folly," and the Friends are quoted as replying (among many other things): "As our dear and worthy Friend, Barend van Tongeren, says, to our strength and comfort: 'Whatever we bind on earth is bound in heaven, and whatever we loose on earth is loosed in heaven'!"

Fell-Smith, Steven Crisp, 1892, pp. 15, 24.

- 109 1 William Taylby (Tilby—he signs himself Taylby in original ms. in D) lived in the district of "Loonards, Eastcheap." In 1672 he signed, with other Friends, A Salutation or Testimony of True and brotherly Love (Gilbert Latey, p. 89). William Taylby, "Clement Danes, co. of Middx, Tailor," married Elizabeth Hayland in 1668.

- 109 2 This is the first notice in the Itinerary Journal of a Yearly Meeting (1685), but we know from the Ell. Text that George Fox was present at the Y.M. in 1681, 1683 and 1684. For reference to the Y.M. of 1686 see 142. 3, for 1687 see 176. 1, for 1689 see 195. 2, 3, and for 1690 see 210. 1. The Y.M. of 1688 is mentioned in Ell. Text (ii. 473). These accounts add freshness to the official records contained in the minutes of proceedings preserved in D. The 1685 Y.M. was held when the country was disturbed by the Monmouth Rebellion and Fox was much concerned for the safety of Friends who came up (Ell. Text, ii. 409). The Y.M. of 1677 is referred to in the Haistead Diary (p. 233), also Y.M. 1678 (p. 270).

In 1678 Fox was at Swarthmoor and wrote a letter to the Y.M.; in 1680 he was in attendance (Ell. Text, ii. 337, 345).

- 110 1 Daniel Wharley (Whirley) was a woollen-draper in George Yard. In 1686 he married Mary, the only daughter of Isaac and Mary Penington, and so became brother-in-law to William Penn. Mary Wharley died in 1728 (Penney, Experiences in the Life of Mary Penington, 1911, p. 63 and genealogical table). Daniel Wharley's house and shop being but across the road from the meetinghouse and Chamber, George Fox often resorted thither and met William Penn and other Friends in both the shop and house, at times remaining to the midday meal. Wharley's death took place 3 ii. 1781 at his country home and his burial at Jordans.

There is a reference in Jnl. F. H. S. i. 33 to "Daniel and Sarah Wharley (of Isaac Peningtons family)," present at a wedding at the Bull and Mouth in December, 1686.

- 110 2 In the Ed. Text, after giving a letter, 11 iv. 1685, "to caution all to keep out of the spirit of the world," we read: "Several other letters also I wrote at this time to Friends in divers foreign countries" (ii. 411). We find from his Collection of Epistles that on the tenth he wrote to Friends in Holland and in the same month to Pennsylvania (Register of George Fox's Letters, ms. in D).

- 111 1 For Charles Lloyd, Junr., see vol. ii. p. 407. The statement that his son, Charles 3rd, was born while both parents were in prison has been questioned, though it appears in numerous books relating to the family. The date of the birth is given as 18th August, 1682 (Lowe, Farm and its Inhabitants, 1883, p. 12), and Bease states that the apprehension of Lloyd took place in the middle of December, 1682 (Sus. i. 749). See The Quaker Seekers of Wales: A Story of the Lloyds of Dolobran, told by Anna R. Thomas, of Baltimore, Md., and published 1924. It is more probable that the second son, Sampson (1684—1724), was born while his parents were in some measure of imprisonment.

- 111 2 As with others mentioned Richard Davies (1635—1707/8) suddenly appears and disappears without any hint of the circumstances surrounding his appearance. Davies was a hatter of Cloddiau Cochbin, near Welshpool, Montgomeryshire, and was one of the most interesting characters of early Quakerism. His autobiography entitled An Account of the Convincement, Exercises, Services and Travels... of Richard Davies, first published in 1710, has been reprinted about a dozen times, and there are numerous references to him in literature of various periods. He was apprenticed to a felt-maker at Llanfair and later, in 1658/9, he settled in London as a felt-maker and in 1659 he married Tace — (c. 1618—1705), "at Humphrey Bates's house, at the sign of the Snail, in Tower Street in the morning and in the afternoon at Widow Webb's in Horselydown" (Jnl. F. H. S. xiii. 169). There was a daughter, Tace, who married Jacob Endon, of Welshpool. Davies returned later to Welshpool. It was at his instigation that, in 1681, the Y.M. for Wales (including Monmouth and Salop) was set up. It functioned from 1682 to 1797 (ibid. x. 82). For his association with Counsellor Corbett see vol. ii. p. 480. He was friendly also with other prominent people in his native county and was able to bring about some damping of the fires of persecution. Once, on meeting Lord Herbert of Cheshire, the latter asked who he was and was told: "A Quaker, and Haberdasher of Hats," to which Lord Herbert replied: "Oh! I thought he was such an One, he keeps his Hat so fast upon the Black" (Account, p. 96).

- 111 4 This was, probably, John Edridge, citizen and haberdashier, son of Thomas Edridge, of Buntingford, in Hertfordshire. In 1683 he married Constance Moore, of Love Lane, distiller, widow of Francis Moore. For three years in succession, 1686, 1687, 1688, he was appointed by Y.M. to inspect charitable accounts. For his connection with West Jersey see Penna. Mag. v.

There was another John Edridge, a tanner, of Ratcliff M.M.
f. i. 482, 484; First-days Meetings.

- 111 5 For Bridget Austill see vol. ii, p. 491. Her school was at South Street in North Middlesex (p. 194) and was removed to Tottenham High Cross circa 1689 (p. 219). There was an interesting colony of Friends at South Street (now called Southgate, see pp. 187, 194).

- 112 1 James Harding, "a young man, well respected, was banished to Jamaica [in 1685] with Edward Brush [152. 1] and one other [Robert Hayes].... James Harding whilst he abode there, took to wife a young woman who before they left this island, was delivered of three daughters at a birth, all of which were brought alive to England well and in health" (Crouch, Posthuma Christiana, 1712, p. 82). But the return of Harding was longer delayed than implied by Crouch, for in July, 1685, when visiting Fox at Ford Green, he is still "of Jamaica," and in the same year, in a letter quoted by John Boweter, Harding writes of "our island" (ms. in D.; see vol. ii, p. 408).

There was a John Harding, living on the borders of Essex, who had a meeting at his house, frequently attended by Fox and other Friends. See Ell. Text, ii. 456. There are references in London Friends' Meetings to a David Harding who held meetings at his house at Harold's Wood (pp. 278, 280).

- 112 2 Margaret Sefton-Jones found recently in the British Museum (Add. mss. 19408) a certificate of the marriage at the Bull and Mouth, 17 vi. 1682, of Michael Russell, citizen and weaver, of London, son of Michael Russell, late of Aylesbury, and Mary, daughter of Thomas Forster (81. 4), late of Middlesex. Among the signatories to this marriage were Gulielma Maria Penn, George and Anne Whitehead and other well-known Friends. This was doubtless the Friend, living in White Hart Court, to whose house Fox often went after a meeting at Gracechurch Street and dined, and one Sunday, "being Weary he Lay downe to Rest him upon their Couch" (p. 183). His wife and sister are mentioned on p. 165. Michael Russell, with others, signed a petition to the House of Commons on the subject of oaths, 1685. The Registers record the sudden death in 1702 of M. Russell, of White Hart Court, parish of Allhallows, Lombard Street, citizen and weaver, of apoplexy at the age of fifty-four. There is a full account of his death in Gracechurch Street meetinghouse, in Quaker Post-Boy, 1910, pp. 187, 188.

There was a Michael Russell (1674—1747), of the same parish of Allhallows, whose daughter Mary married Peter Collinson (Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 178).

- 112 3 There is a considerable account of John Field, the younger, in vol. ii, p. 488, and hints of others of the same name. He was a schoolmaster and had rooms over the meetinghouse at the Bull and Mouth, about 1671 (London Friends' Meetings, pp. 143, 360). In 1678 John Field "of the parish of Ann and Agnes Aldersgate" was prosecuted for keeping school without a licence (Suff. i. 443) and was committed to Ludgate Prison. Apparently Elizabeth Fry, who married Richard Marchant in 1682, had been an assistant in the school (Jnl. F. H. S. viii. 82). J. F. married Margery Saunders, of Shacklewell, in 1675, who died in 1700, aged 55. Field at this time is described as "haberdasher." In 1705 he married Mary Wyan, widow, as "citizen and blacksmith," of George Yard. In 1706 his daughter Mary married Thomas Crawley, and became the mother of Sarah Crawley (1717—1799) the noted Minister for sixty years. See Jnl. F. H. S. xii. 13 n. There is facsimile of his signature, "John Field jun.," reproduced Jnl. F. H. S. v. 202, anno 1680. He was a great preacher as well as writer (First-days Meetings).

John Field, Senr., died in 1682, aged sixty-seven.

- 112 4 The marriage of Thomas Bowls, proposals for which were before Enfield M.M. 29 v. 1685, "to the Glading of fth there generally," has not been found in the Registers of London and Middlesex.

- 113 1 This was probably Elizabeth Groom (c. 1626—1703), widow of Samuel Groom, the elder, of Limehouse, mariner.

- 114 1 Roger Longworth (c. 1630—1687) was born at Longworth, Bolton, Lancs. In pursuit of his labours as a Minister "he passed six times through Holland, also part of Germany, five times through Ireland, once through part of Scotland, twice at Barbadoes, once through New England and Virginia, twice in Maryland and the Jerseys, and twice in Pennsylvania; having travelled by land above 20,000 miles and by water not much less" (Phila. Memorials, 1824, p. 11). In Brown's History of Great and Little Bolton, 1824—5, we read a story told to the author, but which the author could hardly have believed, "of a troublesome fellow of a Quaker, named Roger Longworth, who used to tell his neighbours of their faults, and how they, not liking him, got rid of him. A chap got secretly into Roger's shippoon and hid himself in a hoghead that lay there. When Roger came in the evening to fodder his cattle, the man exclaimed in a hollow voice, 'Stay wet here, but go thou and all that belongeth to thee, to America.' And taking it as a solemn warning, Roger soon after sold off and departed." Longworth went to America in 1684 and visited Europe in 1685—1687 ("List of Friends Crossing the Atlantic on Religious Visits," ms. in D). His visit to Holland, in or about 1675, was not much of a success—in a letter printed in Steven Crisp and his Correspondents we read: "His labours to enforce on them silent meetings are unavailing.... They love the works of Jacob Behme, whereas Roger says though a candle was lighted in him at the beginning yet he hunted before the Lord, and those who have Behme's books are puffed up in their knowledge" (p. 36).

- 114 2 John Casimir (c. 1634—1709) was of Pearl Street, Spitalfields. He was interested in Friends on the European Continent. Fox met at his house some German Friends who were going to Pennsylvania. Fell-Smith, Steven Crisp, 1892, p. 17.

The Chief Justice was George Jeffreys (1648—1689), who conducted "the bloody Assizes," 1685. "As a criminal judge he was notorious for his brutality" (D. N. B.). Jeffreys cleared Richard Vickris (86, 1) of his sentence of death, on recording which Whiting exclaims: "Few so bad but they may do some good Acts" (Memoirs, p. 120).

- 115 2 Mariabella Farmborough (1628—1708) was a native of Warminster, in Wiltshire. She married, c. 1682, Thomas Farmborough, of London. Her conviction of the Quaker way of life and thought took place about the year 1682. "She was a tender & servicable woman...and in hir old age (by y^e hardships she met in prison &c) she was afflicted with lamenesse" (Howard, Eliot Papers, 1894, ii. 3). Despite her physical disability, requiring much resting at home, she attended the women's meeting having care of the poor and would visit, with Mary Elson, the sick and afflicted "tho' it was with crutches." Her lamenesse, however, was cured when she was nearly eighty years of age. She suffered imprisonment in Newgate (Bristol) and Newgate (London). In the latter place, in 1694, "she lay in a little nasty place they called y^e Ladys hole, where condemned persons lay." Her daughter of the same name (p. 136) married Peter Briggs (1698—1717) and the unusual name Mariabella has descended through nine generations to the present time in the Eliot, Howard, Fry and Lloyd families (Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 185).

- 115 3 Edward Brooks (c. 1618—1698) resided in the parish of "Giles in the Fields, Mdx." at his marriage with Martha Hill in 1665. He was a grocer and in 1670 had shop goods taken away to the value of £7 for fines for meeting at Westminster.

- 115 4 William Beech (c. 1647—1725), wine-cooper, lived in the parish of St Martin's in the Fields and was visited by Fox on several occasions—once when the former was sick (p. 166). In 1708 John Vaughton and he were appointed "to search the books and papers of our ancient Friends & brethren and to mark such as may be suitable to read to our children and servants" (London Friends' Meetings, p. 253). He was buried in Long Acre Burialground, the cause of death being "Gravel & Stone."

See vol. ii. pp. 299, 453.

- 115 5 There were several Friends of the name of Kirton living in and around London. Richard Kirton and John Kirton (124, 8) were resident at Kensington Gravel Pits. William Kirton (—1706), son of Richard and Sarah, of West Town, in the parish of Kensington, received some notice in Piety Promoted. Richard Kirton departed this life in 1718, aged 78, "by being ridden over when crossing the road."

- 115 1 In the Diary of John Kelsall (c. 1683—1743), of Wales, under date of 1727, there is a reference to Walter Newberry, of Fenchurch Street (mn. in D, vol. iv. p. 213*). The name appears in the Book of Ministering Friends, 1 mo. 24, 1728/3 (Jnl. F. H. S. i. 25).

There was a Walter Newberry of colonial fame. Query the name. See Jnl. F. H. S. xii. 176, 177; Quakers in American Colonies, 1911.

The Newberry family is included among the "highest families" of English Friends in the middle of the eighteenth century (Jnl. F. H. S. xix. 28).

- 110 2 Edward Haistwell (c. 1658—1708/9) was a son of Thomas Haistwell, of Orton, Co. Westmorland, and a merchant living in Scotts Yard, 84 Mary Bothaw, Cannon Street. In 1687 he married Rachel Mareb, daughter of Richard Marsh, of London. He was employed by George Fox as an amanuensis from March, 1677, to June, 1678. The Itinerary Journal records several visits to Scotts Yard and on one occasion Fox, with Lower, Parker and Robinson, dined at his house (p. 154, where however there is some correction in the ms.). In 1686/8 a son was born to E. and R. Haistwell and named Edward. It was probably this son whose ex-libris book-plate was offered for sale in a catalogue sent out by Puttick in 1911—"Edward Haistwell of the Middle Temple, 1718." "On 16 January, 1744, died Edw: Haistwell, Esq., a Director of the S.S. Company" (Gent's Magazine); in 1781, "Mr Benjamin Bartlett, Dr J. C. Lettsom and Edward Haistwell, Esq., were admitted Fellows of the Society of Antiquaries" (Gent's Magazine, quoted Jnl. F. H. S. xiii.).

In the will of Richard Marsh (ms. in D), dated 20 November, 1703, are the following bequests: "To my two grandchildren Rachel Jones and Edward Haistwell £1000 apiece at Marriage or 21; to Thomas Haistwell and Anthony Haistwell £10 apiece; to every servant living with my son and daughter Haistwell at my decease 40/s apiece; the residuum to my daughter Rachel Haistwell." Overseers of the will included "Edward Haistwell my son in law." Edward Haistwell, Senr., died 4 xi. 1708/9, aged 50, and was buried in Schoolhouse Lane, Ratcliff.

- 116 3 Richard Chaire lived at Winchmore Hill, North Middlesex. He was among "suffering Friends" mentioned by Whitehead in his Christian Progress, anno 1686 (pp. 594, 595). He was frequently visited by Fox when in the neighbourhood attending the Winchmore Hill meeting. At his marriage with Mary Lover, in 1680, he is styled a blacksmith.

- 110 4 For William Bingley see vol. ii. p. 496, and Jnl. F. H. S. v. vi. x. John Whiting records that when in Bristol, "going to the Meeting at the Friars in the afternoon, there was William Bingley standing on the Floor, in the middle of the Meeting, declaring to Friends, the Galleries being all broke down and not then repaired; but the Meeting was quiet at that time" (Memoirs, p. 92). Several pamphlets written by Bingley are noted in Smith, Cats.

Christian Progress, pp. 594, 595, 647, 659.

- 117 1 Benjamin Lindley (—1723), son of Isaac Lindley, of York (bapt. 1624, died 1705 at Yarm), lived at Yarm, N.R. Yorkshire. He was the author of several books, 1678 to 1713. The book referred to is doubtless Truth Exalted... in Answer to... Edward Nightingale, Thomas Dennison, John Winnard and John Cox, 1685. The Preface to this 28-page pamphlet is signed by Isaac Lindley and others; his son's name does not appear. See next note, and 228. i.

- 117 2 There is a considerable account of the Separation in York connected with the names of Edward Nightingale, John Cox, John Hall, and others, in Second Period, pp. 475—478. See also vol. ii. p. 496. The Separation arose in 1682 over the question of re-marriage within a year; later, according to Smith, Cata. i. 457, it "was occasioned by these individuals taking offence because Friends met together twice on First day."

- 117 3 Hannah Marshall was the wife of Charles Marshall (1637—1698). They lived in Bristol until the latter was committed to the Fleet Prison, when the family removed to London, c. 1693, and settled in Aldersgate Street.

Charles Marshall was convinced during the Camm and Audland mission to Bristol in 1654. In his turn he was the means of influencing John Whiting of Somerset (1656—1722). Whiting wrote a Testimony to Marshall in 1703. He was one of the ninety-four Friends who signed the marriage certificate of George Fox and Margaret Fell in 1669 and he signed with others the Testimony to George Fox prepared by the Morning Meeting, 26 xi. 1690/91. Of his funeral, 17 ix. 1698, it is said: "It is thought to be the greatest appearance of Friends at his buriall [at Bunhill Fields] as of any yet, exceeding in number either G. F's, S. C. or F. S." (G. Fox, Stephen Cripp, Francis Stamper). See Jnl. F. H. S. viii. 8, quoting Quaker Post-Bag, 1910, p. 146.

A Testimony to the religious character of Charles Marshall was signed, in 1703, by the following Friends mentioned in the Itinerary Journal: John Field, John Vaughton, John Butcher, Edward Bourne, John Bowster, Theodor Eccleston and Samuel Waldenfield.

- 118 1 George Ayres (c. 1620—1697), of East Smithfield, was a haberdasher of hate. He appears to have married two widows in quick succession, Ann Rowles, of Bishopsgate, 23 v. 1685, and Mary Bowman, 1689. It may have been a bridal visit that Fox and his three companions intended to pay; the bridegroom not being at home, the bride provided dinner for the callers and they remained some time at the house.

- 118 2 This epistle is given in Ell. Text, ii. 415—417, dated 15th of Seventh Month, 1685, and introduced by the words: "Finding my health much impaired for the want of fresh air, I went to Charles Bathurst's country-house at Epping Forest, where I stayed a few days."

- 118 3 Information respecting James Matthews is not forthcoming, save that he lived at Plaistow, East of London City. See 147. 1.

- 118 1 Lady Lawson is mentioned twice in the Itinerary Journal. In vii. 1685 she suddenly appears in a coach with Fox travelling from James Matthews's at Plaistow to Charles Bathurst's house "upon the forest a Mile from Wanstead." In v. 1687 Fox called "at Lady Lawsons & another fr^d house" and afterwards went to meeting at Wanstead. The meeting concluded, he returned to Lady Lawson's and many Friends came to him there, and then he returned to Goosey's (p. 181). Lady Lawson was, in all probability, Isabella, daughter of William Jefferson, of Whitty, who became the wife and widow of Sir John Lawson, vice-admiral of the fleet, who died in 1685. Both Sir John and his Lady were of Yorkshire origin, and there is no intimation of any connection with Essex in either Pepys's Diary or D. N. B. But in W. A. Shaw's Knights of England, 1906, ii. 231, we read that on the 24th September, 1680, "John Lawson, vice-admiral, of Ashford, Essex" was knighted.

A further confirmation of the association of the Lawsons with Essex is to be found in the State Papers Domestic. In Calendar, 1663—4, p. 374, there is a letter from Stephen Furly, of Colchester, stating that he had been recommended for a favour by Sir J. Lawson; and in the volume for 1658—9, p. 351, "John Lawson" is mentioned among "modderst men" in Essex. Sir John Lawson was a naval colleague of Sir William Penn, who lived at Wanstead, and in 1653 Lawson succeeded Penn as vice-admiral of the fleet. Parliament was moved to present gold chains, worth £100 each, to both Penn and Lawson as a mark of favour for their services against the Dutch. In 1654 there is a record in S. P. D. of the illness of both John Lawson and his wife. On the 4th June, 1655, during the Dutch war, Sir John damaged his knee, and on the 29th June, 1655, he died. Shortly after, from Wanstead, a copy of the will was sent to London—"her ladyship hopes that respect for her late husband will encourage kindness to the fatherless." Lawson had been an Anabaptist, and also was in sympathy with Fifth Monarchism, hence we may judge that his Lady would be in sympathy with Nonconformity and interested in Quakerism. She had three daughters, of one of whom Pepys wrote, January 7, 1663/4: "A very pretty lady and of good deportment; with looking upon whom I was greatly pleased" (see also Jan. 23, 1662/3, Aug. 29, 1668—"Mr Norton that married Sir J. Lawson's daughter is dead....She is in a condition to help her mother, who needs it"). The date of the death of Lady Lawson does not appear, nor have we found further notice of her in quakeriana.

- 120 1 Thomas Whitehead (—1691) lived at South Cadbury and Bruton, in Somersetshire. In 1664 he married Jane Waugh (d. 1674), one of the two sisters who were servants in the Camm household at Preston Patrick, Westmorland. See vol. ii. p. 467.

- 122 1 Henry Snooke (c. 1637—1706) was of the parish of St Olaves, Southwark. In 1668 he married Rebekah Field, of Southwark, at Horslydown. He belonged to the Horslydown Meeting and frequently acted on its behalf. Ellis Hoskee (233. 1) left him a sum of money by his will and to Snooke was handed a balance of money due to Hoskee at his death in 1691 (Jnl. F. H. S. i. 21, 22).

- 122 2 Margaret Meakens (c. 1622—1692) was the wife of John Meakens (c. 1622—1694), dyer, of Cripplegate. Their daughter Mary married James Strutt (100. 2) and their daughter Martha married William Dry (171. 1). Margaret was a member of the Six Weeks Meeting in 1671. She was one of the signatories to A Testimony to Young People, sent out in 1685 by the Women's Meeting at the Bull and Mouth. She wrote a Testimony to Anne Whitehead in 1686. For her action in remaining in town during the Great Plague see Jnl. F. H. S. x. 10. George Fox wrote a letter to the Women's Meeting in London, dated from Swarthmoor, 23 ii. 1676 (the same date as that of a very long letter to the Y.M., printed Ell. Text, ii. 236 ff.), and addressed to Rebecca Travers, Mary Elean, Anne Travers, Mary [Marg.] Meakens, Jane Woodcock, Anne Whitehead and Martha Fisher.

- 122 3 John Staploe (c. 1638—1717) was of "near the Three Cups, further end of Aldersgate Street" in 1666 and at the Harrow in the same street in 1682. He was a member of Peel M.M. and active in its administration. In 1696 he married Grace Russell. Of their daughter, Anne Mercy (d. 1700), there is a short life-history in Piety Promoted. The names of other children appear in the Marriage Register. Grace Staploe died in child-bed in 1691, aged 44.

The name Hoster Staploe appears on the minutes of Peal M.M. anno 1712.

Sundry Ancient Epistles, pp. 35, 40, 41, 178; Kelsall, Diaries; Christian Progress, p. 647.

- 122 4 Nicholas Cooper may have been connected in some way with the Meakens family (122. 2). John Meakens named his son-in-law Edward Cooper and his grandson John Cooper executors of his will (Jnl. F. H. S. x. 18). The London Registers record the death of Nicholas Cooper, of St John Street, in 1701, who died "of a fever & fits," aged seventy-two years.

- 123 1 No further information is at hand respecting John Cullit or his wife, of the Bull's Head Tavern, at Charing Cross. Other Friends were inn-keepers—see London Friends' Meetings, p. 127 and Index to this volume.

- 123 2 Nathaniel Wilmer (c. 1650—c. 1711) was a son of Capt. Nathaniel Wilmer, citizen and armourer (1621—1654) and of Constance Sherwood, daughter of Edward and Constance Sherwood, of West Hendred, Berks. Constance Wilmer and her sons John (1647—1723) and Nathaniel joined Friends. Nathaniel was a merchant and ship-owner and evidently a prosperous man. Apparently he never married. He lived in the neighbourhood of the Chamber and Fox was several times at his house—once (p. 177) with William Penn "a great many Country friends," all of whom appear to have dined there! In 1700 the City M.M. issued a Testimony against Wilmer "for his conversation being a scandal to Friends and a great hurt to his own soul, and denying his fellowship with them." He appears to have died on board ship.

Christian Progress, p. 595; Foster and Green, History of the Wilmer Family, 1888; Jnl. F. H. S. xi.; Trans. Cong. Hist. Soc. iv.

Constance (Sherwood) Wilmer removed to Ireland after her husband's death. She wrote a letter to Archbishop Fuller in 1681, which was printed (copy in D). In 1666 she married Thomas Starkey, son of George and Ann Starkey, of Wrenbury, Cheshire. They died c. 1691, and were buried at Mountroth (minutes of Mountmellick M.M., per favour of William R. Wigham, registrar, Dublin, 1924).

- 123 3 Peter Prince (—1694) lived at Hammersmith. The name was written Price (p. 137) and then the n was inserted—the writer was probably thinking of Peter Price, the old man who is mentioned in vols. i and ii. Peter Prince built Stone Dean in the Jordans district of Bucks in 1691 (Jnl. F. H. S. iv. 138); the house was, later, occupied by his niece, Rebekah Butterfield, and her husband, Abraham Butterfield, and their son, Prince Butterfield.

The Diary of Rebekah Butterfield (ms. in D); Littleboy, Jordans, 1930, pp. 17, 23; Bulletin F. H. S. Phila. ix. 101, 102.

In 1684, at the Jordans meetinghouse there was a marriage of Peter Prince, son of Peter and Mary Prince, citizen and tallow-chandler, of London, and Mary Odingsells, of "Peters Chalfont." The name Mary Odingsells appears among those of women Friends in Bucks in 1678 (Jnl. F. H. S. vii. 84).

- 123 4 On the 22nd of Eighth Month, 1685, a little company of Friends was prospecting for a suitable site for a "Womens School." They visited Chiswick, and then called on Peter Prince at Hammersmith. After a rest they went to see the house where William Loddington (c. 1636—1711) had kept school, and after dining at the Goat Inn, they separated. In

A list of schools to be found in the Y.M. Minutes, under date 1691, is a school "near Watford for boys W^m Loddington M^r" (Jnl. F. H. S. xiii. 87). Loddington may have moved his school thither from the Hammersmith district. Loddington, inter alia, signed a fire-brief, dated at the Q.M. at Weston Turville in Bucks, 29 iv. 1692 (ms. in D in handwriting of Thomas Ellwood, printed in Jnl. F. H. S. iii. 111). He was appointed with others to draw up some account of the rise of Friends in Hertfordshire, ix. 1704 (F. P. T. p. 342). Joseph Smith states that Loddington had been a Baptist preacher (Cuts.). He wrote various short pieces, 1674—95, on emigration to the English Plantations, on Women's Meetings and marriage, on tithes, etc. (ibid.).

- 123 5 Widow Symmons has not been definitely identified. There was a Mary Simmons, widow, of Wheeler Street, who died 3 xii. 1721, aged seventy, noted in the Burial Registers, but it appears as though the widow here visited was living in the West and not the East.
- 124 1 This was, presumably, William Kemp, the elder (c. 1628—1706). He had a son of the same name who predeceased his father (c. 1657—1706). Both resided in Chelsea. Others of the same name, Kemp, resided in or near London.
- 124 8 John Kirton (c. 1650—1715) lived at "Kensington Gravel Pitte." His brothers were Richard (115. 5) and William. Damaris Kirton (388. 7), widow of John, died in 1716, aged 62. Patrick Livingstone (1634—1694) died at John Kirton's house (Whiting, Memoirs, p. 234).
- 125 1 John Thorp (c. 1637—1712) appears to have lived in the parish of St Bartholomew the Great, Smithfield, and been a member of Peel M.M. Bease tells us that in 1670 he was badly injured by a soldier when attending Peel meeting, so much so that his life was despaired of. He appears in the Itinerary Journal shortly after liberation from prison. In 1672 he signed, with others, A Salutation of...brotherly Love (Gilbert Latey, 1707, p. 65).
- 126 1 Bethia Rous (1666—) was the eldest surviving daughter of John and Margaret Rous. She married David English, of Pontefract, Yorkshire, in 1692, and had, inter alia, a son Nathaniel, a quo Heyland, of Sheffield and Waterford.
Webb, Fells of Swarthmoor Hall, 1865; Jnl. F. H. S. xii.; Swarth Account Book.
- 127 1 John Fielder (c. 1621—1677) and Anne Fielder (d. 1688), of Kingston-on-Thames, were prominent Friends and held a meeting at their house. This meeting being near Hampton Court, its influence was felt in the Protector's household (Gilbert Latey, 1707, p. 12; Beginnings, p. 441). Latey (87. 1) was their son-in-law. John Fielder was liberated from the King's Bench Prison by the "General Pardon" of 1672. By business he was a mealman.

- 127 2 For William Mucklow see vol. ii. p. 448.
- 127 3 The name of Christopher Ward (c. 1611—1696), of Hammersmith, is mentioned but once in the Itinerary Journal, when visited by Fox among other Friends of the district in which he lived.
- 126 1 The name of Richard Whitpain (c. 1631—1689) occurs thrice in the Itinerary Journal (pp. 126, 136, 137). There are records of his sufferings for conscience sake from 1690 to 1696. He was liberated, after a year and nine months' incarceration, on 2nd June, 1696 (Suff. i. 482), but he could not have been in close confinement as, apparently, he was available for consultation in April of that year (pp. 136, 137). His burial certificate describes him of "Leonard, Eastchip, Butcher."

- 129 1 Ell. Text states: "I continued at London till the latter end of the 11th month; save that I went to visit an ancient Friend at Bethnal Green, with whom I tarried three or four days" (ii. 419). A long writing on the "backsliding Jews" came from his pen, as other papers alluded to in note 89. 3.

- 129 2 The great doctor from Poland has not re-appeared in any place in which we have searched for him.

A few days after the interview Fox wrote a letter to the King of Poland, John III, which is printed in Ell. Text, ii. 422. Previous letters are referred to in vol. ii. p. 466 and in Ell. Text, ii. 321. See Christliches Sendschreiben an Johannes III, König in Polen, etc. Amsterdam, Gedruckt vor Jacob Claus, Buchhändlern, 1678; Tercet. Text, p. 344.

- 130 1 For Samuel Waldenfield see vol. ii. p. 497. A sermon preached in 1693 appears in Concurrence and Unanimity, 1694, and in The Harmony of Divine and Heavenly Doctrines, 1696. A Testimony concerning him was issued by Enfield M.M. (mn. in D). See 184. 2.

- 131 1 For George Whitehead see vol. i. p. 421. In the Itinerary Journal and Haulwell Diary occur frequently the initials "G. W." which refer to either George Whitehead or George Watts. See 87. 1. For his trial with Thomas Burr see 179. 3. In connection with this trial Whitehead handed in a certificate signed by Common-council men, Church Wardens and others but not allowed to be read, as follows: "These are to certify all whom it may concern, That George Whitehead, of the Parish of St Butolph Bishopsgate, London, both lived in the same Parish for about Ten years last past, in Good Repute, and is esteemed a man of a Competent Estate, and hath Fined for all Offices in the Parish, save Church-Warden, and hath demeaned himself Peaceably in his conversation; and hath never been accounted nor reputed to be Jesuit or Papist, nor any way Popishly affected" (Due Order of Law and Justice Pleaded, 1680, p. 58; Christian Progress, p. 417). Sermons by him appear in Concurrence and Unanimity, 1711, and Harmony of Divine and Heavenly Doctrines, 1696. At his death in 1723 the first generation of Friends came to an end.

- 131 2 Walter Benthall (c. 1644-1709) is described in the record of his marriage: "Late of the Island of Barbadoes, merchant, son of John and Ann Benthall." He married Mercy Rodleston, of Enfield, at Devonshire House, 6 i. 1683/4. They lived in George Yard. Benthall was committed to Newgate, 3 ix. 1682, at the age of about eighteen, for refusing to take an oath but was liberated shortly afterwards. He was appointed by Y.M. 1689 and 1690 on a committee of finance. Mercy Benthall died in 1717, aged about sixty-five years. See 105. 2.

The excursion from London into the Enfield district is epitomized in Ell. Text, ii. 424—"After this I went to Enfield, where, and in the country around, several Friends had country-houses, among whom I tarried some time, visiting and being visited by Friends, and having meetings with them."

- 132 1 Cotton Oades (c. 1617—1697) was a member of Pool M.M. (Jnl. F. H. S. xii. 145—Cotton Gadd). His name occurs in connection with the closing scenes of the life of Matthew Hide, for many years a persecutor but finally repentant (Penn, Saul Smitten, 1675, p. 3). His death, "of age," took place in the parish of "Gules Cripplegate."
Sundry Ancient Epistles, pp. 36, 41 (ms. in D).
There was a Lydia Oades, a travelling Minister (c. 1617—1697), whose name is to be found in John Taylor, 1710, p. 29; Suff. (London section); and Jnl. F. H. S. x.
- 133 1 The Attorney General was Sir Robert Sawyer (1633—1692). He formed an important link in the chain of officials whose services were needed before Friends' liberation could be effected. In Latey's Life we find that the King's commission for liberation and remission of fines went to the Lord Treasurer, Attorney General, two Secretaries of State, King in Council, Lord Privy Seal, Clerk of the Pipe, "much time being taken in soliciting and attending" (p. 110). On one occasion, so urgent was the matter that G. Whitehead and John Edge, accompanied by Rowland Vaughan, travelled down to Sir Robert's country-house at Highclere in Hampshire, to obtain his signature to warrants prepared by Attorney Vaughan. The journey occupied 4 or 5 days (Christian Progress, p. 588, see also pp. 570, 587). Sir Robert vacated his position in 1687 (D. N. B.).
Gilbert Latey, 1707, pp. 112 ff.
- 133 2 The records of Elias Simms which have been brought to light refer mainly to his sufferings. In 1673 he had "3 Turkey-work-carpets" taken "for not sending out a man on y^e trained bands" and in 1683 there is a full account of a distress made at his house at the Harrow in Witch Street, parish of St Clement Danes, for £50, for being five times at the Savoy meeting "though I was absent 2 of y^e days mentioned in the warrants." A list of the goods taken is extant, with this record of persecution, in Record of Sufferings, London and Middlesex, 1654 to 1753 (ms. in D). The date of his death has not been found; his wife, Mary Simms, died in 1720, aged 87, "at their home Chiswick near Hammersmith."

Was there a Sir William Codrington, also governor of the island, or has the writer confused the Friend William Codrington (vol. ii. p. 377), sometimes called Codrington (vol. ii. p. 5), with Colonel Christopher? Six a.m. would now be considered an early hour to call on a great man!
- 135 2 The reference to Friend Hull is not definite enough to enable us to identify the Friend visited by George Fox.
- 135 3 There was a Thomas Winnington (c. 1615—1699), of St Martin's in the Fields, a hostler.
- 135 4 Jan Reeloffs was the son of a Mennonite preacher in Hamburg. He became a Friend in 1659 and was prominent in Dutch Quakerism. His wife was Deborah. They were in England in 1686 and lodged at the house of William Crouch (pp. 135—137). Reeloffs was one of the trustees of the Amsterdam property in 1682. He wrote in Dutch A Looking-Glass for the City of Embden. He is mentioned in Ell. Text (ii. 286, 483).

- 136 1 Richard Mow (c. 1620—1680) was a baker, of Limehouse. As a widower he married Mary Smart (c. 1618—1680), widow, of Stepney, at the house of James Brock, Mile End Green, Stepney, in 1667. Richard Mow was one of the purchasers of the colony of East New Jersey in 1682 (Jnl. F. H. S. xiii. 76). He died "of a hectic fever" and his wife "of a cancer in side."

- 136 2 Elizabeth Fullove (c. 1638—1688) was the wife of Lawrence Fullove (96. 3). As Elizabeth Edwards, she was married at the Bull and Mouth in 1678. Basse states that in 1684 she and others were convicted for meeting together and fined four nobles each (Suff. i. 472). She died of consumption at her home in Wood Street, 12 iii. 1688, aged fifty. Fox's two recorded visits found her out of health.
- 136 3 Henry Gouldney (c. 1657—1725), son of Adam Gouldney (263. 5), of Chippenham, in Wiltshire, is best known as the Friend at whose house in White Hart Court George Fox died (p. 222). With John Field and Theodor Eccleston he signed, in 1696, a letter respecting the due time for attendance at meetings (Sundry Ancient Epistles, pp. 152, 159). He was a trustee of Yonkley's Charity, 1724. He was concerned in the William Gibson controversy (see Jnl. F. H. S. i.; Bigotry and Partiality, 1706). Gouldney married Elizabeth Forester, of White Hart Court, daughter of Thomas Forester, in 1681, when he is described as linendraper, of Cheapside. His wife died in 1717, aged fifty-nine, and in 1719 he remarried, Ruth Munday, widow (c. 1675—1738), becoming his second wife. Relations of his married into the family of Michael Russell (112. 2).
- See especially Quaker Post-Bag, 1910, where we read of Gouldney: "He has such Power over his friends (as I know none has the like) because of his loving disposition" (p. 117); vol. ii. p. 425; Jnl. F. H. S. iv. vii. viii. xi. xii. xviii.; see. in D.
- 136 4 John Bringhurst was a printer for Friends from about the year 1680. He lived at the sign of the Book in Gracechurch Street and later, c. 1683, at the sign of the Book and Three Blackbirds in Leaden-Hall-Mutton-Market (Smith, Out.). He was an apprentice of Andrew Sowle (108. 4). It is not evident why Bringhurst's wife was to be interviewed, as her husband was living. Bringhurst suffered the pillory and imprisonment for re-printing a book by Fox and he was also reprimanded by Friends, in 1680, for having printed "an ungodly & pernicious booke" (Jnl. F. H. S. xviii. 7, 8). The date of his death has not been found in the London district Registers.

- The book associated with the name of John Blaykling is entitled Anti-christian Treachery Discovered and Its Way Block'd up. The book (before us as we write) is a folio of 215 pages, written in opposition to the Separatists, William Rogers, John Wilkinson and John Story. Various Friends collaborated in its production. Copies of minutes of official bodies are given with names of signatories. The book was printed by Bringhurst, after having been examined by committees of the Morning Meeting (Minutes, pp. 64, 68, 75).
- 137 1 The book in question, by Thomas Budd, is (according to advices from Haverford, Pa.) A True and Perfect account of the disposal of the one hundred Shares or Proprieties of the Province of West-New-Jersey, by Edward Bylling, dated the 12th of July, 1685. Thomas Budd, the younger, was born in Somersetshire and emigrated to America. In 1685 he wrote a valuable book on education entitled Good Order Established in Pennsylvania & New Jersey, etc. About the year 1692 Budd joined himself to the George Keith party and wrote much in defence of this schism. Sermons preached by him in 1694 in London are reported in The Great Doctrines of the Gospel of Christ... Sermons preached by Sundry Servants of Christ of the Society of Christian Quakers. Sermons by George Keith, Charles Harris and John Raunon, delivered at Devonshire House, Gracechurch Street and Harp Lane, are included. There are no prayers; see 90. 1.

- 138 1 Anthony Elwood, of Gray's Inn Lane, was a blacksmith. He suffered loss of goods for attending meeting at The Peel—the Informer Gabriel Shadd "broke into y^e house, without being commanded thereto by the Copestable, and when he was in, he called to one of the red coat soldiers, who came with them, to give him a sword (who did so) fearing he should be opposed by y^e people in y^e house" (Record of Sufferings (ms. in D) under date 1694).
- 138 1 It is to be regretted that of several Friends mentioned in the Itinerary Journal the record of death only is found by research. Job Netherwood (c. 1643—1686/9) is described at his decease: "Late of Long Lane, died in pch. of Dunstons in the West, buried Checker Alley near Bunhill Fields."
- 138 2 There was an Abel Wilkinson living in Chespside in 1692 at the death of a son (Registrars).
- 139 3 John Edge (c. 1634—1704) is mentioned six times in Christian Progress (pp. 542, 588, 595, 618, 640, 650). He accompanied Whitehead and Rowland Vaughan on their hurried visit to the Attorney General (133. 1) and was, in other ways, helpful to suffering Friends. The Y.M. of 1694 and 1695 appointed Edge one of the receivers for money collected for ransom of Friends captives in Algiers. He was a member of Peel M.M., living in the parish of St Andrew's, Holborn.
John Edge (? his son) and his wife Jane emigrated from St Andrew's, Holborn, to Pa. about the year 1695 (Pa. Gen. Soc. iv. (1908), 295).

- 139 4 For William Dewsbury see vol. i. p. 399. He was at this time near the end of his long imprisonment in Warwick Jail, "in all 19 years from first to last in this town of Warwick," writes John Whiting (Memoirs, p. 12).
- 140 1 The suffering of Barbadian Friends is described in Second Period, pp. 618 ff. It was mostly on account of refusal to join the Militia. See 187. 1.
- 140 2 For Francis Stamper see vol. ii. p. 496. During the visit of William Penn to Bristol in 1687, "he and Francis Stamper had a great Meeting at Chew, under Richard Vickris's great Oak in his Close, a Large and Heavenly Meeting it was" (Whiting, Memoirs, p. 172).

- 142 1 Daniel Skinner (c. 1651—1724), of Gracechurch Street, linen-draper, son of William Skinner, of Barking, Essex, married Elizabeth Bowman in 1681.
- 142 2 This paper on marriage has not been found among Fox's literary remains.

- 142 3 The Y.M. of 1686 "for the Service of Truth and Friends in Sufferings" was held on the 24th and 25th of Third Month. Note the frequent recurrence of the statement: "many fri^{ds} Came to him," making a full time out of meeting as well as in it. King James's "General Pardon" released many Friends from bondage in time for them to attend. "This caused great joy to Friends to see our ancient, faithful brethren again at liberty in the Lord's work after their long confinement" (Ell. Text, ii 432).
- 145 1 For Dr Edward Bourn, of Worcester, see vol. ii. p. 394. He accompanied Fox and took part in meetings they attended, in the years 1688 to 1688. Apparently he was not the "E. B." mentioned in vol. ii. p. 293; the initials should represent Edward Brookes of Oxfordshire (Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 101).
- 146 1 William Ingram (1639—1708) was a citizen and tallow-chandler of Fenchurch Street. In 1678, when the Meeting for Sufferings was set up, he was appointed to act on behalf of Hertfordshire Friends, his country correspondent being Henry Stout (170. 2). In vol. ii. p. 452 it is stated that Ingram had descendants through his first marriage—we can now give more information. Ingram's first wife was Susanna Robins (1649—1688), daughter of Jasper Robins, of Godmanchester. Joseph Ingram (1688—), son of William and Susanna (Robins) Ingram, married, in 1710, Mary Bellers (c. 1680—1751), elder daughter of John Bellers, and inherited Coln St Alwyns (Jnl. F. H. S. xii. 103; Second Period, p. 572). He was a trustee of Yeakley's Charity, 1731. Frances, daughter of Joseph, of Cheapside, married in 1737, at the Bull and Mouth, Joseph Vandewall (Jnl. F. H. S. xiii. 27). Hester Ingram (1674—) married, in 1697, John Ayre (1664—1713), a quo Vaux family (information from George Vaux, Junr., of Philadelphia, Pa., 1924).
- For the Ingram family in America, headed by Isaac Ingram (d. 1832), see Jnl. F. H. S. iv. 5; Genealogy of the Bailey Family, 1912.
- 146 2 Information is, at present, lacking respecting William Phillips. Perhaps he was father of the lad mentioned 188. 2. Bease has a reference to William Phillips of Pudding Lane and the name occurs among lists of names of sufferers (Suff. i. 366, 480, 474, 490, 484).
- 146 3 George Coale (c. 1648—1682) was a son of Robert Coale and nephew of Josiah Coale of Winterbourne, near Bristol. John Whiting gives a very loving tribute to his service in his Memoirs, p. 80. Whiting and Coale were mutually helpful to one another, the former about sixteen, the latter twenty-four. In 1673 "Cristable," daughter of William Jennings, of Bristol, was united to him in marriage and their only daughter, of the same name, married Robert Ingram, merchant, of London. Coale travelled considerably, as both trader and preacher, in America. His wife died while they were in Jamaica, and he departed this life in London, 17 x. 1682, aged about 34. Probably on account of his business affairs in foreign countries his estate was not settled three and a half years later. William Ingram, who was called to consult (p. 148), was probably the father-in-law of Coale's daughter.
- Smith, Cata.; Jnl. F. H. S. iv. 9, x. 120.
- 146 4 Sir Robert Gifford was elected Lord Mayor in 1686.
- 147 1 John Matthews was a member of Peel Meeting and suffered for his attendance (Suff. i. 416, 461). Despite the correction on page 128, it is probable that John Matthews was intended, his residence being near that of John Elson, and not James Matthews who lived away to the East (118. 3).

- 148 1 James Lowrey (c. 1653—1725/6) lived at South Street. He placed his coach at the service of Friends. He married Mary Eames in 1674. At his marriage he is described as "merchant" and at his death as "Coachman."
- 148 2 Anne Whitehead (1624—1688), the first wife of George Whitehead, was widow of Benjamin Greenwell, and daughter of Rev. Thomas Downer (vol. ii. pp. 421, 441). The little volume Piety Promoted by Faithfulness, issued in the year of her death, contains Testimonies by her husband, Mary Elson, Margaret Meakins, Rebecca Travers, Mary Stout of Hertford, Grace Bathurst, Mary Woolley, Bridget Ford, Charles Bathurst, Bridget Austill, Ruth Crouch, John Staplee, William Ingram, Mary Forster, Anne Travers, Benjamin Antrobus (in verse), Jane Sowle, Susanna Dow, Ann Mackett, and Elizabeth Camfield, and a General Epistle, signed by, among others, the following, who appear in the Itinerary Journal, or perhaps wives of such: Mary Stott, Martha Hull, Mariabella Farnborough, Priscilla Hart, Patience Ashfield, Elizabeth Mann, Martha Matthews, Sarah Meade, Margaret Drinkwell, Elizabeth Fullove, Sarah Edge, Mary Whitpain, Elizabeth Vaughton, Grace Staplee, Joan Perkins, Susanna Ingram, Mary Antrobus, Grace Pinder, Elizabeth Cullis, Mary Simma, Mary Waase, Ann Cox, Mary Latay, Elizabeth Brassy, Anne Eccleston, Elizabeth Gouldney, Mary Oades, Margery Field, Elizabeth Baker, Dorothy Langhorne, Elizabeth Skinner, Mary Quare, Elizabeth Grice. The day and hour of decease agree with those given by George Whitehead in his Testimony. The Friends present included her husband, her sister Ann-Mary Freeman, Ann Cox, Mary Stout and Bridget Austill. The women may be among the "several women fr^{ies}" who accompanied G. F. in the coach to Edward Mann's (p. 148).

- 149 1 There is a note on Gerard Roberts in vol. i. p. 434. He was confined at the Gladiers' Hall Meeting in Thames Street (Gilbert Laty, 1707, p. 8). At the first settlement of the Meeting for Sufferings Roberts was entrusted with the interests of Friends in the shires of Worcester and Gloucester, along with Ezekiel Woolley, and he also took charge of Friends in the island of Barbados. His home in "Thomas Apostles" was a general meeting-place for Friends until his removal in 1688. Robert Fowler consulted him and other heads of the Church on his proposed voyage to America in the Woodhouse, 1637. He attended the wedding of George Fox and Margaret Fell in 1689. He married, in 1661, Milbrow Davies (c. 1617—1697).

- 149 2 William Shewen (c. 1631—1695) was at this time living at Enfield, Middlesex. In 1656 his dwelling was "in a yard in at ye signe of ye 2 brues at ye upper end of Bermosey streett" (F. P. T. p. 168). At a meeting "on account of sufferings," held at James Claypole's, 12 iv. 1678, William Shewen was appointed on behalf of Southwark Friends (MS. in D). In 1690 he was appointed to act as umpire to compose the difference between Ellis Hookes, Recording Clerk, and Andrew Sowle, printer (Jnl. F. H. S. xviii. 7). Hookes left Shewen some money in his will, proved December, 1691, and in the will of Amy Flattwood, proved August, 1694, £10 was left to "William Shewen of the Parish of Magdalene Bermosey, Pinemaker, and Ellis Hooke of the Parish of Newington Butts, Scrivener" (Jnl. F. H. S. i. 22, ii. 4). Shewen removed to Enfield in 1698. His widow, Ann Shewen, gave £100, in 1696, towards building a meetinghouse (London Friends' Meetings, pp. 215, 235, 301). She also gave a meetinghouse in Baker Street, Enfield, in 1700 (Note Book i., ms. in D). His most popular writings were entitled: The True Christian's Faith and Experience, printed 1675 to 1840, and Counsel to the Christian Traveller, printed 1683 to 1638.

Whiting, Memoirs, p. 239.

- 150 1 Jan Claus was a merchant of Amsterdam, who settled in England where he became a Friend. In 1664 he was arrested and sentenced to transportation for seven years to Jamaica. He lived to return to Holland but did not return to England to live, though he was in this country in 1686. He acted as interpreter to the Friends visiting Holland in 1677. His wife and her father are mentioned §41. 1.

- 151 1 Ezekiel Woolley (c. 1625—1693) was among the first members of the Meeting for Sufferings and represented Worcestershire and Gloucestershire (the country representative being "Edward Bourne, Physician, Worcester") and also Bristol. In 1665 he was asked to represent Wheeler Street Friends in the matter of registering births, marriages and burials (Sundry Ancient Epistles, ms. in D). He was a weaver, of Spitalfields, and a very active Friend. Fox was frequently at his house. Woolley is placed by Francis Bugg, ex-Quaker, in his "Cage of Unclen Birds" (Picture of Quakerism Drawn to the Life, 1897, p. 70). Ezekiel, the younger (1668—), was at Christopher Taylor's school at Edmouton in 1680 and was one of the children who wrote their appreciations of their late master, John Matern (Testimony of that Dear and Faithful Man, John Matern, 1680, p. 22).

- 152 1 Edward Brush (c. 1603—1696) is described by William Crouch as "a man of good repute, an inhabitant and housekeeper in Bearbinder Lane near Lombard Street" (Postkuma Christiana, 1712, p. 82). In his pamphlet The Invisible Power of God known in Weakness, with a Christian Testimony of the Experience and Sufferings of Edward Brush, Aged Ninety One Years, etc., London, 1895, he gives a few details of his life. He was twelve when he went to London. "I Kept House and Servants Twelve Years before I took a Wife and the Fear of God in my Soul preserved me from gross Evils." In 1685 he was one of the few whom the authorities succeeded in banishing. He was sent to Jamaica for seven years and arrived on the island in June. "After a while the Governor received an Express from King Charles the Second to send me home." He arrived in London, 1st May, 1689. His wife Sarah and son Isaac had been left in London. He wrote a letter to Jamaican Friends, dated at the Ball and Mouth, 15 vii. 1688. For his connection with the Great Plague see vol. ii. pp. 397 f. He suffered further persecution after his return. At the first settling of the Meeting for Sufferings, iv. 1678, Brush was appointed to represent Jamaican Friends (ms. in D). Sarah Brush died in 1687, aged 77.

in York, combining preaching tours with business calls. Fox visited Taylor in York in 1677 (page 228). Whitehead records that "my ancient Companions in Solicitation, Gilbert Latsey, Thomas Lower (the Doctor), John Taylor of York (my late Brother-in-Law) and our Friend Daniel Quare" appeared before King William III to present to him the suffering Friends had still to undergo in the matter of tithes, oaths, "contempts," etc. (Christian Progress, pp. 637, 639, 643). John Taylor's life-story of travel and travail is well worth perusal, dated 1710, reprinted 1830.

- 158 1 Of this selfsame Lord Mayor's Show John Evelyn (1630-1705/8) wrote in his Diary: "There was a triumphant show of the Lord Mayor both by land and water, with much solemnity," thus giving a different view of the occasion from that of Fox. It is not evident in what manner Fox would be able "to still y^e people." The Lord Mayor's Day was the 29th of October until 1752, when it was altered by Act of Parliament to the present date, the 8th of November. The Lord Mayor taking office was Sir John Peake. Samuel Pepys (1632-1703) styled the pageants "good for such kind of things but in themselves but poor and absurd" (Oct. 29, 1680), "the pageants were very silly" (Oct. 29, 1683). Lady Springett writes that she "was burdened with the vanity of their show" (Experiences in the Life of Mary Penington, 1811, p. 33).

Pepys, Diary, ed. Wheatley, Oct. 29, 1680, note.

- 159 1 Daniel Quare (1648-1723/4) was a noted watch and clock maker. At the time of his marriage with Mary, daughter of Jeremiah Stevens, maltster, of High Wycombe, Bucks, in 1676, his address was "Martins-le-Grand in the liberty of Westminster" (Jnl. F. H. S. i. 58). Later he removed to Aldersgate Street, then to Lombard Street, and later still to "Kings Arms" in Exchange Alley. He had a country-house at Croydon. He was admitted a brother of the Clockmakers' Company in 1671, when twenty-three years of age and he became Master in 1708. He made a clock for King William III which required winding but once a year, and invented a portable barometer "which may be removed to any place, though turned upside down, without spilling one drop of quicksilver or letting any air into the tube" (Cal. S. P. Dom. 1694-5, p. 396, quoted Jnl. F. H. S. xiv. 44). George I was on very friendly terms with Quare and he was allowed special access to him "at the Back Stairs." Quare's professional connection with royalty was of use to Friends when appealing to the throne (Christian Progress, pp. 637, 642, 643). He moved in the highest social circle of the day, and the marriages of his daughters—Anne with John Falconer in 1705, Sarah with Jacob Wyan in 1712, Elizabeth with Silvanus Bevan in 1715 (of which marriage there is a reproduction of the certificate in D)—were attended by many members of the Court and diplomatic circles (see F. Q. E. 1800). In the Book of Cases (MS. vol. in D) there is a reference to "Daniel Quare's Paper setting forth his Refusal of a Pension of 300 per Annum to be the Kings Watchmaker &c. Because for Conscience sake he could not Qualifie himselfe, as y^e Law directs by taking y^e Oath," dated 4 xii. 1714. In the same year Quare wrote to Thomas Aldam, the younger, on a printed copy of the new solemn affirmation of loyalty to George I, quoting the opinion of the King's Solicitor General that it contains the effect of the Oath of Abjuration and would legalize Friends as voters at the poll. He recommends Friends to use their vote and not "by timorousness disfranchise themselves...but modestly give their assistance to those prudent men principled to preserve us in our Religious & Civil Liberties..." (original in Poore MSS. in D).

- 160 2 Theodor Eccleston (1650—1738) was son of Richard and Fricella Eccleston, Seekers who became Friends. Richard died in 1685 and his widow married Thomas Hart, of Enfield (105. 3), in 1671. The descent of Theodor Eccleston is traced to its end, in Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 94. William Sewel (1654—1720), the Dutch historian, writes: "I cannot well omit here publicly to acknowledge the signal kindness and diligence of my well-beloved and much esteemed friend Theodor Eccleston, of London, who hath furnished me with abundance of materials...for the compiling of this work" (Preface to History of the Quakers). Eccleston's address was Crown Court, Gracechurch Street. He was prominent and active in the affairs of the Quaker Church. His mother was among the "7000 Handmaids," who petitioned in 1659 for the abolition of tithes. J. M. Epistles, 1684, 1685; Christian Progress, pp. 590, 647, 659, 695; William and Alice Ellis, 1849; London Friends' Meetings, 1869; House of Lords MSS. 1695—97; *Jnl. F. H. - 160 3 See 104. 3.

- 160 4 The marriage of a daughter of Thomas Cox in 1686 has not been found on the Registers. See 96. 1. It would have been interesting to know who the couple was who accompanied Fox in a coach to South Street.

- 162 1 This was probably Mary Tyler, of Waltham Abbey, shopkeeper, who died in May, 1693 (Friends' Registers). She is mentioned in conjunction with Elizabeth Bennett (162. 2).

- 162 2 Elizabeth Bennett, sic Constable, was the wife of Thomas Bennett (105. 5). The references represent her accompanying George Fox in a coach several times to meetings. She died 10 viii. 1704, aged ninety, evidently much older than her husband.

- 163 1 It seems strange, from our modern point of view, to read of George Fox instructing a young "innholder" how to carry on his business at his newly acquired White Lion Tavern in Cornhill, but "we must remember that when everyone went to the taverns, these were very superior resorts to the public houses which have taken their place, and the taverners were men of substance and repute" (Wheatley, Pepysiana, 1898, p. 190). Friends met for conference at several inns—in 1686 at the King's Head in Pudding Lane (London Friends' Meetings, p. 233); see also pp. 96, 137, 147, 165.

- 165 1 Patience Ashfield (c. 1627—1708) was the relict of Richard Ashfield (vol. I. p. 453). The Friends' Meeting at Staines met in the house of Patience Ashfield before a meetinghouse was built. She was paid forty shillings a year for the accommodation (London Friends' Meetings, p. 284). She wrote an account of her husband's life and death which appeared in Beese's Sufferings, vol. i. p. 440, the editor adding: "The conscientious Widow patiently endured the Spoiling of her Goods for the same testimony for which her husband had before cheerfully suffered the Loss both of his Liberty and his Life."

Christian Progress, p. 594.

- 166 1 Francis Dove (c. 1627—1707) lived in "Lesterfields" (p. 166), and in "Martins Lane Nigh Charing Cross" (p. 192), probably two addresses for the same house. There are several notices of George Fox's passing a night at his house. In 1685 Dove was committed to the Gatehouse Prison in Westminster by warrant from the Duke of Albemarle, for "attending an illegal meeting in St Johns."
ms. in D.
- 166 2 Timothy Emerson (c. 1634—1713) was an oilman in Gerard Street. With William Crouch and Samuel Boulton and others, Emerson signed, c. 1688, an address to King James urging him "to put a Stop to the ruinous Prosecutions and Persecutions of the mercenary and mercurious Informers." So wrote George Whitehead in his Christian Progress (p. 591). He had a "servant and apprentice," named William Phillips, who died in 1694, aged twenty, of small-pox. See 146. 2.
- 167 1 See 60. 5.
- 166 1 Stephen Hubbard (—1704) is mentioned in London Friends' Meetings (p. 316) as one of the "worthies" of Kingston Meeting. Ruth Lilley (165. 2) lodged at his house. He was a shoemaker. A minute of Kingston M.M. in 1690 "ordered" Francis Holden, Stephen Hubbard, and John Brown to "take care and draw up a writing against next M.M. in settling the Burying Ground, According to the uses intents and purposes as it was purchased for, and let the paper be entered in the book." Hubbard seems to have advanced money for the purchase of the ground; it was bought in his name and conveyed to trustees.
ms. in D.
- 166 2 The Burial Registers contain the entry: "Ruth Lilley, parish of Kingston, widow of William [236. 1], of Hassam, Kingston, 1691/2 i. 4." It is stated in London Friends' Meetings: "In 1693 Ruth Lilley left £40, which was put out to interest till 1730, at which time land was bought to the amount of £70" (p. 314). George Fox called to see her when visiting his relations early in 1687. She was lodging at Stephen Hubbard's and out of health. In 1690, on his last visit to Kingston, he called again, and may have made other unrecorded visits to his friend.
- 169 1 This six-weeks' visit to Kingston produced several papers. RH. Text (ii. 440): "Towards the latter end of this year I went to Kingston and stayed some time at my son Rous's." The papers occupy eight and a half pages of the RH. Text.
- 170 1 The only notice found respecting Robert Scotting is in Beese (Suff. i. 483). He lived, presumably, at or near Ratcliff.
- 171 1 Martha Dry lived at Wapping, to the East of London. She was a daughter of John and Margaret Meekens (122. 2) and married William Dry in 1678. Her sister, Mary, married, in the same year, James Strutt, of Wapping (100. 2).
Jnl. F. H. S. x. 16.
- 171 2 John Patterson was among Friends tried at Guildhall in 1684, for meeting at White Hart Court "with Force and Arms, riotously, tumultuously, and unlawfully assembled to the Breach of the Peace, etc." (Suff. i. 465, see also p. 470).

- 171 3 This was probably William Briggins (c. 1628—1688), about whose son Joseph (c. 1664—1675) a small octavo tract was issued under the title: The Living Words of a Dying Child, etc., 1675 and 1677.

- 173 1 Not only did many Friends visit Fox at Gooseyee but he found time to write letters and papers. Ell. Text (ii. 450) gives the reason of this visit: "By reason of the many hardships I had undergone in imprisonments and other sufferings for Truth's sake, my body was grown so infirm and weak that I could not bear the closeness of the city lung together, but was obliged to go a little into the country for the benefit of the fresh air." (How did these personal remarks get into the Ell. Text?—from some Fox original? or did Ellwood put the statement into Fox's mouth?) A paper "A Distinction between the True Offering and the False," written 28 ii. 1687, is given in Ell. Text, and an important letter, dated the same day, was sent to Thomas Lower, respecting the use of Fox's property known as "Petya." See Swarth's Account Book.
- 174 1 Elizabeth Grice was one of the Friends who signed the General Testimony to Anne Whitehead (148. 2). She was fined, with others, including Elizabeth Fullers, four nobles for meeting, in 1684 (Suff. i. 478).
- 175 1 Jasper Batt (—1702) lived at Street, in Somersetshire. The Bishop of Bath and Wells described him as "the greatest seducer in all the West, and the most seditious person in the county, and that he would make Somersetshire too hot for him" (Whiting, Memoirs, p. 108). His gift in the ministry was exercised in many parts of the country. He preached at the funeral of George Fox.
- 176 1 The Y.M. of 1687 convened the 16th, 17th and 19th of the Third Month. The veteran leader was in attendance though weak in body and troubled with "great hoarseness." The Meeting was very large, "Friends having more freedom to come up out of the counties to it by reason of the general toleration and liberty now granted" (Ell. Text, ii. 433). This was the Declaration of Indulgence of King James which appeared on the 4th April, 1687—"a high-handed act of authority, which undoubtedly violated the whole spirit of English Institutions" (Second Period, p. 131).

- 176 2 For Ambrose Rigge see an informing sketch in vol. ii. p. 470. He signed a Testimony to Charles Marshall in 1703.
Marsh, Early Friends in Surrey and Sussex, 1886, chap. viii.
- 176 3 Samuel Watson (c. 1690—1708) lived at Knight Stainforth, near Settle, Co. York. He was convinced in York Castle by some Friends confined there, he having been sent to prison on account of some demand on his estate in or about 1654. He travelled in the ministry in Scotland with Roger Hebden (—1695) (F. P. T.; Jnl. F. M. S. xii. 83). Later, Samuel Watson wrote: "For being at Three Meetings of the People of God, and bearing my Testimony in a measure of the Spirit of Truth...for which being called an offence according to the Act against Convicticles, a fine was laid upon me for 1201 for those three meetings. And the officers came in one Day and took away most of my Cattle, to the Value of 1501, the last Day of the 4th Month, 1670." Watson wrote various pieces, longer and shorter—one was "To the Mountebanks of Settle," 16 xii. 1690, whom he describes as a "Lefty and Highly set up sort of Inchanters to Evil, who in their Serpentine Subtility Bewitch People into vain Laughter, Madness and Folly by their Ungodly Actings and Lying Wonders." He wrote letters from York Castle in 1661, 1668 and 1685. In 1664 Samuel Watson married Mary Monk, widow of Thomas Monk, of Co. Netta, who brought two daughters, Mary and Elizabeth, with her. Samuel and Mary had a daughter, Grace (1668—1698), who died at the house of Benjamin Antrobus in London, 20 vi. 1688. Mary Monk married at the house of her step father, in 1678, Isaac Moss, Junr., of Manchester, and died in 1691. Elizabeth Monk (c. 1663—1702) married Thomas Moss, of Manchester, in 1685. In 1680 appeared a tract: A Narrative and Testimony concerning Grace Watson, containing appreciations by her parents, her two half-sisters, Benjamin Antrobus and Charles Marshall. Other Testimonies appear in A Short Account of the Convincement of... Samuel Watson, being a Collection of his Works, 1712. Mary Watson died in 1694. Her husband removed to the neighbourhood of Chester, to the home of his son-in-law, where he died.

- 176 4 John Gratton (1641—1712) was one of the Ministers who exercised their gifts at Y.M. 1687. There is a valuable account of John Gratton, written by Emily Manners and printed in The Friend (Lond.), 1881, pp. 603, 616. He was born at Bonsall in Derbyshire and lived during most of his married life at Monyash in the same county. He travelled extensively as a preacher, principally in the Midlands, and has been termed "The Quaker Apostle of the Peak." In 1680 he was cast into Derby Jail and released in March, 1685/8. "Dr [Dear] J. G." appears frequently in A Quaker Post-Bag, 1910. In 1707 the Monyash home was given up and John and Mary his wife went to reside with their daughter, Phoebe Bateman, at Farnsfield in Netta. Gratton was buried in the graveyard there. Mrs Manners writes: "No trace of the meeting-house remains, and the burying place is now almost a legend; but it is said that a garden in the rear of a house on the village street is the old Quaker burying place."

- 176 5 This was, probably, George Myers (c. 1653—1714), of Farnfield, in the parish of Addingham, in the Craven district of Yorkshire. He wrote several pamphlets, one, A Serious Examination, relating to the Separatists in York (117. 2). In the end of his little book on Spiritual Warfare, 1721, there is a record, by his children, George and Hannah Myers, of some of his dying sayings. If the same George Myers is the Friend of that name who appears in William and Alice Ellis, 1849, then the report of his death in 1698 was not correct (pp. 28, 91, 105). He married Mary Hardcastle in 1682/3. John Gratton (176. 4) visited him several times (John Gratton, 1720, pp. 121, 126).

- 176 7 Among the ministering Friends who attended Y.M. 1687 was Thomas Gilpin (1622—1702), of Warborough, Oxon. He was the youngest son of Thomas Gilpin, of Millhill, in the parish of Caton, Lancs. He was apprenticed to a tallow-chandler in London and joined the army during the Civil War. In 1653 he was arrested by the preaching of Ambrose Rigge and others in Oxfordshire and in London he was convinced by the ministry of Burrough and Howgill. After his marriage with Joan, daughter of Thomas Bartholomew, he lived some years under his father-in-law's roof and then took a house at Warborough, which he opened for worship. There is a remarkable story of the way Friends persisted in holding meetings at Gilpin's house till almost all the men Friends were in jail (F. P. T. p. 217). He underwent various imprisonments and was liberated by the "Pardon" of 1672. His death is referred to in Quaker Post-Bag, 1910, p. 188.

- 177 1 William Penn writes of Fox in the Preface to the Journal: "He was often where the records of the affairs of the Church are kept and the letters from the many meetings of God's people, over all the world, were settled, come upon occasions, which letters he had read to him." Many letters are extant, endorsed by him in his bold, laboured handwriting.

- 179 1 Ann Cox (s. 1644—1716) was the wife of Thomas Cox (96. 1). Her maiden name was Hind. She married in 1682. She signed, with many other women Friends of London, a letter to Margaret Fox in answer to a letter from her to the Women's Q.M. It is dated 30 vii. 1695 and concludes: "We dearly salute thee in the fresh remembrance of thy dear husband and our honourable Friend and Father, whose travels were known to the Lord from the beginning." Other Friends, mentioned in these notes, who signed, are Ruth Crouch, Mary Elson, Mary Woolley, Grace Bathurst, Susanna Dew, Bridget Ford, Margaret Rous, Sarah Meads, Mary Lower, Susanna Ingram, Margaret Drinkwall, Ann Eccleston, Anne Whitehead, Mary Wharley, Elizabeth Vaughton, Mary Russell, Elizabeth Gouldney, Anna Hutson (original letter in D).

- 179 2 Two visits to Hartford are recorded (pp. 179, 216) during both of which George Fox was entertained by Henry Stout (1631—1695). In 1664 Stout married Mary Saunders, of Cromwell's household (vol. i. p. 444; Quaker Women, 1915, pp. 248, 262, 263, 269). "He was the first called a Quaker who suffered imprisonment in Hartford gaol for the testimony of truth. He was sentenced to banishment and continued in prison nearly eight years" (Piety Promoted, quoted F. Q. E. 1916, "The Hartford Trials of 1664"). He entered into the Hat Controversy, and appears in Penn's Alexander the Coppermith, 1673, p. 24, and Penn's Judas and the Jews, 1673, p. 80.

Sarah Stout, whose sudden death produced great emotion and much enquiry, was their daughter. John Tomkins (c. 1663—1706), writing to Sir John Rodes, 18 i. 1698/9, records the event: "I was last first day at Hartford and on 2d day coming out of the Town I saw Sarah Stout well in health, who the next morning was found drowned in a River near that Town. She left her mothers House (or rather her own for she was Mrs of that house and much richer besides) about 11 at night, another person [Spencer Cowper] was with her at that time who says he left her there at home but just about one time her Mother and servants found them both gone and sat up all night expecting her return, when next morning soon as day, news was brought of her death. She was found without her Gown and Apron, close to the Grates of a Mill, her stays and Petticoats on, some Gold and Silver in her pockets, and all her buttons &c. of gold and silver in her Sleeves and shoes.... The man that was with her has a wife and children; he did sometimes place money out to Interest for her but the Judges verdict was that she drowned her self being non Compus mentes. She was, poor lass, grown very high, having littell regard to Truth nor her aged Mother, who is a good Woman" (Quaker Post-Boy, 1810, pp. 180, 181; we have not seen the original letter).

- 179 3 Records of the life of Thomas Burr which have come down to us deal mainly with the sufferings this good man had to meet and endure for conscience sake. In 1659/60 he was taken from a meeting at Baldoock and imprisoned. In 1664 he was among the prisoners sentenced to banishment to Jamaica but remained in prison till the King's "Pardon" of 1672, during which imprisonment he suffered the loss of £130 in goods for meetings at his house. At this time he lived at Baldoock. When travelling in East Anglia he was arrested, with George Whitehead, and inhabited the City and County Jail, Bristol, from March, 1679/80, to the following July. The proceedings connected with the trial and imprisonment are given fully in Due Order of Law and Justice, 1680, a tract reprinted in Christian Progress, pp. 377 ff. A certificate respecting Burr, dated 14 April, 1680, contains the following information: "Thomas Bur of Ware in the County of Hartford, Malster, hath lived, and been a Trader in Malt for about fourteen Years past; and is a Man whom we judge of a Good Competent Estate, and of Good Credit and Reputation among his Neighbours in this Place, and hath never been accounted a Jesuit or Papist." Signed by Churchwardens, Constables and others. Between Fox's visits in 1687 and 1689 Burr had spent some time in Hertford Prison for non-payment of tithes. In 1681 he wrote a Testimony to his friend Giles Barnardiston.

Other Friends bearing the name of Burr lived in the neighbourhood. For later members of the family see Memorials of the Old Square (Birmingham), 1697; ms. in D.

- 180 1 William Baker (c. 1642—1737), of Waltham Abbey, married Hannah, daughter of Francis Camfield (87. 4), at the Bull and Mouth in 1672. We do not know the circumstances connected with this "difference." Ell. Text reads: "Next day went to another place to compose a difference which, for want of a right understanding of each other, had happened between some Friends" (ii. 456). The name William Baker occurs in Sundry Ancient Epistles, p. 35 (ms. in D), among Friends representing London (i.e. City or Bull and Mouth) Meeting, in the matter of registers of births, etc., anno 1668. Hannah (Camfield) Baker died in 1705, aged fifty-five.

- 182 1 Fox writes (or perhaps we should say Ellwood wrote in his name) of this visit: "Here I stayed some weeks, yet was not idle....Between meeting and meeting I wrote many things for the spreading of truth." Several papers are printed in Ell. Text (ii. 456—463). A letter to Thomas Robinson (Robertson) was written on the day after arrival "concerning John Cox, who preaches in the meeting [Bristol] without orders." Attached to the letter is copy of the reply of Cox's sympathisers complaining of Robertson's preaching, while six months in and around Bristol! See Bristol ms. (Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 191).

- 182 2 There is a hiatus here in the Journal from the 8th of the Seventh Month, 1687, to the 23rd of the Fourth Month, 1688, nearly ten months. From Goosey Fox returned to town where he remained three months, "being almost daily at public meetings and frequently taken up in visiting Friends that were sick and in other services of the church."

Then, his "body much stopped for fresh air," he went down to Kingston, returning to London towards the close of the Eleventh Month and continuing in the City till the middle of the First Month, 1697/8, when he passed to the northward, remaining in the Enfield district till the Yearly Meeting, which began early in the Fourth Month, 1698. Y.M. over, Fox went again into Essex where we find him at the opening of the next volume of the Itinerary Journal. See Ell. Text, ii. 463—476, and Register of George Fox's Letters (ms. in D).

- 183 1 For John Butcher see vol. ii. pp. 370, 497. With others he put his hand to a petition to Parliament re-oaths in 1696 (Christian Progress, p. 847), and in 1715, after the rebellion of the Old Pretender, he accompanied George Whitehead into the King's presence, presenting George I with an address (ibid. p. 686).

Quaker Post-Bag, 1810, pp. 149, 151, 162.

- 183 2 From this date we find fuller reference to subjects which formed bases of Fox's sermons. They were of great variety. See Introduction.

- 184 1 This would be Springett Penn (1675—1696/7), the elder son of W. and G. M. Penn—a son after the father's own heart. "He was a lad of noble parts and of a spiritual nature like his parents. He lingered under slow consumption till February, 1696/7, and died in his father's arms" (Graham, William Penn, 1817, p. 235). Mary Penington wrote a valuable letter to her grandson in 1680 "to be delivered to him after her decease."

- 184 2 For Mary Waldenfield, wife of Samuel (130. 1), see vol. ii. p. 497. The following incident of her early life is recorded: "George Fox was walking along Chopside at the instant a coach stopp'd and a little woman in very gay apparel stepp'd out of it. He, laying his hand upon her head, said, 'Woman, mind the light within thee.' She became effectively convinced and was afterwards the wife of Sam^l Waldenfield and a respectable member of our Society" (Jnl. F. H. S. vii. 39).

- 186 1 For Isabel Yeamans see vol. ii. p. 492. She was at this time the widow of William Yeamans, but in the following year (1689) she married Abraham Morrice, of Lincoln. Before this re-marriage there was an affaire de cœur, which is described in Jnl. F. H. S. xii.

Of the many Friends mentioned in the Itinerary Journal as speakers in the meetings attended by G. Fox, the men far outnumber the women. The women preachers mentioned are Elizabeth Bathurst (p. 105), "a woman friend" (p. 114), Mariabella Farnborough and Isabel Yeamans (p. 186), "2 or 3 Women" (p. 198), Joan Cook (p. 200), Margaret Fox (p. 206).

- 186 1 Fox wrote, about the year 1687, a long paper entitled "Concerning the Church being clothed with the Sun, and having the Moon under her feet," given in Ell. Text, ii. 437—440—"all changeable things, religious worships, ways, fellowships, churches and teachers in the world are as the moon; for the moon changes, but the sun does not change. Rev. xii. 1."

- 187 1 In the Barbados section of Bacon's Sufferings there are several references to the sufferings undergone by Richard Sutton. In 1677 he was arrested for allowing thirty Negroes to be present at a meeting. In 1673 he was fined, "for refusing to pay Priest's wages, 1706 lb. and for Defaults of sending to the Troop, 1666 lb. In all 3372 lbs." of sugar. He is described as "formerly a Captain." After his return from Europe he was fined again—"for Priest's Maintenance 11. 6 s." See Bowden, Hist. of Friends in America, 1654, ii. 132.

For Quakerism on the island of Barbados see vol. ii. p. 412. See note 140. 1.

- 190 1 Among the "great deal of many things" written during this six weeks' stay at the Meads home in Essex, we have on record papers "concerning the worldly teachers and the emptiness of their teaching"; another to show that "many of the holy men and prophets of God and apostles of Christ were husbandmen and tradesmen"; and another "to shew the vanity of hearing and telling news" (Ell. Text, ii. 479—483). See also Register of George Fox's Letters under 1688 (ms. in D).

- 190 2 The revolution which brought William and Mary to the Throne ushered in a new era of tolerance for nonconformists. In Part IV of his Christian Progress, George Whitehead introduces this period thus: "Altho' for the space of about Twenty Five Years (from 1680 to 1684) we had but small Respite from some Kind of Persecution or other, yet the Truth lost no Ground but gained through all: The Persecution Time was a Seed-Time for the Truth and Gospel of Christ Jesus, which we suffered for, and the Faithful grew and multiplied.... In order to give his Churches (among us) Rest from open Persecutions the Lord our God prepared the Heart of the Government (after the Revolution) to allow us the Sanction of a Law for our Liberty...respecting our Religious Exercise in our Publick Assemblies" (pp. 631 ff.). The bill before the Parliament was carefully examined by able Friends and "a chamber near y^e parliament house," "adjoining to Westminster hall" (pp. 190, 191, 193, 194), was taken as a consultation-centre. G. Fox took a share in this work, coming up to London on purpose "and attending continually for many days, with other Friends at the parliament house" (Ell. Text, ii. 463). G. Whitehead, William Meads and John Osgood appeared before the Grand Committee on the bill. "After much Labour and attending on our Parts, the Bill was passed." It is generally called the Toleration Act (1 Jul. and Mar. cap. 18).

Second Period, pp. 153 ff.; Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 177.

- 190 3 Probably intended for Sir Robert Napier (c. 1642—1700). He was M.P. for Weymouth and Melcombe Regis in 1689—90. When High Sheriff of Dorset in 1681 he was knighted and he was created a baronet in 1682.

Hutchinson, Dorset, where the name Napier is occasionally given as Napper; D. N. B.

Several persons of the name Honeywood appear in The Diary of Samuel Pepys. There was a John Manley, a major in Cromwell's army (D. N. B. s.v. Manley, Sir Robert, elder brother), M.P. for Bridport.

For the relationship between masters and apprentices see Costa, Social Life in Stuart England, 1924, chap. viii.

- 191 1 Sir John Vaughan, Lord Vaughan, third Earl of Carbery (1640—1713), is doubtless the person mentioned (the second Earl having died in 1686). George Whitehead writes: "Sir John Vaughan, a young man, appeared also for us [in Parliament], and afterward was convinced of the Truth, and went to our meetings and was imprisoned in Newgate under the Conventicle Act.... He continued afterward among our Friends...and though at length some of his relations drew him aside, to his great prejudice, yet he retained a kindness, even when he came to be Earl of Carbery, and continued friendly to us...until his latter end" (Christian Progress, pp. 270, 652).

- 194 1 These letters to Peter Hendricks and Friends in Dantzic, and to the Magistrates of this town, are given in Ell. Text, ii. 483—486, dated Southgate, 28 ii. 1689. At the close is the suggestion: "Peter, thou mayest translate this into high Dutch and send them; and you may print it, if you will, and send it abroad; and translate that part of the letter that is to Friends into high Dutch, and send it to them."
- 195 1 See 190. 2.
- 195 2, 3 The Y.M. of 1689 occupied the 20th, 21st and 22nd of Third Month. It was Fox's practice for several years to write postscripts to the Epistles sent down into the country and these are printed with the Epistles. The addendum of this year contained about 600 words. It is printed in Ell. Text (ii. 487).
- 196 1 See 117. 2. As late as 1689 effects of the Separation in York were still felt. We find in Ell. Text, ii. 488, that, "inasmuch as there had been some hurt done in that place by some that were gone out of the unity of Friends," Fox was drawn to write a few lines of encouragement to true unity.
- 196 2 This was Margery Lower (1675—1708). She married Benjamin Robinson, of London, in 1700/01. There are numerous references to her in Swarth. Account Book—a penny rattle was bought for her in 1678—and to her marriage and after-life in Webb's Fells of Swarthmoor Hall, 1863—"many great persons and some members of parliament" were present at the wedding. Her husband settled "two hundred pounds yearly upon her in houses, groundrents and freehold."
- 197 1 Francis Holden (—1696) is mentioned in association with Stephen Hubbard (168. 1) as among the worthies more or less connected with Kingston Meeting (London Friends' Meetings, p. 318). A Meeting appointment in which he figures is referred to under Stephen Hubbard (168. 1). Mary, wife of Francis Holden, of Hampton Wick, died in 1687; her husband followed in 1696—"yeoman, of Hampton Wick."
- A second edition of William Caton's Abridgment of Esau's History, dated 1696, bears the imprint: "London: Printed for Francis Holden, in the Passage going into White-Hart-Yard in Lombard Street," but this must refer to a later bearer of the same name (Smith, Cats. i. 394).
- 197 2 We should be glad to know who was "y^e Kings Chirurgeon" who visited Fox, but cannot, as yet, name him. He may have come over with William III from Holland. Dutch doctors were famous at this epoch.
- See 90. 8.
- 198 1 Sarah Robins (c. 1654—1710) was the daughter of Anne Travers (103. 2). She married Jasper Robins in 1675. He died in 1682, aged 32—a cheesemonger, of Laurence Pountney. In 1683 Sarah (Travers) Robins married Benjamin Crawley. They appear to have had a son, Joshua, who died at seven weeks "from being overlaid."
- 199 1 See 100. 8.
- 200 1 Joan Cook appears to have been a Minister, but no further information is forthcoming save the record of the death of a Joan Cook, of the parish of St Magdalene, Bournemouth, in 1711, aged 83. Was she akin to Richard Cook (202. 1)?
- 201 1 Charles Ker, second Earl of Ancrum, interested himself on behalf of Friends. He obtained the release of Isaac Pennington in 1686 and Thomas Ellwood and others in the same year (Webb, Penne and Penningtons, 1867, pp. 155, 173; Ellwood, History of Life). A letter to his lordship from Margaret Fox, dated 1685, contains valuable notes respecting her family (ms. in D, quoted Beginnings, p. 99). He died unmarried.

We may note a change of attitude towards "the world's people," comparing this company at Bridget's table in 1689 with Fox's refusal to take money for his dinner in 1681 (Ell. Text, i. 92) or to dine with Eeq. Marsh and others in 1688. See also pp. 235, 241.

Whiting, Memoirs, p. 24; Hist. Soc. Com.—Manuscripts of J. Eliot Hodgkin, 1897, p. 10.

- 202 1 Little is known respecting Richard Cook, innholder. We are told that, in 1701, "Richard Cooke has given up innkeeping, and a stable and man are to be sought" (London Friends' Meetings, p. 127). Did he turn to agriculture? There is a record of the decease of Richard Cooke, husbandman, at Hanworth, Middlesex, in 1709, aged 59.

- 205 1 The name of Robert Langhorne appears frequently in First-days Meetings (1682—3). He was a constant visitor at the London meetings. He is named in Suff. (i. 484) among "worthy and valiant Sufferers and Testimony Bearers," 1686. From the Marriage Registers we glean that Robert Langhorne, of Potten, Beds, milliner, son of Robert, of the same, married Dorothy Gunter, at Ratcliff in 1681. Dorothy Langhorne (145. 2) died in 1683, aged 58. There is a record of the burial of a Robert Langhorn, of Grays, Essex, 14 vi. 1704, aged 50, who "cut his own Throat being Lunatick."

- 206 1 For this winter's visit to Gooseyes see Ell. Text, ii. 491—497: "I stirred not much abroad, unless it were sometimes to the meeting to which the family belonged, which was about half-a-mile from thence, but I had meetings often in the house with the family and those Friends that came thither"; see also Register of George Fox's Letters, 1689 and 1690.

The complaint of William Rogers (Christian Quaker, 1680, pt. v. p. 25), referring to an earlier visit, probably to Gooseyes, certainly does not apply here: "Thou hast taken Liberty to stay almost a Quarter of a year from Meetings, or at least a considerable time, though held in the House of thy Residence."

- 207 1 Christ as Ensign, Isai. xi. 12, was much on Fox's mind at this time. He wrote a paper on the subject at Gooseyes on the 14th of Second Month, 1690 (Ell. Text, ii. 494), and preached on the subject at Tottenham on the 27th.

- 208 1 Probably Richard Almond, of Wandsworth. In 1698 Kingston M.M. "agreed that Richard Almond be desired and empowered to provide some wine for the refreshment of Labouring Friends after meetings; and that this meeting do reimburse him his charge again" (London Friends' Meetings, p. 321). Almond is also mentioned in First-days Meetings, as Richard Ammon.

- 210 1 From the official minutes of the proceedings of London Y.M. 1690, and from the personal side as revealed in the Itinerary Journal, we may present a brief sketch of this gathering, the last in the life-time of George Fox.

The name of George Fox does not appear in the minutes but it is probable that the addresses he gave coloured largely the Epistle sent out from the Meeting and his own addendum. The Y.M. was held on the 9th, 10th and 11th of the Fourth Month, the 9th being the second day of the week. Eighty-two Friends were present as representatives "from the counties." It appears that the mornings were set apart for meetings for worship, perhaps for Ministers only. G. F. was at the morning meeting at the Bull and Mouth, where he "Declared touching severall things & went to prayer." He also attended the business-meeting in the afternoon when a list of counties and Friends represented was recorded and also cases of suffering. "This meeting adjourns to Devonshire House at 3^d hour afternoon tomorrow." Benjamin Bealing, secretary to Friends, would be acting as "clerk" for the second time. The meeting for worship convened at Wheeler Street the next morning, where Fox spoke on the subject of fashions (going without aprons), of the Jewish feasts and of the resurrection, exhausting himself to such an extent that he had to retire and take coach to Ezekiel Woolley's in Spitalfields near-by, where he rested on a bed till it was time to drive to Devonshire House for the next business session, at three o'clock. Various subjects were introduced—a paper was read from John Haunce and Charles Harris, querying whether Thomas Ellwood's books had been paid for from "the Publick Stock"—an answer "no," and the paper was handed to Ellwood, as the Meeting did not think well to take notice of such papers from those out of unity. Epistles were read; the question of the clerkship of B. Bealing and John Lynam was referred to the Meeting for Sufferings and the meeting was adjourned to the next afternoon "at Bull above Stairs." The meeting done a coach conveyed G. Fox to the Plough and Harrow in Chapside and he slept there under the watchful care of Benjamin and Mary Antrobus. On the morning of the 11th he attended the meeting at Gracechurch Street and recapitulated some portions of his previous day's sermon, leaving the meeting overdone and retiring on a bed at Henry Gouldney's. In the afternoon he coached again to the Bull and Mouth where he "advised touching severall things & went to prayer." The business included the question of relief for Friends in Ireland and sufferers at Dantzic; accounts were audited and signed; and it was decided to request "Friends in the City not concerned in the business of the meeting to be spoken to not to crowd this meeting for the Time to come." Other business concluded Fox drove to Fenchurch Street and passed the night at his son-in-law Meade's. The next day he was at the "Generall Womens Meeting," and by the end of the week he had attended nine meetings—"y^e first Day Morning Meeting, the Generall Meeting of fri^{ends} in y^e Ministry at y^e Bull & Mouth, y^e Generall Meeting at Wheeler street, 3 Generall Meetings ab^{ove} y^e National Busyness, the 4th Dayes Meeting at Grace Ch^{urch} Street, the Generall Womens Meeting & y^e Meeting for Sufferings, besides much other Busyness with friends" (p. 211).

George Fox's name does not appear among those of Representatives to any Y.M. He did not belong to any definite Meeting in the country.

- 211 1 Aprons were in high favour when the Quakers arose and became the dress of women Friends, but they were to be of certain colours—Green aprons were almost regarded as a badge of Quakerism. Satires are plentiful in the shape of broadsides or pamphlets all making allusion to green aprons, as e.g.

"When she to silent meeting comes,
With apron green before her,
She simpers so like muffle plume,
'Twould make a Jew adore her," which is from an old verse quoted in Gummere, The Quaker, 1901, p. 121. In a ms. in D, Fox to Friends, he writes: "Away with your short black aprons and some having none—away with visage whereby you are not distinguished from bad women" (cp. vol. I, pp. 175 ff.). (Fox's stepdaughter, Sarah Fell, bought a "visard maske" for herself in 1674 and two for her sister Rachel and herself in 1676 (Swarth Account Book, pp. 22, 145, 367), perhaps for some necessary purpose.) In 1698 an Aberdeen Meeting wrote: "Let none want (i.e. lack) aprons at all, and that either green or blue or other grave colour and not white upon the street or in public at all, nor any spangled or speckled silk or cloth or any silk aprons at all." William Penn, in his Alexander the Copper-smith, 1673, writes: "It is a Wonder to me, that the Costly Clothes and Prodigal Feast (to Excess and Derision) of that exalted J. Penniman [253. 4] and his Beloved Mary Boreman who (in Token of her Self-Denial and Attainment to a more excellent Administration) exchanged her Cloth Waste-Coat for a silk Farendine Gown, her Blew Apron for one of Fine Holland and her ordinary Bodice for Rich Satin it self, to say little of her Riding Fine Coaches, and several other things (once accounted by her self-righteousness Abominable things), did never offend this author's nice and squeamish Stomach" (p. 73). The Lincolnshire Q.M. in 1721 stated: "We think green aprons are decent and becoming to us as a People." Ann Moore had a green apron with her when she crossed the Atlantic in 1761 on a religious visit to Great Britain (Cumly, Friends Miscellany, vol. iv. (1833), p. 350). In 1774 Sophia Hume, a Quaker Minister, dealing with a young man about his dress, queried: "How canst thou be so inconsistent as to wear a green waistcoat?" He replied: "I wear it with the same consistency as thou wears thy green apron." Of a Friend who died in 1804 we read: "With her, green aprons disappeared in our Meeting of Devonshire House" (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 15).

- 212 1 George Fox writes, at the conclusion of his epistle to Friends in Ireland (232. 1), that he had "ordered Nathanael Willmour" to send over the heads of what he spoke at Y.M. to "his Father in Law [step-father] Thomas Starkey," but he had not heard that they were received (ms. in D). Thomas Starkey was one of several eminent persons who frequently solicited the Government in Dublin on behalf of sufferers (Suff. ii. 483). See 123. 2.

Fox refers to a collection of his "Speeches att y^e yearly Meetings" in his testamentary papers (vol. ii. p. 348).

- 213 1 See 97. 5.

- 215 1 Thomas Sternhold (d. 1549) was joint versifier of the Psalms with John Hopkins (d. 1570). The singing of hymns in public worship, apart from psalm-singing, had not by this time been introduced or become a source of much controversy; the date generally given is 1691 (The Baptist Quarterly, July, 1924).

There is a valuable article by Georgina King Lewis in F. Q. E. 1919—"Puritan Singing in the Seventeenth Century."

Cooke, Some Considerations...to all that sing David's Psalms, 1870; American Friend, 1907, pp. 552 ff.; D. N. B.

- 216 1 Richard Thomas "was a member of the town corporation of Hertford, and also, I believe, a magistrate. His name figures prominently in the early minute books of Hertford M.M. and Q.M. That he was a man of good education with a thorough understanding of the law, is evidenced by his bold stand before the magistrates. He was a pillar of strength to Quakerism in Hertfordshire" (Samuel Gravason on "The Hertford Quaker Trials of 1664," in F. Q. E. 1916). Thomas, with others, wrote several replies to accusations of William Haworth, an Independent preacher, that "Jesus of Nazareth was not the Quaker Messiah." 1678-1678. He subscribed £25 to the building fund of Hertford meetinghouse, 1670.

A. R. B. mss. in D, no. 206.

- 216 2 For Thomas Dockray see vol. ii. p. 488. He was in London in 1678 (pp. 272, 273). We presume his residence in Ware was only temporary. Robert Barrow's letter on the death of George Fox (see vol. ii. p. 495) was addressed to Dockray among other north-country Friends (The Friend (Lond.), 1902, p. 136), and Fox left word that he was to "Come up to London to assist friends in Sorting of my Epistles & other writings & Give him a Guiney" (vol. ii. p. 340). He is given as "of Lyndeth in the County of Lancaster" (vol. ii. p. 361).

- 217 1 Of Benjamin Brown (1634-1704) there is a long account in F. P. T. (pp. 298, 299). He was convinced of the tenets of Quakerism by Christopher Knapton (for whom see F. P. T. pp. 286-288) and soon began to spread abroad the truth as he saw it. He visited Ireland in 1688, 1687 and 1693 (Jnl. F. H. S. x. 159, 161) and Scotland in 1692—"a deep man of experience" (ibid. xii. 141), and several of the plantations in America. "He was of the Apostles mind, not having much Outwardly to Live upon, wrought with his hands [as a shoemaker] in Several Places when in Travels upon Truths account. He was much troubled with a Cough, which he thought he got in America with Lyeing in the woods all night and Wadeing in the Rivers." He travelled in England with John Taylor (John Taylor, 1710, pp. 49, 61). He was taken ill at the house of John Burleigh at Wetherby and was buried at Tadcaster.

- 217 2 Charles Harris and his father-in-law, Dr John Raunce, were the leading Friends in the Wycombe Separation. In 1687 Upperside M.M., in Bucks, wrote to the Second Days Morning Meeting in London "of the very immodest & obscene Carriages" of Charles Harris, "he is joyned to the separate Meeting his flather Raunce bath set up," a minute signed by eighteen Friends (copy by Thomas Ellwood, in Bristol mss., reprinted Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 196). In 1703 there is in the same mss. a letter describing Harris as "a man disowned by friends many years ago for his work of separation" and in 1705 a minute was made by Bucks Q.M. and sent to Bristol respecting Harris, signed by twenty-four Friends. Before the time of his declension, presumably, he wrote several short pieces dated 1689 and 1670. Later, in collaboration with Dr Raunce and Benjamin Cosle, he produced articles adverse to the general body of Friends.

Second Period, pp. 307, 476, 485.

- 217 3 John Hart appears in a list of Friends of Nottingham Meeting in 1685 (Jnl. F. H. S. xvii. 46). He was a tallow-chandler. He was one of the first trustees of the Almshouses built and endowed by Elizabeth Heath, of Mansfield, circa 1687 (ibid. x. 63). He signed a M.M. Document at Nottingham in 1707.

For Hart of Nottingham see Smith, Smith of Cusley, 1678, p. 69; Jnl. F. H. S. viii. 8.

- 218 1 The "Coffy house" is probably connected with the Chamber adjoining Westminster Hall referred to earlier (60. 10). "Coffee was first sold in England at a Coffee House in an alley adjacent to Lombard Street in 1652" (Old Lombard Street, 1912, p. 33). It was advertised as "a simple Innocent thing, incomparable good for those that are troubled with melancholy." We would fain know more of this coffee-house used by Friends.

- 219 1 Joan Purkins was one of the Friends who signed the General Testimony to Anne Whitehead (148. 2). Further knowledge respecting her or her son-in-law is lacking.
- 222 1 This last writing of George Fox is given in Ell. Text (ii. 503) with the following preamble: "The sense of the great hardships and sore sufferings that Friends had been and were under in Ireland, coming with great weight upon me, I was moved to write the following epistle, as a word of consolation unto them." Fines and imprisonment were the order of the day. The former are said to have amounted in one year (1689) to £100,000 (note to Ell. Text).
- 222 2 Letters respecting the illness, death and burial of George Fox were: (1) William Penn to Margaret Fox (Tercent. Text, p. 348, original in D, facsimile in Graham, William Penn, p. 192); (2) Robert Barrow to some Friends in the North (Tercent. Text, p. 347); (3) Anon. to John Airey (vol. ii. p. 369); (4) Henry Gouldney to Sir John Rodas (Quaker Post-Bag, 1910, p. 51, see Jnl. F. H. S. i. 54); (5) Robert Barrow to John Vaughton (Reynolds mss. in D, copy).
- 222 3 The Friends who spoke at the meetinghouse were James Parke, Robert Barrow, Ambrose Rigge, Jasper Batt, William Penn, Francis Camfield, Charles Marshall, Stephen Crisp, John Taylor, Francis Stamper and George Whitehead, and Thomas Green ended in prayer. Vol. ii. p. 495; The Friend (Lond.), 1902, p. 138.
- 222 4 Testimonies to Fox at the graveside at Bunhill Fields were given by William Penn, Jasper Batt, George Whitehead, John Vaughton and William Bingley. The Bunhill Fields belonging to Friends was and is separate from the general burialground of that name. Vol. ii. p. 485; The Friend (Lond.), 1902, p. 136. Testimonies respecting George Fox were penned by Luke Howard, Ambrose Rigge, John Taylor, Richard Robinson, John Bowster, Edward Bourns, Leonard Fell, Thomas Robertson, Stephen Hubbersty, Robert Jones, Friends in Berkshire and in Oxfordshire, by Margaret Fox and her children, the Second Days Morning Meeting, Thomas Ellwood. See Ell. Text, ii. 525. The Friends requested by Fox to see to the printing of his Journal and other writings were John Blaykling, George Whitehead, Thomas Dockray, William Meade, John Rous, John Vaughton, Stephen Crisp, John Whitehead, Thomas Robertson, Benjamin Autrohus, Thomas Lower, Thomas Ellwood and John Field. They made an appeal for assistance through the medium of the Epistle of Y.M. 1691.
- 225 1 For Rachel Fell, afterwards Abraham, youngest of the children of Thomas and Margaret Fell, see vol. ii. p. 452.
- 225 2 This was the Westmorland Thomas Pearson. He signed various early epistles sent from the North (Epistles of London Y.M. 1681 to 1687, vol. i.). He died in 1691; his wife, Agnes, died in 1687. The burialground was Height. Powbank (also called Poolbank) was a considerable Meeting; its contributions to the Swarthmoor Fund are recorded in Swarth. Mss. vol. i. The house is still owned and inhabited by a descendant of Thomas Pearson (Westmorland Quaker Records, cuttings from the Kendal Mercury and Times, 1902).
- There was a Thomas Pearson and wife Margery, from Cheshire, who went to the New World in 1682, and another Thomas Pearson and wife Grace, of Lancashire, who emigrated in 1698.
- 225 3 For Thomas Camm see vol. ii. p. 388 and Ell. Text, ii. 255 n. Thomas Camm and his wife, Ann Audland, had a daughter Mary, born 1669,

- who married John Moore, of Eldroth, in 1691. The statement in vol. ii. p. 388 is incorrect.
- 226 1 "Richard Robinson, of Countersett in Wensleydale, who was born at Preston, in the said dale, in the year 1622, was the first person that was convinced...in those parts" (F. P. T.). He travelled in the ministry in many places in his home district and spoke in "many Steeplehouses & in Markit places." There is a record in the State Papers (Cal. S. P. Dom. 1663—4, p. 338) of a business visit to London. His house is still standing on the edge of the beautiful lake of Semerwater. He deceased in 1693. He wrote a useful pamphlet on local persecutions named A Blast Blown out of the North... 1680, and also wrote A Warning to the inhabitants of the whole Earth, 1679. For a view of Counterside meetinghouse see Early Friends in the North, by John William Steel, 1906.
- For Richard Robinson of Brigflatts see vol. i. p. 403.
- 226 2 Widow of James Tennant (vol. i. pp. 41, 403). The record of this visit here has been incorporated into the ELL Text (ii. 256).
- Elizabeth Tennant, of Bentham in Settle M.M., widow, died 28 viii. 1853, perhaps widow of James Tennant, who also belonged to Settle M.M.
- 227 1 Marmaduke Beckwith (—1704) lived at Burton-on-Ure. The following reference to ill-treatment is culled from Richard Robinson's tract (226. 1): "Marmaduke Beckwith (now of High Burton) going in the Town to get his Horse, a Man in great Rage said, 'Thou Dog, cannot thou speak?' and took him off the Ground by the Hair of the Head, and cast him down at his Feet, and then fuddled him sore with his Foot or Foot on his Head, both before and behind, that it swelled, and much Hair came off; and also fuddled him in like manner on his back" (p. 8). Beckwith married Elizabeth Thesketon, of Ellington, in 1668. In 1682 was printed A True Relation of the Life and Death of Sarah Beckwith [c. 1671—1691], Daughter of Marmaduke and Elizabeth Beckwith of Audbrough near Masham in York-shire. This little tract is composed of Testimonies by Sarah's parents, sister, and friends. See also Piety Promoted.
- 227 2 George Robinson lived at Borrowby in the North Riding of York-shire. He signed several early epistles sent out from the North (Epistles of P.M. 1681 to 1857, 1858, vol. i.). The incident of the "cunning Justice" is made more clear in ELL Text, ii. 256. The statement made by the justice was intended to provoke a denial that it was a silent meeting and a confession that Fox had spoken. He then could have fined them on their own confession, "but Friends standing in the wisdom of God did not answer him according to his desire and so escaped his snare." ELL Text follows the Diary very closely.
- 227 3 Richard Watson, of Norton, near Stockton, Co. Durham, is several times mentioned in Sagf. In 1666 he married Jane Townsend (c. 1647—1680). In 1676 he had six cows taken from him for preaching in a Darlington meeting. Richard Watson and another were appointed, c. 1672, to speak to a Friend "about his intention of taking of a woman of the world to wife" (Steel, Early Friends in the North, 1905, p. 28). Richard Watson was a son of Thomas and Esther Watson.
- 227 4 Robert Linton (c. 1632—1716) lived at South Shields, Co. Durham. His wife was Joan Purrot (c. 1631—1715). Both Robert and Joan Linton sent presents of wine to Swarthmoor Hall in 1678 (Swarth. Account Book, pp. 315, 568). They were useful members of the Quaker Church at Gateshead (Friends in Newcastle and Gateshead, 1653—1898, p. 39, see pp. 8, 12, 20). "Robert Linton was one of the chief salt-pan owners in South Shields. In 1667 he had five pans, according to the Assessing List" (Steel, Early Friends in the North, 1906, p. 19, see also pp. 5, 18, 47).

Whitby and Scarborough Register, p. 22 (MR. in D).

- 228 1 Isaac Lindley (bapt. 1624, died 1705) lived at Yarm on the South (Yorkshire) side of the River Tees. He wrote a letter to Fox in 1669, which is mentioned in Camb. Text (vol. ii. p. 134) and printed in Ell. Text (ii. 105). A Testimony from the Yearly Meeting at York, 16 iv. 1688, addressed to the M.M.s in the county was signed by Mary Lindley, Isabel Yeatman, Frances Taylor, Elizabeth Leaper, Mary Wayte, and others.

F. P. T.

- 228 2 Thomas Wayte (d. 1695) was a prominent York Friend and a hook-seller and printer, also a local agent for the publications of Friends (Jnl. F. H. S. ii. v.). In 1677 we find him sending to Swarthmoor for juniper berries (Swarth. Account Book, p. 419). His printing office was in the Pavement. His name appears in a list of booksellers and printers prepared by Henry R. Plomer and printed in 1907.

Wayte married Mary Smith (d. 1689), a Minister "who laboured much in the Ministry & in laying frds sufferings before such as were in Authority" (F. P. T. p. 318). Her name appears in First-days Meetings, pp. 138, 140. She signed, with other women, documents issued by York Friends—in 1680 (228. 1) and in 1688, with Elizabeth Beckwith, Mary Lindley and others (Jnl. F. H. S. ii. 42).

- 228 3 Edward Nightingale was a merchant living in Ousegate, York. At this time he seems to be in good esteem. Later he joined the Separatists in York (117. 2). In 1675 he consigned a box to George Fox at Swarthmoor Hall, the carriage of which from Lancaster cost two-pence (Swarth. Account Book, p. 243, see p. 564).

- 228 4 William Siddall (d. 1687), of Tadcaster, appears among Friends belonging to Tadcaster Meeting in 1668/9 (Jnl. F. H. S. ii. 32). Ell. Text (ii. 259) gives the names of places but not of Friends at Tadcaster, Knottingley and Doncaster.

- 228 5 The name of Samuel Poole appears with others in a very long list given by Bease (Suff. ii. 102), of Friends (229 in number) arrested in the West Riding on various charges in 1660. In 1662 Poole and two others received the severe sentence of premunure—put out of the King's protection, lands and goods forfeited to the King, and a prisoner at the King's pleasure. His wife, Baptista, died in 1692.

- 228 6 Henry Cooke (d. 1686) was of Sikehouse, in Bailby M.M. Neither person nor residence is mentioned in Ell. Text.

- 228 7 For John Killam see vol. i. p. 461, and note 58. 1.

- 228 8 Thomas Aldam (1649—1722/3) was son and heir of Thomas Aldam (11. 1), of Warmaworth (d. 1690). He was repeatedly imprisoned in York Castle. He erected a meetinghouse on a portion of his estate (11. 1). He had considerable knowledge of Latin, Greek and Hebrew. He married Ann Stacy, daughter of Robert, of Ballifield, in 1671. She died in 1735.

- 228 9 In Jnl. F. H. S. xix, there is a full account of Jackson of Mealdale and Wooddale, Yorks. Henry Jackson here mentioned (1633/4—1710), son of Henry Jackson (1593—1667), became a Friend and a Minister. He was a man of influence and wealth, and about 1682 he built Tottise Hall, Wooddale. He suffered imprisonment at Lincoln, Warwick and York. In 1661 he was taken from an inn in Warwickshire and committed to prison, "their giving thanks before Supper being called preaching at a Conventicle" (Suff. i. 174; for a similar arrest see vol. ii. p. 188). His wife was Katherine Cooke (d. 1696). His son, Henry Jackson (1680—1727), was also a prominent Friend and travelling Minister.

- 228 10 For Thomas Killam see vol. ii. p. 465.

- 228 11 For Thomas Stacy see vol. i. p. 423. His estrangement from Friends seems, according to later information, to have been ended at this time (see footnote p. 229). Ell. Text refers impersonally to the difference between some and adds that "they were reconciled." In earlier days Stacy was one of the Publishers of Truth who visited Bedfordshire (F. P. T.).

- 229 1 John Fox (d. 1716) was a mercer, of Wymeswold near Loughborough. In 1680 he married Elizabeth Wells, probably daughter of William Wells, of Knighton (230 2). Fox and family were subject to severe and sad suffering. In November, 1684, after repeated finings, a carpenter was engaged to take down the bedsteads, etc., except the bed which his sick wife occupied. "They took away their Meat and Drink, and the Cooks their Beer was in. They also took the Matting that was nail'd to the Floor...." Later, "having heard that the poor man had got some Bedding again, they came and swept away all they could find. In the evening the Weather being cold, his whole family, viz. his Wife, four small Children, the eldest not four years old, and two Maid-Servants, were constrained to lodge at other Houses" (Suff. i. 344). Despite his spoliation, Fox seems to have prospered financially as he was able to lend £10 for Meeting purposes (Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 73).

- 229 2 For William Smith, of Sileby, in Leicestershire, see vol. i. p. 423. His death took place, probably, in 1708.

- 230 1 Samuel Browne (c. 1648—1722) was a physician and apothecary, of Leicester. He is known to bibliographers by the little book he wrote, An Account and Testimony of Samuel Browne, Concerning his dear Mother, Sarah Browne, 1693 (see vol. ii. p. 383). There are two references to Samuel Browne in Hesse (Suff. i. 340, 344). He married Edith Elton, of Atherstone, in 1670. A son, Samuel, died in 1683. His name is omitted from Ell. Text (ii. 259).

- 230 2 William Wells and his wife Ann lived at Knighton, near Leicester. It was probably their daughter Elizabeth who married John Fox (229. 1) in 1680 "at the house of Widow Wells." William Wells died in 1678 and his wife died in 1680. They were buried in their own garden-ground.

There is little to be recorded of many of these Friends visited by Fox on his journey South. They lived lives apart from the constant movement of "public friends," but they valiantly upheld the light of Truth in the places where they lived and suffered. We honour them though we know little of them.

- 230 3 "One of the first Sufferers in this County [Leicester] was Edward Muggleston, an ancient Man of Swanington, who was twice obliged to appear at London, ninety Miles from his Dwelling, before a Committee of Parliament appointed to enquire into the State of such Preachers as had been plundered during the Civil Wars; While he was attending on them at that Distance, a Seizure was made of his Goods...for Tithes" (Beane, Suff. i. 330, see also pp. 331—334, anno 1652). In 1684 Edward Muggleston married Jane Walker. His name is omitted from Ell. Text.
- 230 4 Samuel Fretwell's name has not been found among Quaker data. His place of residence, Harteborn, is near Burton-on-Trent.
- 230 5 There are two notices of Henry Siden (Siddons, Siddin) in White's Friends in Warwickshire (3rd ed. 1894, pp. 26, 97). Baddenley Ennor, sixteen miles from Birmingham, was, perhaps, about 1680, the largest gathering of Friends in the county and Henry Siden one of the principal Friends (ibid. p. 97). The visit was paid on the 5th of May; on the 25th Fox wrote to Siden: "Now concerning the thing thou speakest to me of, that Sarah Harris should say to the that W^m Mead & W^m Penn did ware Perrywigs & call them Perriwig men—first concerning W^m Mead he bid me putt my hand upon his head and feel and said he never ware Perriwig in his life & wonder'd at it, and as for W^m Penn he did say that he did ware a little civil border because his hair was Come of his head...." For remainder of letter, which is in the handwriting of William Penn, in D, see Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 157; Second Period, p. 68 n. Fox concludes with a message of "love to thee & thy wife & father & N. Newton."
- 230 6 Richard Baal, of Whittington, has not been found among quakeriana searched. The name is given as Ball in Ell. Text (ii. 280).
- 231 1 Nathaniel Newton (—c. 1711) was of Hartehill, near Atherstone (vol. ii. p. 416). He was a man of property, and resided at the fine old Elizabethan mansion still standing at Hartehill (White, Friends in Warwickshire, 3rd ed. 1894, p. 26, see also pp. 32, 89, 90, 97—98; Jnl. F. H. S. ii. 43). Nathaniel, the younger, was the founder of the Hartehill Friends' school.
- 231 2 John Elliott, of North Kilworth, is described by Beane as a "husband-man." He passed some years in prison in Leicester (Suff. i. 332, 340, 345). Ell. Text omits several places and names. From Hartehill Fox "passed on, visiting Friends in divers places till I came to Dingley" (ii. 260).
- 231 3 There is an interesting document among State Papers Domestic (Cul. 1686—6, pp. 64, 65—Extracts from State Papers, pp. 6—10), which contains lists of names of Friends considered as suitable for appointment as Justices of the Peace in different districts and of non-Quakers friendly and unfriendly. The first name under Northamptonshire in the list of "freindes Names that have estates in this County and judged to be fitting men to Rule for god" is that of "Thomas Allen, of Dingley, a man of about one hundred pound A years, one that were one of the first that owned truth 4 yeares agoe and hath bene servisable for truth ever since."
- Thomas Allen was one of the 401 persons liberated from jail by the "General Pardon" of 1672. (Extracts from State Papers, p. 346—Cul. S. P. Dom. 1671—2, p. 488.)
- His name is omitted from Ell. Text, ii. 280. His dates have not been found.

- 231 4 Thomas Charles, of Adingworth, that is Arthingworth, is mentioned in ELL Text, ii. 260, but more respecting him does not appear.
- 231 5 Benoni Bradshaw, of Northampton, and Elizabeth, his wife, were sent to Northampton Town Prison out of a meeting in the town in 1690 (Suff. i. 532, 533). Benjamin Bradshaw died in 1689. His name is not given in ELL Text, ii. 260.
- 231 6 Edward Cowper (c. 1638—1706) has a record in F. P. T. He was "Wise, grave, Meek, and Vertuous in his deportm^t among friends & towards all People, which well became his Hoar Head as y^e servant of y^e Lord... He is missed dearly" (p. 185, written in 1707). He married Ann Meakinga. See 122. 4.
Suff.
- 231 7 James Briarly, of Olney, is included in Besse's great books of Sufferings (vol. i. pp. 76, 77, 79, 81). He married Thomasin Knight, of Olney, and died in 1691.
- 231 8 William Richardson's name is not given in ELL Text, ii. 260, in connection with Fox's visit to Turvey. Further respecting him is yet to be discovered, save his death in 1685.
- 232 1 John Rush, Senior and Junior, lived at Kempston Hardwick, about four miles S.W. of Bedford. John, Senior, died in prison in 1681 (Memory of the Faithful Reviv'd, etc. in D). The son was released from Bedford Jail by the "General Pardon" of 1672, as was also Tabitha Rush, his mother, and John Bunyan. He married Hannah Dewsbury, of Burton, Yorks, in 1686 (c. 1646—1707). See vol. i. p. 434.
- 232 2 The name Gamble occurs in connection with that of Rush (232. 1) in F. P. T. John Rush, the elder, and Henry Gamble of Pollockshill, were among the first entertainers of travelling Ministers. Thomas Gamble "now Living in y^e Parish," anno 1704/5, was the grandson of Henry Gamble.
- 232 3 George Sawyer's name does not appear in ELL Text, ii. 260, in connection with Market Street.
This is the first mention of Leonard Fell in ELL Text since he joined Fox at the outset of his journey southward; the Haistwell Diary records much of his doings between the two events.
- 232 4 Edmund How's name does not appear in the ELL Text, ii. 260. Notice that the Diary gives "S^t Albaines," here and on p. 259, which later, in more formal times, was reduced to "Albans." See S^t Ives (p. 43) and cp. ELL Text, i. 267.
- 232 5 For Thomas Rudyard see vol. ii. p. 420. He is mentioned twice in Camb. Text and numerous times in the Haistwell Diary but not in the Itinerary Journal. It is said that he divested himself of his Quakerism, hence, probably, he is not mentioned in the ELL Text (ii. 261). The unhappy ancient custom of crossing out the names of Seceders where they occur in writings of various kinds (see e.g. F. P. T. pp. 218 f.) has been adopted once in the Haistwell Diary (p. 257), where, in line 11, his name has a stroke through it. Rudyard was in Holland in 1671 with William Penn (Penn, Travels, 1835 ed. pp. 86, 90, 114) and again in 1677, associated with Isabel Yeomans (pp. 247—249), though he is not mentioned in the list of the party going over or coming back. His name occurs with those of Richard Mew, Job Bolton and others, in a pamphlet named The Second Part of the Peoples... Libertines asserted... Trials, etc., 1670. He was "died one hundred pounds, being convict of several Trespasses and Contempts" (p. 31). His will was proved in 1698 (The Friend (Lond.), 1880, p. 224). Richard Davies, 1710, p. 191; Myers, Narratives of Early Pa., 1919; Jnl. F. H. S. x. xi. xiii. xviii. xix.

- 233 1 There is a full note to Ellis Hookes, the first Recording Clerk or general secretary, in vol. ii. p. 402.
- 233 2 For Jane Woodcock see vol. ii. p. 453 and note 93. 1.
- 233 3 The Epistle of the Y.M. of 1677 is dated 12 iv. 1677 and issued by "a Meeting held at Ellis Hookes his chamber." (This meeting is noted on p. 234, par. 4.) It is signed by 66 Friends, among them being Thomas Taylor, Henry Jackson, Giles Bernardiston, Roger Longworth, Richard Davies, Leonard Fall, Stephen Smith, Ambrose Riggs, William Gonnell, Benjamin Antrobus, Richard Pinder, Richard Vickris, James Claypoole, Jasper Batt, John Burnyeat, John Elson, John Daw, John Vaughton, Ezekiel Woolley, Charles Marshall, John Blayking, William Penn, Francis Moore, William Gibson, Christopher Taylor, Bray D'Oyly, Thomas Burr, Richard Sneed, Thomas Eliwood, Thomas Robertson. It was a gathering for Ministers only (Jnl. F. H. S. ii. 93).
- 233 4 William Welch was a merchant of Rotterdam in 1663 (Extracts from State Papers, p. 181—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1663—4, p. 388). He appears to have been led away for a while in sympathy with the Hat-men, 1689 (Steven Crisp and his Correspondence, 1892, p. 24). About 1669, with William Penn, William Meads, William Shewen, John Osgood, Samuel Newton, Stephen Crisp, Francis Moore, he signed a petition to the King against convictions as Popish Recusants, etc. (Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 136), and in 1672 his signature is appended, with those of G. Whitehead, Gerard Roberts, John Osgood, Thomas Moore and Ellis Hookes, to a letter to Friends in Colchester (Steven Crisp, p. 8, see p. 17). Welch held appointments among London Friends in 1668 and for London M.M. in 1672 (Sundry Ancient Epistles, pp. 35, 41). In 1690 Welch wrote from Stoke-by-Nayland, Co. Suffolk, a Testimony to Giles Bernardiston (237. 3), see The Life of Christ, etc., 1881.
- William Welch, presumably the same, was in Scotland in 1657. The statement in vol. i. p. 297, that "Will: Welchs wife" was convinced is verified by the extract of a letter among Thurloe Papers, dated Leith, 19 Sept. 1656, which states: "This day Mr William Welch told mee that his wife, Sarah Welch, who is one of the cheefe of the Quakers told him," etc. (Jnl. F. H. S. viii. 165). In a letter from Penn to Margaret Fox, among the Thirbeck mss. in D, dated London, 29 viii. 1684, we read: "y^e day W^m Welch was to leave y^e place y^e in regard to his low estate I had putt him in to go to Jersey, he fell sick & in 3 or 4 days departed this life" (Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 143).
- There was a William Welch, perhaps the same Friend, belonging to Hoxham M.M. 1668, who contributed towards an early Loan Fund (Jnl. F. H. S. iv. 163) and for whom the King signed a release, c. 1668, from a sentence of premanure while lying in Hoxham Jail (Extracts from State Papers, p. 285—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1665—8, p. 323), and William Welch was released from the Fleet Prison by the "General Pardon" of 1672 (ibid. pp. 343, 353—Cal. 1671—2, p. 489).
- In 1682 William Welch, of Stoke-by-Nayland, was convicted and imprisoned ("The Norwich Case" by Arthur J. Eddington, in Norfolk and Norwich Archae. Soc. vol. xxii. (1924), 17—44).
- 233 5 Could "one Dr Moor" be Doctor Henry More (1614—1667), the great Cambridge Platonist? We know that Dr More was distressed when the Countess Conway (267. 1) was perverted to Quakerism and he had much to say and write against Friends, including a long letter addressed to William Penn, who had called upon the doctor "at my lodging in Paul's Church-yard when I was last in London." Richard Ward in his Life of Dr More, 1710, writes: "He wrote to Mr. Pen a very excellent Letter concerning Baptism and the Lord's Supper....And for their great Leader (as most account of him) George Fox himself, he hath said to come: That in conversing with him, he felt himself, as it were, turn'd into Brass. So much did the Spirit, Cruelty, or Perverseness of that Person move and offend his Mind," adding: "See also what he farther speaks of him. Schol. in Dial. 5 Sect. 5" (p. 187). In one of More's letters, advising "how to keep a perpetual Calmness," he writes: "A Soul so well awakened into the Sense of the Best Things can scarce want any External Director or Monitor. The Quakers Principle is the most Safe and Seasonable here, to keep close to the Light within a Man" (p. 247). (Italics are as printed in the Life.)

- 234 1 These initials represent Robert Barclay and William Rogers. The Yearly Meeting of Ministers in June, 1677, provided the occasion for a debate between Rogers and Barclay, which was attended by Fox and some thirty-six others, and arranged by the Morning Meeting (called by Rogers "a Company of Nameless Meeters"!). The date given in Rogers's outstanding work, The Christian Quaker Distinguished from the Apostate and Innovator, in eight parts, 1680—1682, pt. iii. p. 128, is 7th June, exactly the date given by Haistwell, though his reference to the important conference is very brief. See Second Period, p. 347. Rogers was a Bristol merchant and before his defection he was a helpful Friend. He signed the Fox-Fell wedding certificate (Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 100) and recorded some of the Testimonies spoken on this occasion. In February, 1675/6, he was yet among Friends (ibid. iv. 119, ix. 189, xi. 161) but shortly afterwards he joined the Separatist body. "He scornfully reviled his quondam brethren in paltrey verses, stating that some sustenance had been given from the public cash to indigent preachers....To this it was answered that if it pleased God to call to His ministry persons of mean estate, the Church was not warranted to hinder it and let such suffer want" (Sewel, Hist., sub anno 1683). His wife was Elizabeth.

There was a "Francis Rogers, of Bristol, part owner of the Duke and Duchess, privateers that picked up 'Robinson Crusoe'" (Jnl. F. H. S. vi. 4, ix. 102).

- 234 2 For Col. Kirkby see vol. ii. p. 390. For a brief notice of his funeral, 10 Sept. 1681, see Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 21. He had expressed friendship with Fox but did not act on it (vol. ii. pp. 38, 47). It is to be hoped that now his friendship went deeper.
- 234 3 William Gossnell's place of residence has not been found or his dates. He was associated with other Friends in the Hat Controversy against the "Hat-men," being named in Penn's Alexander the Coppersmith, 1673, and Judas and the Jews, 1673, with Samuel Newton, James Claypoole, John Osgood, John Swinton, Henry Stout, Solomon Eccles, Rebecca Travers and Ellis Hookes.

Bridget Gossnell married Philip Ford (107. 3).

stepdaughter, 1672, probably in the handwriting of Thomas Ellwood, to which are attached forty-six signatures, among them being those of the following, mentioned in these notes: Isaac Pennington, wife Mary, daughter Mary, Alexander Parker, George Whitehead, Samuel Newton, William Welch, Gerard Roberts, James and Helena Claypoole, Thomas Rudyard, Charles Harris, Edward Mann, Thomas and Mary Ellwood, Jane Bullock, Sarah Welch, and Mary Welch, Mary Newton and Mary Odingspells. The signatures are in the same writing as the certificate.

Rogers, Christian Quaker, 1680, pt. v. pp. 34, 43, 44, 46, 53, where Fox is charged with encouraging Mary Pennington to secure her husband's and her own estates "against the spoiler."

- 235 2 For George Keith see vol. ii. p. 456—a full account. For his wife, Elizabeth Keith, see 237. 2. There is a useful account of the Keithian Controversy as it affected Byberry Meeting, Pa., in Conely's Friends Miscellany, vol. vii. (1835), pp. 103 ff.

- 235 3 For Stephen Smith see vol. ii. p. 446. For his widow see 78. 4.

- 235 4 For a long note on Roger Williams see vol. ii. p. 438. Williams's "very envious and wicked book" (Ell. Text, ii. 284) was George Fox Digged out of his Burrows and the reply was entitled A New England Fire-Brand Quenched.

- 236 1 Of William Lilley no information is forthcoming, save that which appears in a note to his widow (168. 2).

- 236 2 A very careful record of this visit to Holland and Germany was kept by Edward Haistwell (116. 2), while travelling with "his Esteemed and well-beloved Friend and Master," and when ill at Embden his Master "took an Account of his passages till hee came to Embden again" in about three weeks' time (pp. 241, 247). This Account was probably revised by Haistwell, who inserted it in its place in his own record. The Ell. Text gives 46 pages to the journey and the papers written the while. For William Penn's journal see 239. 2. For Fox's later visit to Holland see 83. 2. For Holland see vol. ii. p. 411. For the condition of Holland at about this period see The Dutch drawn from the Life, London, 1684.

While her father was in Holland business-like Sarah Fell sent him from Swarthmoor some specimens of iron-ore (Swarth. Account Book, pp. xxiil, 411, 413); later a box arrived at Swarthmoor containing maps and cheeses from Holland (ibid. pp. 443, 459); and Mrs Yeamans brought back with her a Dutch spinning-wheel (ibid. p. 477).

A multitude of flying visits were paid to Holland during many years, but despite these and the work of Dutch Friends the Quaker Church dwindled. Many Friends emigrated to America. Jan Claus described the depleted condition even in 1686, in a letter to London (Bulletin F. H. S. Phila. iv, 56). In 1845 John Stephen Mollet (1768—1851) was said to be the last survivor, or, as Peter Bedford (1780—1884) put the case, speaking to William Tallack in Mollet's presence: "William, thou seest before thee the whole Monthly, Quarterly and Yearly Meeting of Friends in Holland" (Jnl. F. H. S. v. 126 n.). There has, however, been some revival of late years.

In the portion of the Diary relating to the Low Countries we have had the valuable assistance of Rev. D. Mulder, of Westwood, Holland, a former Woodbrooke student.

- 236 3 John Furly, the elder (1618—1686), was a son of John Furly (c. 1590—1673) who was Alderman of Colchester in 1637 and Mayor in 1650 (Steven Cripp and his Correspondents, p. xlii). His wife's name was Anna. His eldest son was John (235. 1) and there were other children.
- 236 4 John Vandewall (1646—1707) lived at Harwich, and was a baker and merchant. He was the eldest son of John Vandewall (c. 1621—c. 1657) and Mary his wife (d. post 1670). He married, 1669, Hannah Mace, Junr., of Harwich, in 1679, Susanna Cottisford, and in 1682 Mary Dove, probably of the same family as Francis Dove (188. 1). He was an active Friend and sufferer for the cause.
Steven Cripp and his Correspondents, 1892; J. J. Green, Hist. of the Vandewall Family, 1902 (in ms.).
- 237 1 William Talcot (Taylcot) was born about 1622, became a wealthy tradesman and died at his home at Colchester in 1697. His wife Ann died in 1708, aged 84. She is mentioned in Steven Cripp and his Correspondents, 1892. A daughter, Ann, married John Furly, Junr. (235. 1), in 1669, and another, Mary, married Benjamin Dykes (100. 4). The name Talcot is widely spread in U.S.A.
Fell-Smith, James Parnell, 1907, where we should probably read William for Thomas, see Bosse, Suff. i. 182.
- 237 2 "George Keith's wife" is the usual description of this Friend and for long we searched in vain for the baptismal name. In vol. ii. p. 455 it is given as Anna, following Quakers in the American Colonies, 1811, p. 369, but this is incorrect. William Penn in his journal (239. 2) writes Elizabeth Keith. George Keith married Elizabeth, daughter of Dr William Johnston and Barbara Forbes and widow of Dr Alexander White, professor in Marischal College, Aberdeen. She became a Friend after the death of her husband as also her mother Barbara Forbes. "Elizabeth Johnston, being a faithful and enlightened woman, became 'a succourer of many' and a considerable 'helper in Christ'" (Jaffray, Diary, p. 201). In Dr John Davidson's history of Inverurie and the Earlom of the Garrioch, p. 341, he writes, in a chapter on Quakerism: "Among those seduced into Quakerism at that time [1683] were the widow of Dr William Johnston, the Professor of Mathematics, and his daughter Elizabeth, whose second husband, Mr George Keith, was a ring-leader in the new sect." Friends of Aberdeen address a touching appeal to "our ancient Friends George and Elizabeth Keith," 23 iii. 1684, pleading for the restoration of love and unity and reminding George Keith of his early writings when in accord with the principles of early Quakerism (Jaffray, op. cit. p. 418, note H).
Information from Thomas Davidson, Fritchley, Derby, 1924.
- 237 3 Giles Barnardiston (c. 1624—1680) came of an ancient and honourable family, and received a university education lasting six years, his parents designing him for the ministry. Not feeling himself spiritually qualified therefor, he entered the army, but he had no soul satisfaction as a soldier, so retired to Wormingford Lodge. About 1661 he invited the company of some Friends and was visited by George Fox, Junior, and George Wentherley, and was convinced. In 1669 he came forth as a Minister and took up his residence at his native place of Clare, in Suffolk. In 1672 his house at Clare was licensed for Presbyterian worship (Cal. S. P. Dom. 1672, p. 299). He was the means of the convince-ment of Samuel Waldenfield (180. 1; see vol. ii. p. 497). His wife was Frances Waldegrave; they had no children. He came into local prominence by defending Samuel Cater in his dispute with Francis Bugg, ex-Quaker (Bugg, The Painted Harlot Both Stript and Whipt, 1682; see, by the same author, Joseph Wickstead, 1699). Ann Doowra (c. 1634—1710), of Cambridge, replying in her book, An Apostate Conscience Exposed, 1689, to a work by Bugg, writes: "I heard this story [that 'George Fox had in one Night's time 24 Languages given to him by Devine Inspiration'] many years ago & spoke of it to my Brother G. Barnardistone of Clare [? outward or spiritual relationship], a Man well known to be a Wise and Honest Man; I told him, that we had some Shatter-brained People amongst us, and if they went on so, we should want a Religious Bedlam for such Mad Folks; my Brother Replied, that...the best way was to use them kindly so long as they were morally Honest, for some had recovered, being sincerely Honest, but they were not to be disturbed, for that would make them worse" (p. 18). Barnardistone was in prison in Chelmsford "many years" (Whiting, Memoirs, where there is a good résumé of his life, p. 53). He undertook many preaching tours and was in Holland with John Furry. Testimonies to the value of life and work were written by John Furry, Thomas Burr, Samuel Waldenfield, William Welch, George Whitehead and others (The Life of Christ Magnified in his Minister... Giles Barnardistone, 1881). An abstract of his will is printed in Jnl. F. H. S. vii. 43. He styled himself Giles Barnardistone, Junr.

237 4 For Robert Duncon see vol. i. p. 431.

237 5 George Weatherly lived at Colchester, Essex. He was helpful in the conviction of Giles Barnardistone (237. 3). He was committed to the Moot Hall, in Colchester, in 1660, for refusing the oath of allegiance. Messages of love from various Friends in Holland are noted in Steven Cripp and his Correspondents, 1892. His occupation was that of maltster (Fell-Smith, James Parnell, 1907, p. 52). In 1666 he married Mary Reed, of Colchester, widow. He died in 1686, aged 62, and his wife in 1697, aged 80.

237 6 Job Bolton belonged to the parish of St Edmunds, Lombard Street. Beese records several instances of suffering, on one occasion caused by Dr Bradford, the clergyman of the parish.

237 7 Arent (Aron) Sonemans was a merchant of Rotterdam where he was living when the English party breakfasted at his house (Penn, Travels, 1835, p. 3, see also pp. 149, 152). The question of the marriage to Aroun Sonemans of Frances, widow of John Swinton, is discussed by William F. Miller in Jnl. F. H. S. ii. 29. Sonemans resided later in Edinburgh. The Cambridge and Hunts Burial Registers record the end of this Friend: "Buried 16 vi. 1683—A Dutchman was shot by a Highwayman near Standgate, Huntingdon M.M." Juffray relates the incident under date 8 August, at Stonegatehole, Robert Barclay being with Sonemans at the time (Diary, p. 342).

237 8 Simon Johnson lived at Rotterdam. Farewells were said at his house, Friends gathering there at seven a.m. (Penn, Travels, 1835, p. 152). Further information is not at hand.

Klassen of the city of Haarlem. George Fox, Peter Hendricks and Gertrude Diricks lodged a night at his house.

The journey from Rotterdam to Leiden, and probably onward to Haarlem, was by means of "a boat drawn by a horse that went on the shore"—this picturesque touch is in the Ell. Text, ii. 267. The boat was probably the famous Dutch trekschuit (drawn by horses).

- 238 2 Gertrude Diricks Nieson (so named in Ell. Text) (d. 1687) was one of three sisters, living, in a good position, in Amsterdam. The eldest sister, Niecey, died about 1662; the youngest, Annekin, married William Caton (c. 1635—1685) in 1662. Gertrude, the middle sister, married a wealthy Dutchman, Adrian Van Losvelt, who was said to be "inconsistent & fickle, little as yet seasoned with truth." He died, presumably, prior to Fox's visit, leaving two children, Cornelie who married Abigail Furly, daughter of John Furly, the younger (255. 1), in 1686, and another. Gertrude Diricks and her two children crossed to Harwich with the returning party. The voyage was a stormy one and Gertrude succumbed to sea-sickness (letter from Fox to Friends in Holland, original in D, printed Bulletin F. H. A. 1924). She and her children went to the home of Stephen Crisp, whence, 29 ix. 1677, she wrote An Epistle to Friends. Another visit to England followed, and she was probably in Colchester at the time of the death of S. Crisp's wife Dorothy in 1684. On the first of October, 1686, as "Gertrude Diricks Nieson," she married Stephen Crisp, and two years later died, after a short illness.

- 236 3 In fifteen numbered paragraphs William Penn sets out the decisions of this General Meeting, beginning "1. Be it known to all men that the power of God, the Gospel, is the authority of all our men's and women's meetings, and every heir of that power is an heir to that authority." He also gives a report of the proceedings at the "more select meeting," held at the house of Gertrude Diricks (Travels, 1685, pp. 4—10).
- 238 4 There are two notices of John Lodge in Steven Crisp and His Correspondents, 1892. He wrote to Stephen Crisp, from Amsterdam, 11 March, 1688/9, confessing that he had been led astray in the Hat Controversy—"thou art he against whom I had prepared myself against the day of battle....I did think the foundation of my house stood sure, but soon after was I made to feel that I was but as an old tottering wall. I felt the overgrown oak in me to bow like a young twig...all my armour broken to pieces and my spears turned into pruning hooks" (p. 24; see also Collectanea, p. 151). Another letter (p. 61) mentions Lodge being at great charges in teaching a Friend how to make combs. Lodge is mentioned in several of William Penn's letters to Friends in Holland, c. 1677, printed in Bulletin F. H. S. Phila. vol. iv. (1911).
- 239 1 Sir William J. Collins, M.D., in a lecture, in 1916, on "The General Baptists and the Friends" (Trans. Bapt. Hist. Soc. vol. ii.), stated that "Fox was consciously or unconsciously the exponent of an existing faith rather than the originator of a new one," many of the truths expounded by him having been held by General Baptists, Waterlander Mennonites and Collegiants, etc. As the meeting here recorded "ended in peace" we may suppose that the bearers of "several opinions" agreed, at least, in general with what they heard. For these bodies see Short Hist. of Quakerism, by Elizabeth B. Emmett, 1923. The Collegiants may be described as the Seekers of Holland. Without approved ministry or pre-arranged service their Collegia (or gatherings) met, men and women being on an equality as regards public ministry—Sacraments not essential, objection to oaths and fighting, believing in simplicity of life, mark of fellowship being brotherly love, and an attempt to carry out literally the Sermon on the Mount (ibid.).

- 239 2 William Penn's Account of Travels in Holland and Germany, in 1677, remained long in manuscript before publication. Penn tells us in his Preface: "A copy that was found amongst the late Countess of Conway's papers, falling into the hands of a person who much frequented that family [perhaps her friend, Francis van Helmont], he was earnest with me to have leave to publish it." The Account appeared first in 1694; the fourth edition appeared in 1835 in Barclay's Select Series, badly edited. It was also printed in the volumes of Penn's Works in 1726. The reference here must be to the manuscript. For a history of a manuscript (which is now in possession of the Hist. Soc. Pa., in Philadelphia) of the Travels see The Friend (Lond.), 1890, p. 40. A discourse on the Travels is reported in the Pa. Mag. vol. ii. (1876); extracts are given in Collected, pp. 369 E.

Penn had paid a short visit to Holland and Germany in 1671. He added "two of our servants" to the list of persons going over in 1677 (Travels, p. 2), and wrote: "The best accommodation was given us by special favour of the master (he having formerly served under my father)."

- 239 3 Elizabeth, Princess Palatine of the Rhine (1618—1680), was a daughter of Frederick, King of Bohemia, her mother being a daughter of King James I of England. She was Abbess of Herford from 1667 to 1680 and a friend of many noted religious leaders. William Penn gives a long account of his visits to Herford in his Travels, ed. of 1835, pp. 19—30, 53, 88, 119, 153. Largely owing to enquiries at Herford, in Hanover, instituted in 1920 by M. Christabel Cadbury, author of a life of Robert Barclay, fresh interest has been evoked in that district in the life-history of the Princess (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 35). In Descartes, His Life and Times, by Haldane, 1906, there is a portrait of Elizabeth from a painting by Gerard Houtherst.

- 239 4 Willem Willens, of Alkmaar, is mentioned in Ed. Text in connection with both visits to Holland—in 1677 (ii. 273) and 1694 (ii. 402). There was, apparently, a Meeting of Friends in this "pretty city." Beese has handed down the statement that "William Willens, because he kept his Shop open on a Fast-day in 1685, appointed for Success of the War then against England, was fined three Guilders, which he refusing to pay, an Officer with seven Assistants came to his House, and took away his Household Goods and Bedding to the Value of 150 Guilders" (ii. 456). This sum would be equal to about £100 in the money value of the present day.

- 240 1 Two visits were paid to Hotel Jacobse's house at Harlingen, on the coast of Friesland. On the latter occasion (p. 248) William Penn and party were welcomed back from Germany. Penn tells us that a M.M. was settled for Friesland, Gremingen and Embden (Travels, 1835, p. 90).

- 240 2 More does not appear respecting Sijbrand Downa, of Leeuwarden, than recorded here and on p. 247 and in Ell. Text, ii. 273, 282.
 William Fredrik was stadtholder of Friesland till his death in 1664. He was succeeded by his young son, Hendrik Casimir II, under the regency of his mother.
- 241 1 We are told in the Travels of William Penn that the wife of Jan Claus (150. 1) was the fourth sister of Dr John William Hasbort, of Embden, whose family was the first to receive Truth in this city, which occurred shortly after Penn's visit in 1671 with B. Parly and T. Radyard. Stephen Crisp visited the family in 1673 (works, 1694, p. 40). Here we learn that "Jhon Claus wives flathers name was Claes Jhon foel-dricks." Our knowledge of Dutch Quakerism or Dutch relationships is insufficient to explain the apparent discrepancy. He is nameless in Ell. Text.
 Embden, in the province of Ost Friesland, was one of the centres of early continental Quakerism. Great persecution befell Friends in this city, led, perhaps, by the burgo-master André in this year of 1677. Many protests were made, but only in 1686 did "the magistrattee begin to see their true Interest, and directed their Councils another Way. Having found the decay of their trade, they set open a Door for admitting the Quakers peaceably to reside there." They desired Magdalena Van Loer and her daughter Magdalena Hasbert, local Friends, to invite Quakers to settle in the city from England and Holland!

- 242 1 After the death of Count Anton Günther in 1687, the duchy of Oldenburg was governed jointly by Frederick III, King of Denmark, and Christian Albert, Duke of Holstein, until the year 1702 (Encyc. Brit.).
- 243 2 "Münster is a town in Westphalia, the seat of a bishop, walled round, with a noble cathedral and many churches" (Germany, in the Story of the Nations, 1896, p. 211). Münster was long governed by independent bishops, in whom a warlike was often much more conspicuous than a Christian spirit.
- 243 1 For a full account of John Perrot see vol. ii. p. 375. He was a leader of the "Hat-men," those who refused to remove their hats during public prayer, thus causing a schism in England and America (see vol. ii. p. 483).
- 243 2 Fox's editors have carefully expunged many of Fox's statements regarding himself and thus endangered the knowledge of an interesting trait in his character. Many omissions from the Camb. Text were made when the Ell. Text was prepared; see vol. i. p. xl. See pp. 244, 246.
 The omission of the reference here to Fox in the character of Moses may have been found desirable owing to William Rogers's statement that it was said: "The Lord ordained G. F. to be in that place amongst the Children of Light in this our day, as Moses was among the Children of Israel in his day" (Christian Quaker, 1880, pt. i. sect. 2).
- 243 3 The earl and his monument seem alike to have disappeared. We have failed to obtain any information respecting either of them. Ell. Text has Rantow.
- 243 4 William Poole, living at Friedrichstadt, the furthest point reached by George Fox, has not been identified. Ell. Text has Paul.
- 244 1 For the Duke of Holstein see 25. 2.

- 245 1 Ell. Text (ii. 278) informs us that John Hill was "an English Friend who had been travelling in Germany" but does not favour us with further particulars. He travelled a while with Fox and shared with him the tragic crossing of the "great water." He left the party at Leeuwarden on the 7th September and travelled to Amsterdam via Harlingen, arriving at Amsterdam on the evening of the 8th at the house of Gertrude Diricks (Penn, Travels, 1835, p. 89).
- 245 2 Probably Duke of Lüneburg. The city may have been Lüneburgerheide.
- 246 1 The game of shovel-board was very popular at this period with rich and poor. Dice were shot by hand across a table to stop at certain lines drawn on the table. A variation of the game is still played on ship-board with dice attached to handles. Fox wrote of the followers of Rive Jones: "their meetings extorted except some of them met together on the first day to play at shovel board" (vol. i, p. 397).
- 246 2 The prince and the prince's country seem too indefinite to individualize and describe. After the Thirty Years' War the several German princes were made almost wholly independent, so that the empire as a unity was reduced to a shadow (Germany, in the Story of the Nations, 1886, p. 256). This condition of Germany is made very clear on a map in a History-Atlas published in Gotha—"Deutschland nach dem Westfälischen Frieden, bis 1742," kindly lent by D. Mulder, of Westwood, Holland, 1924.
- 247 1 See 241. 1. The name of the goldsmith does not appear. Ell. Text adds: "Leaving them neither place to come to nor anything to subsid on. We comforted and encouraged him in the Lord, exhorting him to be faithful and stand stedfast in the testimony committed to him. When we had taken leave of him we took boat..." (ii. 262).
- 247 2 Of Cornelis Andries, of the city of Groningen, we have not been able to glean any particulars. At this time, apparently, there was less persecution in this northern portion of Holland. In 1669 Stephen Crisp wrote A Lamentation over the City of Groningen, in answer to two papers written by two magistrates against Friends and "two lines sung in the street by the wild and ungodly Ballet singers." One ballad was entitled The Loose Sect of the Quakers. "The anonymous author upbraids us about the death of the King of England and shows his knowledge to be as little as his honesty, for there was not the name of a Quaker in England when King Charles died."
- 249 1, 2 At Gertrude Dirick's house Fox wrote, 14 vii. 1677, a few lines to Friends "with relation to those seducing spirits...that endeavoured to inelinate themselves into the affectionate part" (Ell. Text, ii. 265—some decisive words).
On the 18th he wrote a long epistle to suffering Friends at Dantsig (ibid. p. 286), and on the 19th other letters.
- 250 1 Before attending M.M. and early in the morning Fox wrote a long letter to Friends respecting "division and separation, the way, work and end whereof the Lord opened to me" (Ell. Text, ii. 288—290).
- 250 2 See Ell. Text, ii. 288, 291.
- 252 1 Of the writings mentioned in this paragraph Ell. Text gives, in full, Fox's "Warning to the City of Oldenburg," and "A Warning to the City of Hamburg," both dated the 19th of the Seventh Month; also an address to the Ambassadors met at Nimwegen, dated 21st. These are followed by a very long epistle dealing with fasting, prayer, persecution, observance of days, etc., dated Harlingen in Friesland, 11 vi. 1677 (ii. 292—310).

- 2 Fox's "Epistle to the Ambassadors that are met to treat for peace at the City of Nimeguen in the States' dominions" is printed in Ell Text, ii. 298 ff., dated 21 vii. 1677. It was presented in Latin. Robert Barclay also addressed the ambassadors, and with his address, which was in Latin, was delivered to them copies of his Apology in Latin, 1678. The address was published in English in 1679 and entitled, An Epistle of Love and Friendly Advice to the Ambassadors... "wherein the Cause of the present war is discovered and the right Remedy and Means for a firm and settled Peace is proposed."
- "The peace of Nimeguen, 1678, terminated the wars of Louis XIV against the Dutch Republic, Spain, and the Empire. While it failed to satisfy Louis' ambition to destroy the United Provinces of the Netherlands, it yet marked the zenith of his ascendancy in Europe, and greatly strengthened France territorially, chiefly at the expense of Spain. Against the strong desire of his Parliament, which wished to enter the war on the side of Protestant William of Orange, Charles II contributed to the triumph of France by keeping England out of the Allied cause, in return for which he received large subsidies from the French King" (note by John L. Nickalls, B.A., 1924).
- 253 1 Galenus Abrahamus is described by William Penn as "the great father of the Socinian Menists [Mennonites]. He affirmed that there was no Christian Church, ministry, or communion apostolical now in the world" (Travels, 1635, p. 141, see pp. 90, 144, 157). He was born in 1622 (Steven Cripp and His Correspondents, 1892, pp. xlii, 84). Fox writes during his second visit to Holland (1684): "I had been with him when I was in Holland about seven years before... He was then very high and eby, so that he would not let me touch him, nor look upon him but bid me keep my eyes off him for they pierced him. But now he was very loving and tender, and confessed in some measure to truth; his wife also and daughter were tender and kind, and we parted from them very lovingly" (Ell Text, ii. 401).
- Sewal, Hist., anno 1677; Penn, Travels; Emmott, Short Hist. of Quakerism, 1923, p. 63.
- 253 2 Cornelis Roeloffs lived at Amsterdam. The relationship with others of the name—Barent, Deborah, Edward, Jan (135. 4) and Pieter—is not evident.
- 253 3 Jan and Cornelis De Witt were imprisoned on a false accusation; the Orange mob attacked the prison, dragged the brothers out and murdered them, 1672.
- In the Thirnbeck MSS. in D is a letter from John Rous to his mother-in-law, Margaret Fox, in which he sends her (just she had not seen it in the "Gazet") a description of the murder of the De Witts—"stript y^m starkes naked out of their fingers & toes & flesh of their bodies & sold them at severall prizes wth many bought untill neer their whole bodies were Consumed."
- A graphic description of these times may be read in the powerful novel of Marjorie Bowen, I Will Maintain.
- 253 4 Ell Text gives simply "one of the judges of Holland" (ii. 311). Penn has a paragraph on the visit to "a judge of the chief court of justice in that republic. He made his observations, objections and queries... and declared himself satisfied. He brought us to his street door, and there we parted with dear love to him" (Travels, 1635, p. 146).
- 254 1 According to William Penn's Travels (1635, pp. 135, 151, 152), the name of the Resident was Ducemius and his place of abode was

Cologne. He was among the Friends who accompanied, as far as the Brielle, the party returning to England. Though no name is given it was doubtless the same man mentioned, ibid. p. 85, as "the resident of several princes, a serious and tender man."

- 254 2 Ell. Text has, simply, "several Friends of Rotterdam." Penn mentions "M. Sonnemans" (Travels, pp. 148, 152), who would be the brother mentioned in the Diary.
- 254 3 After landing at seven p.m. and before retiring to bed at the house of John Vandewall, Fox wrote, with his own hand, a letter to Friends of Holland, dated "Harag 23 day 8 mo 1677." The letter is printed in Bulletin F. H. Association, tercent. no., 1924. The original is in D; for the history of the ms. see Jnl. F. H. S. ii. xxi.
- 255 1 John Furly, the younger (1644—), was the eldest son of John and Anna Furly, of Colchester (236. 3). In 1669 he married Ann Talbot, daughter of William and Ann Talbot, of Colchester (237. 1). Their fathers—John Furly and William Talbot—accompanied George Fox to Holland in 1677; in Ell. Text (ii. 268) they are referred to as "John Furly and his brother, William Talbot." There were several children—Abigail married Cornelis Loevelst (238. 2) in 1686, and William married Anna Vandewall (of the Harwich family) in 1697.
- 255 2 It is curious that so much space should have been given to the story of the duplicity of a post-mistress. The account in the Ell. Text (ii. 313) is briefer and Penn's words thereon are briefer still (Travels, p. 161): "George Fox and the others, through the miscarriage of a letter about the coach, not being come to Colchester." There was evident pleasure in the Quaker party that the woman's schemes had failed and that "shee was right served!"
- 256 1 There is a slight reference in Besse's Sufferings to William Bunting, of Halstead, Co. Essex. There is no record of a burial under that name in Essex Registers—a William Bunting, of Buntingfield, Chesterfield, Co. Derby, was buried, 15 x. 1719, in that county. He is not named in Ell. Text.
- 257 1 For John and Ann Child see vol. ii. p. 401. John Child was one of the "Dispersers of Quakers Books" (Extracts from State Papers, p. 229—Col. S. P. Dom. 1684—5, p. 142).
- 257 2 This was, in all probability, William Bennett, of Woodbridge in Suffolk (d. 1634—1684, died in Ipswich County Jail). He was one of the first preachers to visit the neighbouring county of Essex (F. P. T. p. 102). His several epistles and other papers were collected and printed in 1685 and a selection issued in 1696, with a brief memoir. He wrote a Testimony to his friend, Giles Bernardiston. Penn notes a meeting with these two just prior to the meeting with Fox (Travels, p. 161).
Smith, Cats. i. 248.
- 257 3 Gawen Lawrie (—1687). In the Hertfordshire Sessions Rolls, 1581—1688, under date of 1682, "Gawen Lourdy, merchant and speaker," is said to be one of the wealthiest dissenters in the parish of Cheshunt. He is mentioned in The Haigs of Bemereyde, 1681, as a friend of William Haig, the Quaker, with whom he had business relations. Haig wrote to his brother Anthony in 1669 from London: "I am in order for my Virginian voyage buying goods. Gavin Lowry's son, Obed, goes partner with me. Gavin is very loving and says still if any man will lend me one hundred pounds, he will lend me so much more. ... Direct thy letter to Gavin Lowry's in Houndsditch at the Helmet." In 1687 Lawrie was living in Three Kings Court. In 1672 his daughter, Mary, married, s.p., the aforementioned William Haig (1646—1686). In 1652 William Penn and eleven associates bought East Jersey. Robert Barclay was appointed governor and he appointed Lawrie as a deputy on the death of Thomas Rudyard. He went over in 1654, followed shortly by his daughter and son-in-law. They settled at Elizabeth Town (Myers, Narratives of Early Pennsylvania, etc., 1912, p. 181).

- 257 4 For Samuel Newton see vol. ii. p. 422. With others—William Penn, William Meade, Francis Moore, William Shewen, John Osgood, William Welch, and Stephen Crisp—he signed a petition to the King re popish recusants (Jnl. F. H. S. xi. 136). Francis Bugg caged Newton among his "unclean birds," and it appears that he had fallen from grace, as on p. 257, l. 11, the name is struck through in the Diary and also the three following "S. N."
- 257 5 William Crow (d. 1728/7) was of Bardfield, Saling, Co. Essex. He, or another of the same name and district, was sent to prison in 1659 for refusal to pay tithes, and remained there for some years (Suff. i. 194).
- 258 1 William Hages has not been found. Perhaps William Hedges was intended. He was a combmaker; he died of fever, in the parish of "Ann & Agnes," in 1700, aged fifty-six.
- 258 2 John Bolton (c. 1699—1679) was a goldsmith, resident in the parish of Aldergate. He was convinced quite early in the work in London and soon became a front-rank Friend. In 1658, with Amor Stoddard, Gerard Roberts, Thomas Hart and Richard Davies, he had the care of money sent from the North for travelling Ministers (Beginnings, p. 328, see also pp. 245, 246). Bolton was one of a numerous band of Friends taken up "travelling" and lodged in Exeter prison in 1656, and later liberated by order of the Protector (Extracts from State Papers, p. 8—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1656—7, p. 192). He suffered several imprisonments and beatings at later times. Short pieces of his with long titles appear in Smith, Coen. i. 294.
- 258 3 It is curious that a prominent Friend like William Gibson (c. 1629—1664) should not have found place in E.H. Text or Camb. Text or in the Itinerary Journal. His name occurs frequently in the Haistwell Diary between the years 1677 and 1678, being introduced by the initials W. G. Sewel mentions Gibson's conviction among instances of a sudden change: "William Gibson, whom I knew well, and who at the time of the civil wars, being a soldier at Carlisle, he and three others having heard that a Quaker meeting was appointed in that city they agreed to go thither and abuse the preacher whose name was Thomas Holmes," but Gibson "who came to scoff remained to pray" and became a zealous Minister. He resided in Lancashire till about 1670, when he removed to London. His wife was Elizabeth Thompson, of Crammoor, Co. Lancaster; they were married in 1662. (His son of the same name was the centre of a raging controversy, circa 1720, described Jnl. F. H. S. i.) He took a prominent part with Fox and others in the Wilkinson-Story Controversy, dealing especially with Raunce and Harris. In 8 mo. 1684, he was reported "nigh death" (Penn's letter to M. Fox, Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 143). It is said that more than a thousand Friends followed his remains from Lombard Street to Bunhill Fields (London Friends' Meetings, p. 154).

- 258 4 Dr John Raunee lived at Wycombe, Co. Bucks. His first wife, Elizabeth, was "one of ye first, if not ye very first, yt declared the Truth" at Turville Heath, Oxfordshire (F. P. T.). The doctor and his wife nursed Thomas Ellwood through a serious illness. In 1688 Raunee was present at a meeting at Weston, representing "Wiccomb" (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi.). He appears to have been liberated from prison in Bucks by the "General Pardon" of 1672 (Extracts from State Papers, p. 346—Col. S. P. Dom. 1671—2). Later, in 1678, Dr Raunee joined the Separatist party. He wrote several tracts both before and after his defection (Smith, Conf.).

Rogers, Christian Quaker, 1690, postscript, p. 22; Second Period.

- 258 5 Francis Moore was a useful London Friend. In a ms. in D we read: "Francis Moor of London having a testimony for y^e Lord in meetings & a good service in meetings, though he did not much travel abroad...." His residence in the Ratcliff district appears probable from an appointment in 1672 to assist prisoners, but his name is crossed through and marked "removed." Other offices in the Church were allotted him (Sundry Ancient Epistles, ms. in D). He also had a share in the work of providing spinning for poor Friends (see 104. 2); this was shortly before his decease, if the record of the death of Francis Moore, of Love Lane, merchant, 3 xii. 1678, referred to him. See 111. 4.

- 259 1 In Ell. Text there is given a letter from George Fox to his wife, dated this day—"every day I am fain to be at meetings about business, and sufferings which are great abroad" (ii. 314).

- 259 2 Colonel David Barclay (1610—1686) resided at Urie, near Aberdeen, Scotland, a mansion which he purchased in 1648 and rebuilt. His wife was Catherine Gordon. He served under Gustavus Adolphus in Germany and later in the Covenanting Army during the Civil War. He met Quakerism in London and was convinced by the medium of John Swinton while imprisoned in Edinburgh (281. 5). For the committal order see Jnl. F. H. S. v. 199. Whittier's picture of the indignities he suffered on allying himself with the despised Quakers is well known—"Barclay of Urie."

- 259 3 For Thomas Moore see vol. i. p. 435, etc. In vol. i. p. 200 we have the first reference (1655) to Thomas Moore, J.P., as a "freindely moderate man," the reference to his conviction and service being omitted from Ell. Text. There was probably some relationship or other connection between Moore and Rebecca Travers—in 1682 he was the means of her release from prison (Extracts from State Papers, p. 155—Col. S. P. Dom. 1681—2, p. 569), and was at this time to be found at her house.

- 259 4 For John Pennyman see vol. ii. p. 431. We cannot be sure to which of his numerous writings there is a reference here. John Pennyman's marriage with Mary Boreman in 1671 is probably the marriage referred to in The Character of a Quaker in his True and Proper Colours, 1672: "A Westminster Wedding must be kept at Merchant Taylors Hall, and a Trumpet sounded to publish the Nuptials between Diotrophe and Gomer the daughter of Dithlain, where Jews and Gentiles are jointly invited to a Feast, and Seven and Twenty Venison Pasties saw their stately walls in a moment levelled."

- 260 1 We have not found any record of these letters in the Register of George Fox's Letters, or elsewhere.

- 260 2 George Fox visited Sergeant Birkhead, at Twickenham, in 1659 and "had a meetings where there was many considerable people & some of quality & a glorious meetings it was... & Christ sett above all see y^e one man amongst y^m admired & sayde: this man is a pearly" (vol. i. p. 340). Ell. Text omits "see...pearly." The use of the military title is noticeable. See also "Capt Stodart" (vol. i. pp. 186, 189 where "Capt" is inserted); "Captain Lawrence" (so named in Camb. Text and Ell. Text); "Captain Davenport" (vol. i. p. 307).

- 260 3 This visit to Kingston, and subsequent journeys into Bucks and Oxon, are recorded in Ell. Text, ii. 315 ff.

- 260 4 See 105. 4.

- 261 1 Further information respecting Thomas Tanner is not forthcoming.

- 261 2 For Christopher Taylor see vol. i. p. 410. In the Diaries of Oliver Heywood (1690—1702), vol. iv. p. 7, we read: "Antinomian Views. These were the principles of Mr. Taylor, the minister of Chapel-en-le-Brears, who became at length a professed Quaker."
Jnl. F. H. S. i. ii. v. vi. ix. x. xvi.

- 261 3 For a sketch of the life of Bray D'Oryl see vol. ii. p. 446. He was one of the many substantial persons who joined the early Friends. Payment for the care of his horse and that of Stephen Smith at Ulverston is recorded in Swarth's Account Book, p. 239. (For such payments see F. Q. E. 1912, p. 482; Beginnings, p. 367.)
Rogers, Christian Quaker, 1680, pt. v. p. 42; Jnl. F. H. S. xi.

- 261 4 The slight reference here to a meeting at Hunger Hill "concerning differences" has been greatly expanded in Ell. Text (ii. 315, 316), but without reference by name to Raunce and Harris. "The meeting was in a barn for there came so many that the house could not receive them.... Meet of their arrows were shot at me.... The meeting ended to the satisfaction of Friends." From whence did Ellwood obtain these particulars? In the margin of the Haistwell Diary at this point there are several lines of shorthand, which may have been deciphered and incorporated in Ellwood's additional particulars.

- 261 5 George Salter, of Hedgerley, Co. Bucks, belonged to Chalfont Meeting (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 70). He entered into controversy with Roger Crab in answer to the latter's articles against Friends, 1659. "Roger Crab was an interesting character, a vegetarian and water drinker, the leader of some people called Rationals, and commonly reputed to be a prophet. He lived near Uxbridge" (Beginnings). Crab (c. 1621—1680) was a native of Buckinghamshire (D. N. B.). Though living quietly in the district Salter was repeatedly fined and imprisoned, but the numerous bequests in his will (in D), dated 1691, indicate some means despite fines and imprisonment. He had long disputes with the "priest" of Farnham Royal in whose parish he resided.

- 51 6 There is a considerable note on John Swinton in vol. i. p. 466. See 237, 7 for a note respecting his widow. W. O. Braithwaite deals with Swinton in Second Period, pp. 325—337, where there is a fine bibliography.
- 162 1 The name of Henry Tredway (—1700) appears in a list of Bucks Friends in 1688; he belonged to Chalfont Meeting (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 70). With William Leddington, John Bellers, John White, Thomas Ellwood and others, he signed a fire-brief sent out by Bucks Q.M. 1692 (Ibid. iii. 111). For fire-briefs see Swearth. Account Book; Jnl. F. H. S. iii. iv.
- Suff.*
There was a Margaret Tredway in 1678, also belonging to Chalfont Meeting (Jnl. F. H. S. vii. 64).
- 262 2 The paper prepared by these six prominent Friends for presentation to the King has not been found.
- 262 3 Jeremiah Steevens (—1686) belonged to Uppernide M.M., Bucks (Jnl. F. H. S. ix. 196). He was a maltster. His widow, Ann Steevens, departed this life in 1712. A son, Jeremiah, died in 1682. In 1665 while several Friends, including Jeremiah Steevens, were carrying the remains of Edward Perrot to the graveyard at Jordans, Ambrose Bennett, of Buletrode, "rushed out of his inn...and having drawn his sword...with a forcible thrust threw the coffin off the bearers' shoulders, so that it fell to the ground in the midst of the street where it lay till evening." Steevens and others were taken prisoners (Besse, Suff.; Littleboy, Jordans, 1920). The Steevens family was, for several generations, prominent among Friends in Wycombe. The old oak table at which Steevens entertained Fox, Penn, Ellwood and others is still preserved (Hist. of Life of Thomas Ellwood, Graveson ed. 1906).
- 262 4 In F. P. T. we read: "George Fox settled ye meeting at Tirfield heath in ye year 1680 at ye Wid Waste house whear it hath continued Ever since in heir time, heir Childrens, and now [1706] heir Granchildren" (p. 220). Elizabeth West, widow, was buried at Hanley on Thames, 22 i. 1688.
- 262 5 For Thomas Curtis, of Caversham, see vol. i. p. 441. While on a business journey in Devonshire he was arrested as a vagrant and sent to Exeter Jail, but liberated shortly after, 1657 (Extracts from State Papers, p. 32—Col. S. P. Dom. 1657—8, p. 156, see also Extracts, pp. 33, 45, 106, 198—198, 344, 351). After he left the main body of Friends, it was written of him by Reading M.M.: "Thomas Courtis said y^e Singing (or, Speaking Singingly) in Prayer or in Preaching or with a vocal voice, was abomination, & he Reflected upon Samuel Burges at Oare, & said he had Sang them many a merry Jigg, but now he would seem to Excuse it & said he would as leif heare one Sing a Ballad, w^{ch} is noe better" (Jnl. F. H. S. xiii. 125).
- Jnl. F. H. S.* ix. xvii. xix. xx.
- 262 6 For George Lamboll see vol. i. p. 430. When Fox was at Reading in 1685 (vol. i. p. 185) the Sunday meeting was held in Lamboll's orchard, "almost all ye whole tounde came together...& people were mightily satisfied." He was released from some years' imprisonment by the "General Pardon" of 1672.
- 262 7 William Austill figures in a disgraceful scene in the doings connected with the Wilkinson and Story Controversy in Berkshire. It is thus described by Howard R. Smith in Jnl. F. H. S. i. 1: "Benjamin Coale was clerk of the Q.M. and he had disseminated William Rogers's book, entitled The Christian Quaker. In Fifth Month, 1681, many Friends resolved to supersede B. Coale and in Second Month, 1682, they appointed William Austill as clerk....Austill began to write the minutes, but Thomas Ourtia tore the papers from him....As the Meeting for Sufferings refused to recognise B. Coale as clerk, the two parties held their Meeting at the same time in the same room, each with its own clerk."

- 262 8 For Bartholomew Maylin see vol. ii. p. 446.
- 263 1 William Hitchcock, of Marlborough, married Bridget Hitchcock, of Prashute in 1659, and had several children. Among "The Taylor Papers" in the possession of the Hist. Soc. Pa. is a letter from Hitchcock to John and Amy Harding, late of Wiltshire, then of Pennsylvania, dated at Marlborough, 28 vii. 1687. The letter conveys various items of news, including a visit of William Penn, Samuel Waldenfield and Francis Stamper—"hundreds of people stood to hear him [Penn] in y^e street; y^e rooms in my house being full, y^e glass of y^e windows being taken down, friends stood in y^e Penthouse & spoke" (printed Jnl. F. H. S. iv.). William Hitchcock and Bridget Hitchcock were witnesses to the marriage of J. and A. Harding, 1672 (ibid.).
- 263 2 Israel Noyse (Noice) lived at Calne, N. Wilts. He married Margery Wallis, of Slaughterford in 1657 and had a considerable family. He was a "sergeant-maker." He died in 1708 and Margery Noyse in 1716. With other Wilts Friends he signed a Q.M. minute against "A sad & lamentable sin & deviation...by John Story & John Wilkenson of westmorland" (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 143). A Friends' meeting at Calne has been held through the centuries until recent times.
- 263 3 Richard Sneed (—1711) was a "Mercer at y^e Blackmarcs head on y^e brig in Bristol," in 1662 (Col. S. P. Dom. 1661—2, p. 414). In 1680 he caused to be copied the Bristol Men's Meeting minutes beginning 1667, from a fear that the original might be appropriated by Rogers and his confederates. Both are still in the care of Bristol Friends. (In Wiltshire, a hot-bed of opposition, the Q.M. book was "Katched up & carried away & would not send it again nor return themselves," 1678 (Jnl. F. H. S. iv. 120).) Sneed is frequently mentioned in the Bristol mss. (ibid. ix.). When in jail in Newgate, Bristol, in 1683, "over the Anchor," he signed a certificate of liberation for a marriage, which was signed also in Bridewell, on behalf of women Friends there (ibid. ii. 15). In 1681 he wrote A Letter in Recommendation of some Medicines prepared by Charles Marshall, which was signed by Charles Jones, William Penn, John Staples, Francis Stamper, Richard Whip-pain, John Bellers, and Thomas Cox, and in the same year, with Richard Vickris, Charles Jones and another, he wrote An Exalted Diatribe Reprehended... William Rogers. Vol. ii. pp. 378, 384; Suff.; Jnl. F. H. S. vii, viii; Annals of the Harford Family, 1909; mss. in D.
- 263 4 For Laurence Steele see vol. ii. p. 495. His name occurs frequently in the Bristol mss. (Jnl. F. H. S. ix.).
- 263 5 The name Gouldney (Goldney) appears in the Friends' Registers of Wiltshire from 1674 to 1761. There were at least four Adam Gouldneys in direct descent and it is probable that this Friend was the widow of the first Adam known to Quakerism. The family seat was Chippenham in the N.W. of the county. Adam, Junr., married, 1674, Mary Knight (d. 1716), who was a Minister; their daughter Jane (1690—) married Michael Russell (112. 2) in 1696. In the Bristol mss. there is recorded a meeting at the house of "Widowe Goldneys" in connection with the Wilkinson and Story Controversy at which were present Thomas Canna, Benjamin Antrobus, Samuel Boulton, Charles Marshall and others, date 3 v. 1676 (Jnl. F. H. S. ix.).

Records of Chippenham, by Frederick H. Goldney, 1699.

- 263 6 The Registers for Wiltshire and the minutes of Q.M. and M.M. reveal several families of Wallis, resident at Slaughterford and Chippenham. "Widow Wallis" was probably Elizabeth Wallis (d. 1685), whose husband was John Wallis (d. 1690). There was a connection by marriage with the Noyse family (263. 3). Slaughterford is a village West of Chippenham; it was for long a Quaker centre. The meeting-house is still standing.

Three Wiltshire widows were visited in succession—Widow Hallie (about whom nothing has been found), Widow Gouldsoy, and Widow Wallis.

- 263 7 Little is known of Joan Hiley (Hely, Ely), of Bristol, widow. See vol. ii, p. 385. She appears to have been the intermediary in the matter of correspondence between Friends and the Separatists. See Rogers, Christian Quaker, 1690, pt. v. pp. 18, 60.
Suff. i. 50, 55; Jnl. F. H. S. ix.

- 263 8 For John Story see vol. i. p. 405, etc., and for the Wilkinson and Story Controversy (1675—1686) see vols. i. and ii. In a letter to William Penn in 1675 Fox writes on the controversy aroused by "y^e 2: Johns," and gives a relation of the principal points of divergence between Friends and the Separatists: "They have vindicated flyeing in times of Persecution and affirmed that y^e paym^t of Tythes is not Anti-christian, and womens Meetings are Rebuted Monsters, and Recording Condemnations givinge y^e Devill Advantage; and singeing in Meetings whilst others are prayinge or speakinge, Confusion & delusion & calls Monthly & Quarterly Meetings Courts & sessions" (printed Jnl. F. H. S. x. 146 from a contemporary copy of the letter).

Further references to the controversy may be found in Sewel, Hist.; Barclay, Inner Life of the Religious Societies of the Commonwealth, 1876, chap. xix.; Jnl. F. H. S. i. iv. vii.—2.; John Stephenson Roundtree, 1906; Second Period.

- 263 9 Thomas Jordan (d. 1686) was a grocer of Maryport parish, Bristol. His wife was Lydia Jordan (d. 1685). They both signed the Fox-Pell wedding certificate (Jnl. F. H. S. ix.).

- 264 1 The Bristol Registers contain the record of the death of John Batho, of "James Parish—an ancient friend," in 1679, and of Jane, his wife, in 1673. Jane was one of the Friends sentenced to banishment in 1664. In 1669 she signed the Fox-Pell wedding certificate (Jnl. F. H. S. ix.). Besse gives the following, under Bristol, 1670: "Last First-day M. Bradshaw that was lately with the King beginning to speak was rudely taken by the soldiers to the Guard and so were S. Pearson and Jane Batho, and kept there till night, then sent to Bridewell and there remain" (Suff. i. 53).

The "S. Pearson" abovenamed was probably Susanna Pearson, of Worcester, who is thus introduced in Beginnings, p. 291: "In February, 1657, a young man, convinced of Truth, became mentally unbalanced and drowned himself. After his burial, Susanna Pearson told his mother, who was in great grief, that she would restore her son alive, and went with another woman to the grave and took the corpse out, seeking to raise it to life by imitating the action of Elisha when he raised the son of the Shunammite woman. As this had no effect they went to prayer, but with no better success, and so buried the body again."

A Sad Caution to all Quakers, Not to boast any more that they have

God Almighty by the hand when they have the Devil by the toe, with an account of the incident, "William Pool an apprentice & a known Quaker near Worcester" being the young man, printed in black letter, 16 pages, in 12mo. 1687 (see Smith, Adv. Cuts, p. 10); Baxter, Relig. Bant. 1696, pt. i, p. 77; Suff.; Barclay, Inner Life of the Religious Societies of the Commonwealth, 1876, p. 428 n.; Brown, Evansham Friends, 1885, pp. 107, 112; Jnl. F. H. S. ix. xi.; for Susanna Pearson, Junr., see Suff. ii. 637; Extracts from State Papers, p. 228—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1684—5, p. 142. Mother and daughter signed the Fox-Fall marriage certificate (Jnl. F. H. S. ix.).

- 264 2 William Rogers, in his Christian Quaker, pt. v., refers to George Fox's visit to Bristol and to the abortive conferences at Simon Clement's and elsewhere in and about this city. Fox said in his book, This is an Encouragement to all Womens Meetings, that Micah's mother was a Virtuous Woman—Rogers averred that she was an Idolstrous Woman; see J. S. Rowntree's pamphlet, Micah's Mother, 1892, included in his memorial volume, 1909, pt. 1, chap. 2.
- 264 3, 4. There were two Friends living in Bristol at the same time named Charles Jones, father and son. Their trade was soap-making (Suff. i. 69 ff.). "Bristol soap" appears in the Swarth. Account Book, p. 350—"half a hundred of Bristol Soap" cost fourteen shillings. In 1683 Charles Jones and others were arrested and declined securities (Extracts from State Papers, p. 183—Cal. S. P. Dom. 1683—4, p. 428, see p. 477). Both names occur in the Bristol mss. (Jnl. F. H. S. ix.). In 1681 George Whitehead, Charles Jones, Junr., and Laurence Steel appeared before Charles II to seek liberty for Friends in Bristol, but with little success (Christian Progress, pp. 804 ff.).
- 265 1 Hazzekiah Coale was one of the Winterbourne family to which George Coale belonged (146. 3). He suffered for the faith that was in him.
- 265 2 Richard Gabell, of Sodbury, Gloucestershire, has not been found in the Registers or elsewhere.
- 265 3, 4. There is a lively account of the two Nailsworth Friends, Robert Langley and Richard Smith, in F. P. T. p. 106. The latter had been a soldier. "They married two sisters and thereby came to be Brother Laws. Pen would be to short here in this place to write the vallue of those two men and their wives. They were great entertainers of friends...all ways lending a hand to help the weakome along in their Journey....Rob: Langley had a publick testimony."
Rogers, Christian Quaker, pt. vi. p. 5; Suff.
- 265 5 Should probably be Stincombe. It is also Fyncombe in Ell. Text (ii. 318), where there is a reference to the presence of "several of the opposite spirit." Stincombe would be about the eight miles stated in the margin, West of Nailsworth.
- 265 6 Richard Townsend was one of the Friends who signed the certificate respecting Giles Fettiplace (100. 7) which declares that he "is a Protestant Dissenter...commonly called Quaker," 25 March, 1692 (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 44). The author of the memoir of John Roberts—A Quaker of the Olden Time, 1898—suggests that Richard Townsend was a brother of Roger Townsend and that they were brothers of that woman "of great Understanding," as Beese styles her, Theophila Townsend, all of Cirencester. The last named suffered long and cruel imprisonments. Richard Townsend died in 1715.

- 295 1 For Edward Edwards (Edward of Edwards) see vol. i. p. 448. He was with George Fox in Wales in 1657. We have here the additional information that Edwards lived at Stoke Orchard—above reference gives Gloucestershire only. He married Mary Surman (d. 1715). They were both much occupied in "industrious Travels and Pains for the Name and Power of the Lord, and Promotion of His holy Truth" (F. P. T. p. 323 n.).
Jnl. F. H. S. x. xvi. xix.
- 296 2 The name Joshua Cart appears once in the card-catalogue in D as a signature to a wedding certificate, 1698. It has not been found elsewhere.
- 298 3 There was a Baptist minister in Worcester, William Pardoe (1680—c. 1692), named in Brown's Evesham Friends, pp. 19, 20, styled "pastor of the General Baptist Congregation," who was a prisoner for nearly seven years, "a very useful man and blessed with great success in his ministerial work."
There was a Friend, of Worcester, named William Pardoe, who married Mary Amphlett, of Worcester, in 1664, and Margaret Handley, of Pontymole, South Wales, in 1686, and died in 1712.
Were these father and son?
Letter from Dr W. T. Whitley, hon. sec. Bapt. Hist. Soc. 1924, see his History of British Baptists, 1923, p. 106; see in D.
- 298 4 Robert Smith, of Worcester (d. 1706), became a Friend about 1655, and soon began to befriend travelling preachers. When Thomas Goodaire (vol. i. p. 399) was refused permission by the mayor to go to an inn Robert Smith "came & took him to his House, & gave him Intertainment & bid the people who were gathered about the door goe tell the mayor of it" (F. P. T.). In 1662 a sentence of premunire was passed on Smith, and he lay in prison for ten years (Brown, Evesham Friends, 1885, p. 120, see also pp. 74, 83, 87).
- 298 5 Nothing further appears respecting Thomas Fucker (Folkes), of the city of Worcester.
- 298 6 "The Monthly Meetings of Worcestershire were 'settled' at a 'General Meets Meeting,' held at the house of Henry Gibbs at Pershore in 1667" (Brown, Evesham Friends, 1886, p. 141). Before that event took place Gibbs had been in prison with others "for having lately assembled themselves under the pretence of joining in a religious worship, to the great endangering of the publique peace and safetye and to the terror of the people" (ibid. p. 113, see p. 180).
Suff. ii. 67, 68.
For the Meeting at Pershore see Brown, op. cit. p. 205.
- 298 7 John Woodward, of Evesham, was "a soldier in the service of the Commonwealth" (The Cruelty of the Magistrates of Evesham, 1665). Other sufferings followed, noted in Brown's Evesham Friends, 1886, pp. 57, 74, 84, 87, 111—113, 178, 186.
Joane Woodward's name occurs ibid. p. 111.

- 297 1 A brief sketch only can be given in a note respecting Viscountess Conway and Kilulta (—1679). She was descended from an illustrious family, occupying a position of honour and responsibility in the affairs of the State and distinguished for its great intellectual power and administrative ability. She was the youngest daughter of Sir Honage

Finch, of Kensington. Her eldest brother was Hensage Finch (1621—1692), afterwards Earl of Nottingham. In connection with his office as Lord Keeper, we read in Barclay's Letters of Early Friends, 1841, p. 199, that William Penn, writing to George Fox in Worcester Jail, ix. 1674, regarding Fox's release, complains that "it eticks with the Keeper and we have and do use what interest we can." See vol. ii. p. 298. Anne Finch married in 1651 Edward, Viscount Conway. "He had not his wife's taste for learning, and after their retirement to Ragley Hall [illustration in Jnl. F. H. S. vii. 49] he devoted himself to the ordinary pursuits of a country gentleman whilst she, 'deeply immersed in the stores of erudition imbedded in ponderous folios in the library,' strove to add to her already remarkable knowledge of ancient and general literature" (Brown, Swesham Friends, 1885, p. 128). There was only one child, Hensage, who died young, of small-pox in London in 1680. The exact date of Lady Conway's introduction to Quakerism is not known, but George Keith visited her in 1675 and she soon after made the acquaintance of Penn, Barclay, Fox and other front-rank Friends. She subscribed money to assist Barclay in building Aberdeen meeting-house. Her principal friendship was with Dr Henry More (233. 5), and Francis Van Helmont (see next note) was her medical adviser. She was in constant bodily ill-health. In the family vault at Arrow is a coffin upon which is scratched in the lead: "Quaker Lady."

Shorthouse's John Inglesant, 1881, is said to be modelled on Lady Conway.

- 267 2 Francis Mercurius Van Helmont (—1699) "was the son of John Baptist Van Helmont, the famous Brabazon physician. He held the doctrine of the transmigration of souls, and to his vain and speculative notions may be partly attributed the sad apostasy of George Keith" (Brown, Swesham Friends, 1885, p. 132 n.). See vol. ii. p. 455; Sewel, Hist., sub anno 1692. He was Lady Conway's intimate friend and physician. Lady Conway wrote of him in 1675: "Monsieur van Helmont is grown a very religious Churchman, hee goes every Sunday to the Quakers meetings" (letter in D, printed Jnl. F. H. S. vii.). After Lady Conway's death in 1679 Van Helmont removed to Hanover and died in Berlin.

- 267 3 John Stanley (bapt. 1646, died 1706) was of Cladwell in the parish of Inkberrow, Co. Worcester. He was one of the numerous persons of means and influence who joined themselves to the early Friends. His first wife was Mary Reading (d. 1693 s.p.). An ancient manuscript, once belonging to Stanley Pumphrey, gives a vivid picture of the sufferings of J. and M. Stanley in 1694, printed in Jnl. F. H. S. vi. Stanley's second wife was Elizabeth Chandless, née Somersford (d. 1722). "The descendants of John and Elizabeth Stanley are to be found in large numbers among Friends of to-day" (ibid.).

- 267 4 We have not yet discovered the title or authors of either the "German books" or the book written by "y^e priest of y^e parish belonging to Ragley," answered by Fox, Kaith and Van Helmont—a curious trio!
- 267 5 No further information is forthcoming regarding Richard Bromly, of Stratford-on-Avon.
- 267 6 William Lucas lived at Lamcote, South Warwickshire.
- 268 1 Edward Vivers, of Banbury, was convinced about the year 1654 and became one of the early entertainers of travelling preachers in "Banbury" (P. P. T. p. 208). George Fox to William Penn, from Worcester, 1674: "Heere is a freinde of Banbury with mee y^e saide If y^e matter sticks with y^e Keeper hee could improve some interest by some freinde of his to remove y^e obstacle....Hee may come upp about it" (copy in D, printed Jnl. F. H. S. vii. 75).
- 268 2 For John Halford see vol. ii. p. 447.
- 268 3 Joseph Harris (d. 1705) lived at Sibford Ferris, near Banbury, Oxon.
- 268 4 Nathaniel Ball lived at North Newington, near Banbury. In Ell. Text (ii. 319) place-names only are given. In the Harstwell Diary we learn the names of the Friends who were visited at these places.
- 268 5 Hiron is probably Hirona—a name borne by Quakers in the Northants region. There was a Thomas Hirona, of Astrop and Northampton (d. 1684), and wife Alice. Astrop is a hamlet a short way over the border of Oxfordshire into Northamptonshire.
- 268 6 Nothing further appears respecting William West save the entry of the burial at Meadle of William West, Senr., yeoman, of Long Crendon, 17 i. 1696. "Fox would leave Long Crendon by way of Thame and follow the main road to Risborough, diverging to the right (past Kingsley) to Ilmire, then on to Longwick, diverging to the left to Meadle, along the Lower Icknield Way, and following that way afterwards to Weston Turville, near Aylesbury" (letter from Richard Welford to the editor, 1901; see Notes and Queries, 9th series, viii. Nov. 2, 1901).
- 268 7 Thomas Sanders (died 1684, buried at Meadle) was an Ilmer Friend belonging to the Meeting at Meadle Farm (see next note). Damaris Sanders, of Meadle Meeting 1678, was probably the wife of Thomas. She and Ann Stevens (Stevens), probably the wife of Jeremiah, of Wycombe (262. 3), went to the Men's Meeting at Thomas Ellwood's in 1671 to suggest that the women "might meet together to feele there servis in the truth, and if they felt servis continew in it." They met a few times and then "the syn being to much outwards to outward business, and y^e not appearing," the Meeting was given up for a time ("Some Account concerning the Women's Monthly Meeting in the County of Bucks," from the Minute Book, printed Jnl. F. H. S. vii. 63, 64). In 1679 Damaris, daughter of Thomas Sanders, married John Kirton (124. 2).
- 268 8 John White (—1731) lived at Meadle, not Meadle as given in Ell. Text, ii. 318. A good example of local research is A Visit to Meadle Farm in the Parish of Monks Risborough, Bucks. by W. H. Summers, 1896. A meeting was held regularly at the farm, attended at times by Thomas Ellwood. "A curious feature in the old house is that in a small cellar, to which we descend by a flight of steps nearly opposite the front door, there is a spring of clear water." There is an orchard attached which was once a burialground. Hannah, wife of John White, died in 1714. Descendants of "Quaker White" are known to-day but Needle is now in others' hands.

- 268 9 For John Brown, of Weston Turville, see vol. ii. p. 410; Jnl. F. H. S. xvi.
- 269 1 The reason for the insertion of "points" here and elsewhere does not appear.
- 269 2 Robert Jones lived at Cholesbury, near Tring in Hertfordshire. His name appears once in Besse's Sufferings (l. 76), when he was imprisoned for refusing to take the oath.
- 269 3 George Belch, of Chorleywood, Bucks, belonged to the Chalfont Meeting (Jnl. F. H. S. xvi. 70). Besse states that he had three Geldings worth £23 taken from him by distraint and that when he appealed to the Quarter Sessions, his appeal, not being in Latin, was rejected and treble costs were given against him for which his Horse and other goods were taken away to the value of £40 (Suff. i. 83). His signature was attached to the letter sent to Samuel Boulton from Hunger Hill in 1687 (80. 5). Belch's son Thomas (d. 1741), of Chesepide, London, linendraper and clothworker, married Ann Owen (1677—1743), of Co. Surrey, in 1713/14. They had eight children, one of whom, Susanna, married into the Vaux family (Jnl. F. H. S. i. 75).
- 269 4 The statement in vol. i. p. 428 that John Crook had a house in Luton as well as a country-house at Beckering's Park seems to require confirmation here, but the great meeting of 1688 was held at the latter not the former (see vol. i. pp. 180 n., 455).
- 270 1 Samuel Hodges, of South Mimms, a village lying North of Barnet, close to the Hertfordshire border, was a butcher by trade. In 1693 he was heavily fined for a meeting at his house.
The Meeting at South Mimms was discontinued in 1787 and the property was sold in 1820.
Suff. i. 482; London Friends' Meetings.
- 270 2 No further particulars are at hand respecting Henry Hodge of Barnet. Fox visited the Friends here in 1677 (p. 232). We read in London Friends' Meetings, under the head of Chipping Barnet, that in 1680 the house of John Huddleston, of Chipping Barnet, was registered a place of worship for the Society of Friends, in accordance with the provisions of the Toleration Act. In 1743 this Meeting was laid down, its continuance being considered "disreputable to the Society" (p. 298).
- 270 3 The Pewter Platter was, apparently, kept by a Friend. In the chapter on the Six Weeks Meeting in London Friends' Meetings (p. 127), we read: "In 1682 an appointment is made 'to give notice to Friends in the country that the Friend at the Falcon is deceased, and that the Friend at the Platter can accommodate them.'"
- 270 4 The Y.M. of 1678 was composed of representatives. It was held on the 22nd to the 24th of the Third Month and mostly occupied with the subject of sufferings including "the often suffering of Friends by being impressed into the King's ships of war" (Epistles, 1681 to 1857, 1854, vol. i. p. xxiii). See the cases of Thomas Lurting (Beginnings) and Richard Bellar (Second Period).

- 271 1 This was probably the book by Roger Williams: Fox Digged out of his Burrows. See 235. 4.
- 272 1 See previous note and 235. 4.
- 273 1 There is a slight reference to Joseph Freeman in Barclay's Letters of Early Friends, 1841, p. 179: Ellis Hookes to Margaret Fox, 1671: "I saw a letter from John Hull who intends to come over in W^m Bailye or J. Freeman's ship."
There is a record of the burial of Elizabeth Freeman, of Stepney, wife of Joseph, mariner, died 13 xi. 1673, aged fifty.
- 273 2 There is a long note on Solomon Eccles in vol. ii. p. 428. It is interesting to find him again, at the close of the Haistwell Diary. He was preaching in Ireland in 1669 and in Scotland in 1674 (Jnl. F. H. S. x. xii.). Further information of his visit to Barbados in 1671 may be found (ibid. xiv. A minute made at a sitting of the Morning Meeting at the home of Anne Travers, 2 ix. 1674, reads: "Concerning S. Eccles his books entitled The Soule Saving Principle, &c., friends have taken three daies to read it & their sense and judgment is that it is not safe to be published there being many things in it that are to be left out & others to be corrected, both w^{ch} will require much labour & care and therefore it is referred to G. W., A. P., & W. G., & T. G., or any two or more of y^m to speak with Solomon, the book in y^r mean time to be left with E. H." No more has been heard of the book.
- 273 3 Was Edward Haistwell the "man" referred to in this extract from Rogers's Christian Quaker, written and printed against George Fox: "When he Travels, 'tis certainly known, he hath had such Attendance, which (considering the Work he is on) may be termed Great...and of late hath Travelled with a Man termed George Fox's Man" (1880, pt. iv. p. 64)?

- 181 1 John Bowater (Bowter) (c. 1628—1704/5) is principally noted for his visit to America in 1677—8. "It appeared by the said John Bowater's own brief Relation, that he was more kindly used by the Poor Indians in America, than by some pretended Christians here in England, after his return" (Testimony issued by the Second Days Morning Meeting, 21 iii. 1705). He was for some time a prisoner in Worcester County Jail and also in the Fleet Prison in London. "He was low and poor in this World." His early home was at Bromsgrove in Worcestershire; he lived later in London.

- 39 3 Of Cromwell, Richard Hubberthorne wrote, in 1657: "He spoke more against Friends than ever before he formerly expressed, saying that there was a good law against Quakers, and they did well to put it into execution and he would stand by them, for he said they were against both magistracy and ministry."
- 136 2 John Sellwood (c. 1634—1693) was a brewer, of Mile End, parish of Stepney. His widow, Elizabeth, of Schoolhouse Lane, died in 1717, aged 78.

- 228 2 In the Testimony to Fox, written by his friend, John Boweter, we read: "Not many Days before his Decease, to wit, the 5th of the 11th Month, 1690, about Eight Days before his Departure, at our 2d Days Morning-Meeting, I much minded his Exhortation to us, encouraging Friends that have Gifts, to make use of them, mentioning many Countries beyond the Seas that wanted Visiting, instancing the Labours and hard Travels of Friends, in the beginning of the spreading of Truth in our Days, in breaking up of Countries, and of the rough plowing they had in Steeple-Houses &c., but now it was more easy; and he complained of many Deceases and Cairns, who embrace the present World, and incur themselves with their own Businesses, and neglect the Lord's, and so are good for nothing; and said They that had Wives should be as tho' they had none; and who goeth a Warfare, should not entangle himself with the things of this World." See Preface to the volume of Fox's Gospel Truth Demonstrated, 1708; also Bulletin F. H. S. Phila. iii. 144.
- 234 21 An important event was passed over with but a slight mention: "And on y^e: 12: day G H: went to anothe^r Meeting at E: H:" This meeting was called to prepare, or sign, a document addressed to the Separatist community, "From a Meeting held at Ellis Hook's Chamber in London, the 12th of the 4th Month, 77," respecting "false and pernicious Jealousies, Murmurs, and secret Smitings...more especially John Wilkinson and John Story." Sixty-six Friends appended their signatures, among them being many Friends before-mentioned. See 233. 3.
- The reply is signed by sixty-seven persons, of whom very few appear to have figured previously on the pages of the history of early Quakerism.
- The above was printed as A Testimony Against The 66 Judges call'd Quakers, who writ an Epistle (as they call it) against John Story and John Wilkinson, etc., with introduction by Jeffery Bullock, of Sudbury, Co. Suffolk, "who was afterwards brought to see the delusion into which he had fallen, and in 1696 gave testimonies against his former conduct." The method adopted here of reproducing the letter or paper against which you are writing is of great value to the historian; see 27. 3; Rogers, Christian Quaker, 1690.
- 235 36 For John Burnysat see vol. ii. p. 418.
- 239 37 Pastor D. Mulder writes from Werwoud, the "Long town called the Streik" (p. 240): "Old people of my village here tell me that going with the trekschuit from Alkmaar to Hoorn two changes were necessary—one at Rustenburg and one at Avenhorn." It seems probable therefore that the place-name Avenhorn may be substituted for the "———" on p. 239, where also there is evidence of a change of boat.
- 265 22 For Nathaniel Cripps see vol. i. p. 144.
